

Nixon Working on Economic Formula

Tax Hike, Curbs Hinted

(Combined Wire Dispatches)
KEY BISCAYNE, Fla.—President Nixon received new recommendations Saturday from his top economic advisors on how to cope with the growing inflation that he considers the nation's "number-one domestic problem."

Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz provided options for the President after a high-level Washington meeting of administration economic experts. The energy shortage also was a topic.

Nixon was reviewing "a whole range of options," according to Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

Meanwhile, there was growing speculation that the President planned some form of tougher anti-inflation policies.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan said in New York Saturday night that Nixon would soon announce a new wage-price control program. Brennan indicated that a broad-based tax increase in combination with wage and price controls was being considered as a means to save the U.S. dollar. He said Nixon was "working out some formula now."

Warren said there would be no announcement on any economic measures over the weekend and he would not speculate on when Nixon might act.

Nixon is expected to remain in Florida until tonight. Nixon remained at his vacation compound carefully avoiding the appearance of an emergency in his administration over the economic situation and the Watergate scandal.

The President was said to be keeping in touch by phone with his economic high command in Washington. Nixon's acting press secretary, Gerald L.

Warren, said there were no plans to call any of them here.

Officials at the Florida White House and in Washington declined to provide any details regarding the economic strategy meeting, which lasted for several hours at the Treasury Department and was attended by the President's chief speech writer, Raymond Price, indicating Nixon would address the nation soon on some of the issues involved.

In Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is staying, a press spokesman said "there was no sense of crisis" in the advisors meeting. "They are reviewing the problems in a measured way."

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren declined to predict whether steps would be taken in the next few days.

He said one of the proposals the advisors were probably discussing was the advisability of a special tax on gasoline as a matter of economy and conserving fuel.

The President is known to have rejected one proposed tightening of the Phase 3 anti-inflation program that was recommended by his advisors, including Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz.

Shultz was reported to be disappointed that his recommendations had been rejected. Some sources interpreted that as meaning the President favored more drastic action than his key advisors could support.

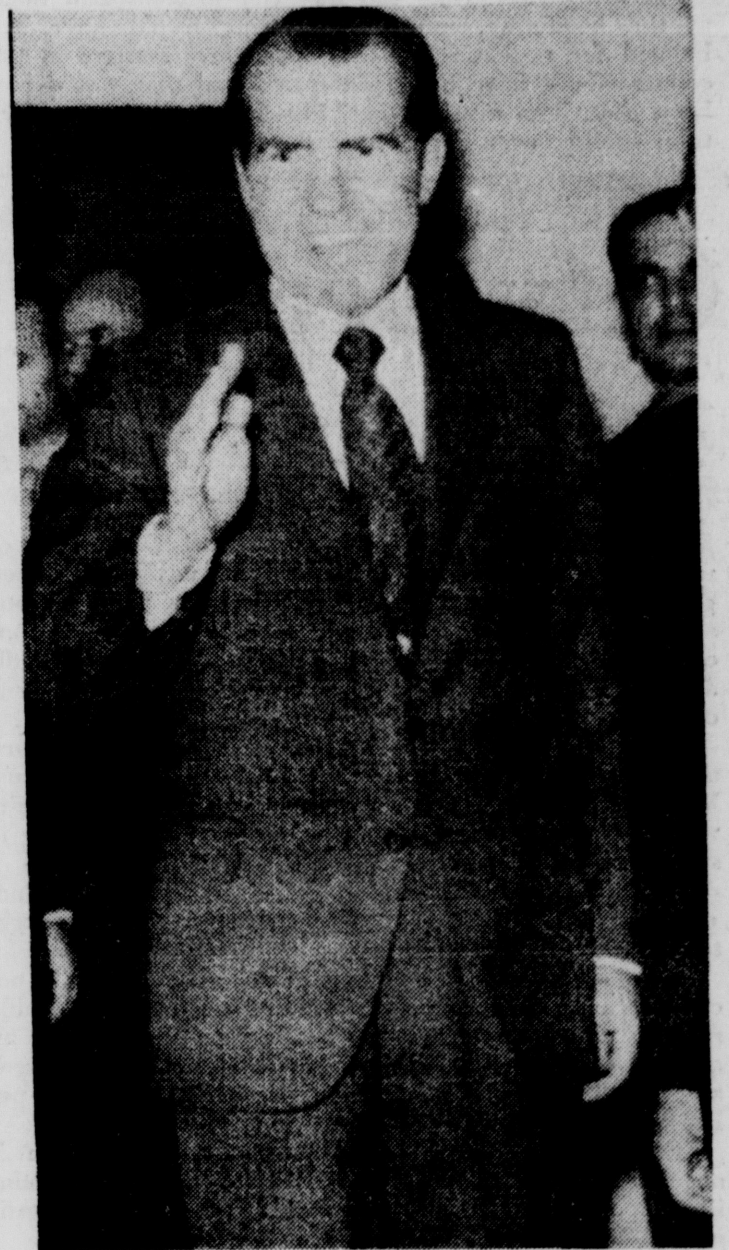

The feeling was widespread in the government that some new tightening of controls was essential after the government reported wholesale prices increased 2 per cent in May, the second largest monthly increase since the Korean War.

The White House spokesman indicated, however, that Nixon was not in a mood to be rushed by Congress into such a decision. He said he wanted to stay away from "deadlines," but would not rule out the possibility that some action would be taken before the Senate vote next Wednesday on Sen. Henry M. Jackson's amendment to force a return to mandatory controls.

Among those at the Washington meeting, directed by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, were former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally; Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns; Budget Director Roy Ash; Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors; John T. Dunlop, chairman of the Cost of Living Council; and Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon.

Warren said the discussion covered a range of possible options to deal with the economic situation and the deepening energy crisis. In Washington, a Treasury official said "I think you can assume that they're talking about the economy and what to do."

Bid U.S. Probe Oil Firms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High-ranking state law officers have called for an immediate federal probe of major oil companies in an effort to find out whether the so-called fuel crisis is merely an attempt to drive independent dealers out of business.

Officials from six states who have appeared before the Senate Judiciary Antitrust subcommittee called for a Justice Department investigation and questioned whether the large firms may have violated certain anti-trust laws.

The legal representatives said any probe would have to be done on a federal level because the task was beyond the capabilities of state agencies.

"The majors are seizing on the present crisis as a means of squeezing the little guy out of the market," said Massachusetts Attorney General Robert H. Quinn.

Other law enforcement officials who gave their views before the panel were New York Assistant Attorney General Charles A. La Torella Jr., North Carolina Attorney General

Robert Morgan, Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley, Attorney General Robert K. Killian of Connecticut and Daniel S. Dearing of Florida's Department of Legal Affairs.

State issues warning on gas shortages. See story on Page 3.

La Torella cited figures which he said did not support the oil firms contention that a massive fuel shortage exists.

He said that as of June 1, reserves in the U.S. totaled 202.5 million barrels. This compares with last year when stocks were 1.6 million to 9.6 million barrels less and no "crisis" existed.

"What shortage?" La Torella asked during the hearing.

The law enforcement officials were highly critical of alleged federal inaction in the energy crisis.

"The arrogant, let-the-public-be-damned attitude on the part of the federal government is a scandal," Killian said. "I hate to say that big oil is bigger than the United States government; but its favored treatment at the hands of our government certainly leads to that conclusion."

Morgan termed the shortage "a result of the combined collaboration of international oil companies with foreign governments."

Kelley said the public is being subjected to "clandestine regulations" by a few oil companies.

"There is no energy crisis," Dearing said. "There is a competition crisis."

All the officials said a federal investigation is needed because states lack the sufficient resources.

"It is outrageous to expect a single state to undertake, against a major national industry, a broad-scale, horizontal antitrust investigation and prosecution that is the statutory responsibility of federal agencies," Killian said.

He proposed creation of a joint federal-state task force to conduct the investigation and said the inquiry "particularly... should lead to prosecution of federal antitrust violations."

In a related development, the Treasury Department announced it would open hearings Monday to decide if the nation's major refineries is doing the job.

Longer Ulster DA Term Signed

By MATT SPIRENG

ALBANY — Two bills introduced by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.), including one altering the term of the Ulster County District Attorney, have been signed into law by Governor Nelson Rockefeller.

The second bill affects improvements at the Benedictine Hospital in Kingston.

The first measure lengthens the term of the district attorney from the present three years to four years.

Following the signing, the Woodstock Assemblyman hailed the Governor's action. "The signing of this measure into memory with the exception of governor takes effect in the district attorneys in New York City; who became full November of this year, when the Ulster County district attorney equal footing with his counterparts in the City of New York, and hopefully would allow the retention of highly qualified lawyers for this important post."

The bill was made possible by an amendment to the State Constitution which the voters approved in the 1972 general election.

Terms of district attorneys in three years makes the position more palatable.

The measure signed by the Assemblyman Bell said the law authorizes the New York State Dormitory Authority to construct and finance the replacement of old sections of the original hospital to comply with new higher standards. Clifford A. Henze, president of the Benedictine Board of Directors, had recommended and urged that the governor sign the bill, and had written Rockefeller to that effect.

The measure amends the section of the Public Authorities Law, by including Benedictine among those corporations authorized to carry out such programs.

Abandonment Favored for Catskill Mt. Branch

A Setback to Save Rail Line

By JON POWERS

WASHINGTON — The fight to save the Catskill Mountain Branch of the Penn Central Railroad received a major setback this week when an Interstate Commerce Commission judge ruled in favor of abandonment.

Administrative Law Judge William J. Gibbons of the ICC said that abandonment of the 84-mile line between Kingston and Bloomville in Delaware County is justified because of declining traffic and profits on the line in recent years, and because the cost of restoring the line to meet federal standards would be prohibitive.

Those opposed to the abandonment — businessmen, conservationists, historians and politicians from Ulster and Delaware Counties — may appeal Gibbons' ruling. They have 30 days to file exceptions to the ruling.

Harris Gordon of Woodstock, a transportation consultant from Woodstock who represented Ulster County concerns during an ICC hearing in December, said it is a "foregone conclusion" that exceptions will be filed.

If exceptions are not filed, or if exceptions are filed and the ICC upholds the judge's ruling, then the abandonment will be put into effect.

Joseph K. Harvey, manager of public relations for Penn Central, told The Freeman that, if the abandonment hearings last December in Central will have one year to tear up the tracks, and another million to restore the line to meet Federal Railroad Administration standards, Com-that some parties are still very interested in purchasing the line. The Catskill Center for Conservation and Development, railroad to adequately maintain in fact, is in the process of the line in recent years.

forming a corporation to buy Penn Central also cited the railroad.

Whoever does decide to buy the railroad can, no doubt, expect to haggle with Penn Central over the price. The bankrupt rail company agreed. He said it would estimate the scrap value of the line at about $600,000, but Penn Central to restore the line.

Harvey said the selling price would be closer to $1 million. Interested buyers have indicated they don't want to pay anything higher than the scrap value.

"Penn Central would naturally prefer to have someone buy the line and operate it themselves," said Harvey, "because once the tracks are torn up, they'll probably never be replaced."

Dog Disease Noted in Area

KINGSTON — Dog owners in this area have been urged by the State Health Department to take precautions to protect their pets from the apparently increasing incidence of heartworm disease in southeastern New York State.

Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, state health commissioner, said that as many as 25 per cent of dogs tested recently in Ulster, Westchester, Dutchess, Rockland and Putnam Counties showed traces of the disease.

The increased incidence of heartworm disease (also called Dirofilaria immitis) in the Ulster County area has prompted the Ulster County Veterinary Association to make the following general information available to the public:

"Heartworms are long (6-12 inches) white worms which as adults live in the heart and adjoining major vessels of the dog. These worms, if present in large enough numbers, will impair normal circulation which can lead to serious heart, lung, liver and kidney damage.

"Mildly infected dogs may show no signs of disease while more advanced cases will often exhibit coughing on exercise, difficult breathing, tiring easily and weight loss."

Until recently it was considered a tropical disease but has now become quite widespread in the United States, it was noted.

The disease is spread by the mosquito. Once the mosquito has bitten and infected a dog it can then infect other dogs that it bites or feeds upon by transmitting the very small, immature larval forms of the heartworms in the susceptible dog.

These larval forms continue to develop in the dog and after a few months arrive in the heart as adult heartworms.

All dogs are susceptible to heartworms but dogs that live out of doors are more vulnerable because of more mosquito exposure. Infected dogs can be the source of infection when mosquitoes are present.

Heartworm infection is normally detected by a veterinarian through a blood test. The blood is examined for the microscopic immature stage known as microfilaria.

If the test is positive, a veterinarian will discuss the treatment program. There are drugs available to prevent the infection and these may be recommended by the veterinarian in certain situations.

Annual examinations with a heartworm test is advised for all dogs. Early detection will significantly improve chances for recovery.

The heartworm is not a threat to humans.

Treasurer's Office Investigation... More Surprises

SURPRISE, SURPRISE—If the arrest of principal account clerk Jack Houghtaling on grand larceny charges is any indication, we're in for a lot of surprises in that investigation of the city treasurer's office.

One can almost see a pattern of bad to worse developing. Things started out with a "shortage" of some $2,500. Later, city officials allowed that the money was "missing." Still later they admitted that it was "stolen."

If things had gone the way city officials had hoped at the beginning, some minor clerk would have been bagged for pocketing the $2,500, a few changes in procedure would have been announced and that would have been that. The investigation, like Watergate at its inception, would never rise beyond the lowest echelon.

Democratic County Committee. For the first time in years, both sides, the liberals and conservatives agree on something. That something seems to be the column item we wrote last week about their differences and the fact that Tom Lyle was spokesman for the conservatives and Alex Nirenberg for the liberals. All agree that we were dead wrong.

It was quite a week for us what with howls of indignation from the left and howls from the right and a few from the center. Hell, it seems, hath no fury like a politician labeled.

Alex Nirenberg is not a long-haired liberal we were heatedly informed. Alex has "broad-based support" (isn't that the grandest expression?). Conservatives love Alex, moderates love Alex, and yes, maybe even a few liberals.

Tom Lyle is not a crewcut relic of the Stone Age. Liberals love Tom. Moderates love Tom, and yes, maybe even a few conservatives.

These two guys must be the greatest politicians in the world... all things to all people. Their party can only prosper under their leadership, regardless of who wins Friday night.

We shall now label both of them "moderate progressives." That should be safe enough.

COUNCIL CAPERS—Eddie Roux, the Ninth Ward humorist (although sometimes inadvertently) was at it again Tuesday night, this time at the expense of Bob Pritchard, the city's new planner.

The issue was a trip for Pritchard later this month to a seminar on special revenue sharing. Pritchard was in the audience—a rare sight indeed, a city official at a Common Council meeting—when the "fun" started.

The vote got around to Roux who proceeded to bemoan the fact that Pritchard had taken over the Council's meeting rooms at city hall and had covered the walls with maps of the city. Pete Mancuso, the majority leader, called a "point of order" on Roux, questioning the connection between Pritchard's trip and his office.

Curious, Council president Bob Gallo asked Roux to explain. Roux essentially repeated what he had said the first time, ending by pointing out that since Pritchard had hung his maps with masking tape, the walls would probably have to be repainted once the maps were taken down.

"Just what is the relevancy?" asked an exasperated Gallo to Roux who had obviously run out of gas.

"Bad planning!" yelled a voice from behind Roux who gratefully sat down.

Gallo accused Cliff Sinsabaugh of making the remark although it was not made clear whether Gippy was fingered for being out of order or for saving Roux.

They said it couldn't be done, but it looks like our city fathers may indeed be able to stall a final decision on the old city hall until after the November elections. Don Quick, usually a hardliner when it comes to vacant Historical structures, has given historical interests an extension on finding a new tenant/owner for the old wreck. Quick, chairman of the council's Laws and Rules Committee, has indicated that the city hall savers will have until winter begins. Winter begins in these parts around the end of November. Elections are held around the beginning...

No one can ever accuse our aldermen of not knowing how to save a buck. They voted to allow themselves to buy back their old desks and chairs for a mere $10. Bill Slover, a city detective, who runs an antique business on the side, valued the sets at $45, wholesale, $95 retail. One can only hope the aldermen will be as tight with the taxpayers' money when the mayor's budget comes down to them in January.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

The "minor clerk" investigators had their eyes on was Garry Stafford, hired by the city under the Emergency Employment Act last year; a new guy; an outsider. Stafford was supposed to crack under the pressure of intense police questioning. He didn't, and time, hardly a precious commodity at city hall, ran on toward the end of May.

The crunch came, from what we can gather, around the first weekend in June when District Attorney Frank Vogt let it be known that he was tired of hearing "we're working on it," and that he was thinking about calling in state auditors.

The investigators turned to lie detector tests on Monday, the 4th, and within 48 hours had arrested Houghtaling and Stafford.

The arrest of Houghtaling came as a "shock," not only because he was one of the most trusted and capable men in city government, but because his arrest came as a result of allegedly missing funds in an entirely different area. If the truth is to be known, the auditors and the police were just as shocked as the mayor.

Stafford's arrest, too, raised more questions than it answered. Police can only pinpoint about $800 of a "minimum" of $2,500 missing in that aspect of the investigation. Where, one might ask, is the "other $1,700?"

Indications are that the investigators and auditors may be able to get to the bottom of all this within the next two weeks when inquiries being sent out to taxpayers who paid in cash are returned and compared with the city's books. We look for a few more "surprises."

COUNTY DEMOS—Things may be picking up in the

County Dems Will Pick New Chairman on Friday

KINGSTON—There will be a contest too wide-based candidacy with also claims considerable support in the outlying districts. A former Senator Muskie delegate to the Democratic National Convention, he later worked in behalf of Sen. George McGovern.

Brown threw his hat into the ring in May saying that "Ulster County is wallowing in the depths of a deprived area as the arrogance of the Republican leadership is doing nothing to improve the conditions of all the citizens of this great country. With the proper leadership in the Democratic Party in Ulster County, great strides can be made in generally improving all conditions for all taxpayers and residents of this area," he said.

Congressman Reid is currently serving his sixth term in the U.S. House of Representatives.

First elected to Congress in 1962 as a Republican, he served on Education and Labor and Government Operations Committees. Through his work on the Select Subcommittee on Education, of which he became a ranking minority member, he played a role in shaping every major piece of education legislation of the 1960's. He was also particularly active in winning enactment of legislation to aid senior citizens. On the Government Operations Committee, he rose to ranking minority member of the Foreign Operations and Government Information and the Government Activities Subcommittees. In his service on Government Operations he became the principal architect of the Freedom of Information Act of 1968, which establishes the public's right of access to non-sensitive government information.

Reid created political headlines March 22, 1972, when he announced that he and his wife, Mary Louise, were changing their party registration and that he would run for reelection to his sixth term as a Democrat, although the majority of voters in Westchester County are registered Republicans. Challenged by one of the best vote getters in Westchester, Congressman Reid handily won reelection in November against a Republican sweep in the county.

Reid was assigned to the House Foreign Affairs Committee, where he serves on the Subcommittee on the Near East and South Asia, Europe and International Organizations and Movements.

Prior to his first election to Congress in 1962, Reid was editor and publisher of the New York Herald Tribune. President Eisenhower's Ambassador to Israel and a member of the cabinet of New York's Governor Nelson Rockefeller. He is an elder of the Rye Presbyterian Church. He served in World War II as a first lieutenant in the Parachute Infantry.

Kissinger Comes Home Lacking Pact

PARIS (UPI) — Henry Kissinger broke off his talks with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho Saturday and flew back to Washington for the weekend. He said he would return to Paris Tuesday to work out problems in wording a new formula to buttress the Vietnam peace agreement.

Kissinger's departure came as a surprise since U.S. officials Friday had confidently predicted that Saturday's meeting would be the last and that a new agreement would be forthcoming.

Asked about the predictions, Kissinger said: "American officials have sometimes been mistaken in their estimates of the length of time required to bring Vietnamese parties to a common realization of the significance of certain words."

Then, at a brief meeting with newsmen at Orly Airport, Kissinger quipped: "This is getting to be like a long-running play."

But Kissinger said his chief assistant, Ambassador William Sullivan, would meet in a "technical session" with Le Duc Tho's assistant, Nguyen Co Thach, on Monday at 4 p.m. (11 a.m. EDT.)

During the protracted peace negotiations before the Jan. 28 peace agreement was signed, Kissinger gave for his departure the euphemism for meetings to write the precise language of the agreement.

The official explanation Kissinger gave for his departure was the impending visit to Washington of Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev. "I am returning to Washington because the prepartions for the visit of General Secretary Brezhnev require my presence," Kissinger said.

Kissinger met for four hours and 35 minutes with Le Duc Tho at a suburban villa owned by the Communists. His plane left for Washington at 8:25 p.m. (3:25 p.m. EDT).

The atmosphere at the talks site, a Communist-owned villa in suburban Gif-Sur-Yvette, was relaxed and friendly before the meeting but grim and somber when it ended four hours and 35 minutes later.

There were few smiles and Kissinger waved only briefly as he drove out of the courtyard.

Following the American reports that a signing could come Saturday, French officials had hurriedly readied the Kleber Avenue conference center for a formal ceremony and press officers prepared newsmen's credentials for a signing.

There was no immediate indication whether Kissinger's counterpart, Le Duc Tho, would stay in Paris or return to Hanoi.

A spokesman at the North Vietnamese mission said: "All I can say is there will be another meeting Monday. If we have something to say about Mr. Tho's movements we will inform you."

He said he had no knowledge of reports that the Monday meeting between top aides William H. Sullivan and Nguyen Co Thach would decide whether Kissinger and Tho would meet again.

Fighting Flares in S. Viet

SAIGON (UPI) — Fighting flared across South Vietnam Saturday to the highest level in 3½ months, the Saigon command reported. The situation recalled the heavy fighting that preceded the signing of the Jan. 28 cease-fire agreement.

Military sources reported that a South Vietnamese helicopter was shot down by a Communist missile and the Saigon command reported a big battle 35 miles north of Saigon involving about 1,000 troops on each side.

South Vietnamese military sources said a Soviet-made SA7 "Strella" heat-seeking missile downed a South Vietnamese UH1 "Huey" utility helicopter near Cu Chi, 30 miles northwest of Saigon, Saturday. The helicopter was destroyed and all four crew members are missing, the sources said.

The Saigon command reported 166 Communist cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ended at noon. That was the highest number of violations reported by Saigon since Feb. 20, when 200 violations were reported.

Some of the worst fighting occurred only 35 miles north of Saigon. Both sides suffered a total of 82 casualties in a day-long battle Friday, the command said.

It said two South Vietnamese infantry battalions were attacked by at least an equal number of Communist troops—roughly 1,000 men on each side. Of these, 45 Communists and 11 South Vietnamese were reported killed and 26 infantrymen wounded.

The Communists used heavy weapons, a command spokesman said. South Vietnamese warplanes bombed and strafed Communist positions.

In Cambodia, Communist troops using gas and captured howitzers ambushed a government armored column pushing down Highway 4 about 15 miles southwest of Phnom Penh Saturday, field reports said.

The reports said five government soldiers including a lieutenant were killed, 15 wounded and 10 others incapacitated by the unidentified gas in the hour-long battle that started at midday about a mile from the district town of Ang Snoul.

There has been heavy fighting in the area all week.

None of the government armored personnel carriers was damaged in the fight. The reports said the government troops retreated back to the highway under cover of Cambodian air force T28 bombers and UA24 light armed reconnaissance planes. Further from the front line, U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom jets pounded suspected Communist reinforcement columns moving toward the battle scene from the south, reporters said.

Skylab Checks Resources

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts conducted their long-term survey of earth's resources Saturday, looking at corn fields in Nebraska, strip mining in Kentucky and searching for oil in Venezuela.

Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, free to use more power than any time before on their record-setting flight, aimed eight cameras and radiation sensors at the planet 272 miles below.

"We ought to be big in Nebraska this year," Weitz joked at the start of the 7,800-mile picture-taking run. "What we do is we apply this in a practical manner. We see how the corn crop is going to go, and from that you find out how the pheasant crop is going to be."

The astronauts, in the 16th day of their 28-day mission, trained a heat-seeking sensor at the corn fields to look for diseased areas. The diseased crops show on special film as a different color than healthy plants.

Researchers on the ground said the 28-minute pass from Washington State to Brazil was a success.

Eight Sputniks Go Up

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Saturday a new "shotgun" launch of eight unmanned sputniks into earth orbit aboard a single rocket.

Western military experts said such cluster-shots provide information for Soviet guided missile forces and could be part of the program to develop missiles with multiple warheads.

It was the sixth reported launch of eight Cosmos series satellites aboard one rocket since April, 1970. The last was on Nov. 1.

The Tass news agency said Cosmos 564 through 571 were launched Friday aboard one carrier rocket.

Tass gave no details of their mission other than that they carried scientific equipment "intended to continue the space exploration program."

Western intelligence sources say Cosmos sputniks include everything from orbiting bombs and spy satellites to weather watchers and communications stations.

Tass said the sputniks were put into a high orbit between 934 miles and 863 miles above the earth's surface. They circled the earth every 114.5 minutes at an angle to the equator of 74 degrees.

Western sources said the mechanics of a "shotgun" Cosmos launch are similar to that of a missile with several warheads.

State Issues Warning On Gas Shortages

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — An interdepartmental state task force warned Saturday that this August could see "very severe" shortages of gasoline in New York and much of the rest of the nation.

The task force predicted a gasoline shortage through the summer of 2 per cent to 5 per cent, which would create "no great hardships" if it were spread over the entire summer.

But if gasoline supplies are depleted through heavy consumption in the early part of the summer, that could lead to "very severe shortages in late August," the task force said.

Furthermore, the report warned, if oil companies try to meet the gasoline shortage by diverting fuel oil refineries to gasoline production, that could lead to a shortage of heating oil next winter.

The task force added that these shortages "are not the result of temporary problems" and said "the energy supply situation will probably deteriorate over the next few years."

The report was prepared by the state Interdepartmental Fuel and Energy Committee, which is staffed by experts from the Public Service Commission. It was made public by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's office.

It focused its attention on New York State, but drew on national statistics and therefore yielded warnings about energy problems in the nation as a whole.

Rockefeller suggested at the national governor's conference in Nevada last week that an interstate agreement be employed to reduce speed limits nationwide to 55 miles per hour, on the theory that lower speeds mean lower fuel consumption.

The proposal was not accepted at the conference.

Rockefeller's office said the governor "does not now favor" a unilateral imposition by New York of a 55-mile-an-hour speed limit and will wait to see what other states and the federal government do.

Madrid Shuffle Looms

MADRID (UPI) — In an emotional ceremony attended only by the Council of the Realm, Generalissimo Francisco Franco Saturday yielded part of his unchallenged power and swore in Adm. Luis Carrero Blanco as Spain's new prime minister.

Government sources said Carrero Blanco's first act would be to form a new cabinet. They said he would announce the new government Monday and that more than half of the present cabinet ministers would be replaced.

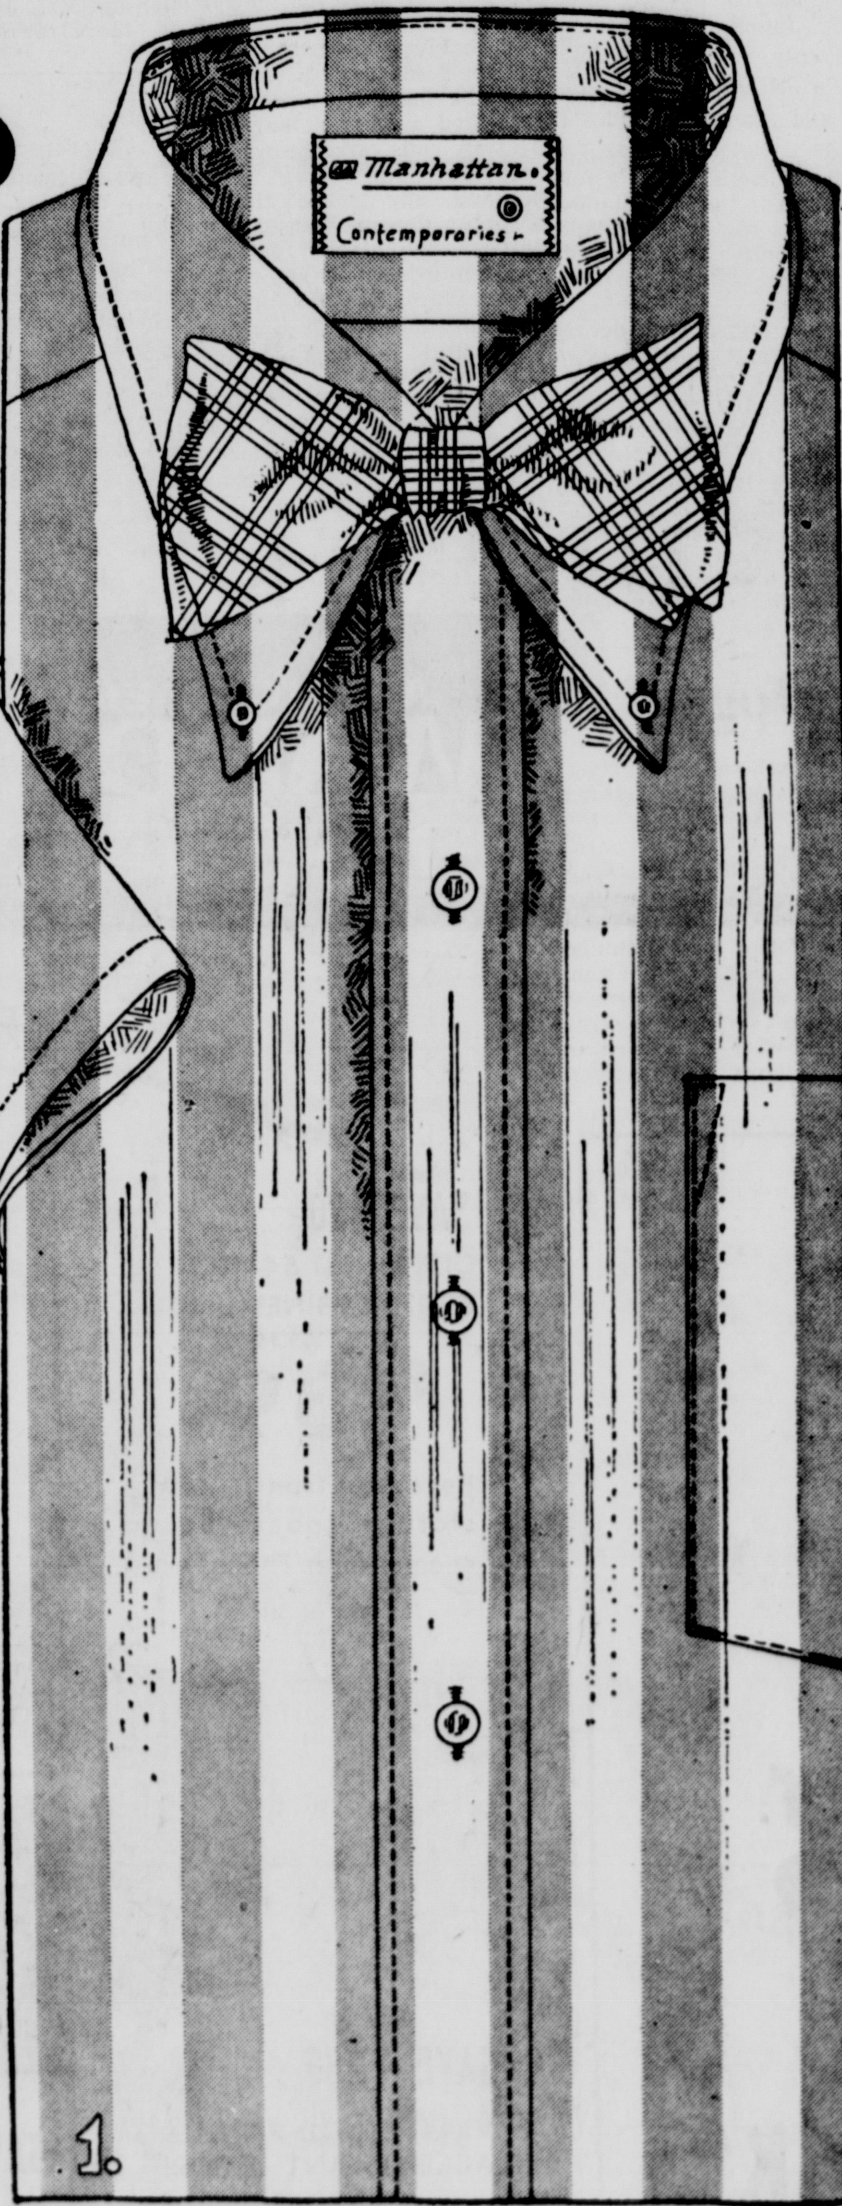

Carrero, a conservative and traditional navy man, has been Franco's confidant and No. 2 man for the past six years. He is expected to give added weight to conservative elements in the new government. Among the present cabinet ministers expected to be replaced are Foreign Minister Gregorio Lopez Bravo and Interior Minister Tomas Garicano.

A press spokesman for Franco's El Pardo residence, Lorenzo Sevilla, said the swearing in ceremony took only eight minutes. In addition to Franco and Carrero, who both wore their military uniforms, only the 17 members of the Council of the Realm were present.

Everyone displayed emotion, the spokesman said, "because Franco's confidant and No. 2 man for the past six years. He is expected to give added weight to conservative elements

New Cars Making Up Part of Energy Crisis

DETROIT (UPI) — New cars aren't winning many friends through their economy of operation.

Americans are buying more gasoline but enjoying it less as they make more frequent stops at the corner gas station to keep their new cars running. Slogans such as "50 is Thrifty" and "Slow Down, Save Gasoline" are the oil companies' way of saying there may not be enough gas to go around.

Emission controls on cars built after 1968 get most of the blame for the poor fuel economy, hard starts, stalling and lack of pickup. About half of the 92 million cars now on the road were built after 1968 and have some sort of pollution control device.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) says that contrary to popular belief, the emission controls are not the major cause of reduced mileage. But the major oil companies warn that strict air pollution standards in the next few years could boost gas consumption by another 40 per cent.

Both sides are correct as far as they go. Emission controls do result in poorer mileage per gallon, but so does the American love affair with large cars equipped with automatic transmission, large engines, power steering and air conditioning.

Whatever the cause, Americans have been led to one inescapable conclusion: New cars use more fuel than cars of 10 years ago.

Harold C. MacDonald, vice president for product development at Ford Motor Co., describes stricter emission controls and additional weight as a "one-two" punch affecting economy and performance on 1973 models.

The average 1973 model standard-size sedan weighs about 4,275 pounds compared with a comparably equipped 1965 model—small V-8 engine, automatic transmission, power steering and power brakes—that weighed 3,550 pounds.

The average driver in 1965 could expect 15 miles to the gallon in normal driving situations—a combination of city and suburban driving at varying speeds. That same car in 1973 probably has air conditioning, additional weight from safety equipment and emission control devices that include exhaust gas recirculation to reduce oxides of nitrogen. Ford says its tests place mileage at about 12 miles per gallon.

"From what we read and hear," MacDonald said, "many new car owners are getting even poorer mileage."

One Detroit owner of a 1973 Lincoln Continental complained recently that he gets only 3.7 miles per gallon—about 75 miles to a tank of gasoline.

"It means that the low fuel light is on practically all the times," he said. "It is fearsome to watch that gas needle drop. I've never seen anything like it."

In a study of 2,000 cars, the EPA said that the fuel economy loss for 1973 vehicles caused by pollution control systems is less than 7 per cent as compared to uncontrolled pre-1968 models. The fuel economy loss through air conditioning averages about 9 per cent, and can run as high as 20 per cent on a hot day in urban traffic. The loss because of automatic transmission is about 6 per cent.

But the fuel loss caused by emission control devices, which by 1975 may cost the American car buyer another $300 per auto, gets the most attention. The reason—the shortage of gasoline.

"The fuel crisis overshadows much of what we do today in the automotive industry," MacDonald said. "We've been searching for ways to reduce emissions in our engines for some time. Only in the past few years, however, have we come to realize that you can't talk cleaner air without looking critically at the effects on fuel economy."

"It quickly becomes an academic matter how clean we can get our engines to run if we haven't got the fuel to run them in the first place."

The major oil companies have launched expensive advertising campaigns—not to sell their gasoline, but to tell drivers how to save fuel. Johnny Cash no longer sings the praises of the Amoco Oil Co., but instead solemnly explains of the impending fuel shortage.

"If every American used just one gallon of gasoline less every week, there wouldn't be a shortage," says Amoco which wants Americans to change their habits and join car pools, slow down and even sometimes walk.

Mobil engineers say you can save one gallon in seven by driving at 50 miles per hour, instead of at 60 m.p.h.

The Gallup Poll

Nixon Low Point

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J.

President Nixon's popularity is at the lowest ebb to date, having declined 24 percentage points from a high in late January following the Vietnam peace settlement.

The rate of decline, however, has leveled off, with the latest figure — 44 per cent approval — representing virtually no change from the previous measurement of 45 per cent recorded a week earlier.

Despite Nixon's plummeting popularity over the last three-and-one-half months, a large majority of rank-and-file Republicans (three out of every four) currently give the President a vote of confidence. In addition, Nixon's decline in approval since January has been less pronounced among Republicans than among Democrats or independents.

In sharp contrast to the views of Republicans, only one Democrat in every four at present approves of the way President Nixon is handling his job.

It is interesting to note that during a period of popularity troubles, Nixon has been more successful than was President Johnson in retaining the support of rank-and-file members of his own party.

While 73 per cent of Republicans currently approve of Nixon's performance in office, only 48 per cent of Democrats gave Johnson a vote of confidence when his national popularity was at a low point (35 per cent) in August 1968.

The table below shows the change in Nixon's popularity between last January and today — nationally and one the basis of party affiliation:

	App. Late Jan.	App. Latest Chg. Pct.	Pt. Pct.
NATIONWIDE	68	44	24
Republicans	89	73	16
Democrats	51	27	24
Independents	72	43	29

As in previous measurements, approval of Nixon's performance is lowest in the East — the most Democratic region of the nation. Also consistent with earlier findings, the South is the region where Nixon receives his greatest vote of confidence, as seen in the following table:

	App. Late Jan.	App. Latest Chg. Pct.	Pt. Pct.
East	64	38	26
Midwest	65	46	19
South	73	51	22
West	64	41	23

In terms of educational background, the most precipitous drop in approval since January has been recorded among persons whose education has been limited to grade school, as seen in the table below:

	App. Late Jan.	App. Latest Chg. Pct.	Pt. Pct.
College	64	51	13
High school	70	45	25
Grade school	63	36	27

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 10, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON—Two congressmen, whom we have accused of irregularities that seemed like illegalities to us, may wind up in court after all.
The U.S. attorney's office here in Washington is quietly working up cases against Rep. James Collins, R-Tex., the dapper Dallas millionaire, and ex-Rep. J. Irving Whalley, R-Pa., the banker, churchman and former U.N. delegate.
We accused both men of chiseling petty sums from their help. Our previous stories about kickbacks brought convictions against four congressmen, but the Justice Department seemed uninterested in prosecuting Collins and Whalley.

In the Collins case, for example, the Justice Department convicted not Collins but his 34-year-old former assistant, George Haag, for arranging the kickbacks. Yet Collins admitted to us during our original investigation that he was fully aware of the kickback arrangement.

Subsequently, we quoted excerpts from Collins' private papers which indicated he was trying to manipulate the FBI investigation. It is this angle that the U.S. attorney's office is now pursuing. A federal grand jury will decide whether Collins should be indicted for obstructing justice.

In the Whalley case, Pittsburgh's U.S. Attorney Richard Thornburgh recommended prosecution based on a painstaking year-long FBI investigation. The case has now been submitted to the U.S. attorney in Washington for possible indictment.

In the wake of Watergate, the Justice Department suddenly has shown more interest in prosecuting prominent Republicans.

BLOOD MONEY: Hundreds of hungry Haitians, the western hemisphere's poorest people, lined up on the Port-au-Prince waterfront day after day last year to sell their blood. Each donor was paid three dollars and a bottle of soda pop for a donation of blood plasma. The American promoters rang up a larger profit, estimated between $500,000 and $1 million for the year.

Eventually, the daily blood letting attracted unfavorable press notice. This upset Haiti's Jean-Claude Duvalier, at 21 the world's youngest president, known to his subjects as "Baby Doc," who has been striving to give his impoverished little country a better image.

He, therefore, cancelled the 10-year contract with the American firm, Hemo-Caribbean, and dismissed his defense minister, Luckner Cambronne, for taking kickbacks from the blood donors. The last word out of Port-au-Prince was that Hemo-Caribbean had closed down and Cambronne had fled the country.

But ever so quietly, Hemo-Caribbean has changed its name to Life Services and has hired a powerful Washington law firm to pull political strings. The firms' Joe Sharlitt and Milton Barall recently arranged a quiet luncheon on Capitol Hill.

Meeting Held
They sat Haiti's Foreign Minister Adrien Raymond and Ambassador Rene Chalmers down with Chairman Dante Fascell, D-Fla., of the House Subcommittee on Inter-American Relations. Also present was U.S. delegate Walter Fauntroy, a black leader, whose appearance presumably was intended to impress Haiti's own black leaders.

Both Fascell and Fauntroy denied they had attended the luncheon to help Hemo-Caribbean get back into the blood business in Haiti. But unknown to them, Sharlitt followed up the luncheon meeting with a letter to the Haitian ambassador, suggesting that praise would be arranged in Congress for Haiti if the blood operation were resumed.

"After an appropriate interval of time following reopening," wrote Sharlitt, "we will instruct our counselors to endeavor to secure mention on the floor of our Congress of the final success in resolving a dispute that arose between a private American firm and the Haitian Government. . . .
"It is our belief that if the Hemo-Caribbean plants are reopened, such a statement can be secured. The impact of such a statement on potential U.S. investors in Haiti would be most salutary."

P. R. Promise
Sharlitt also promised to launch a massive public relations program, run by experts, to promote U.S. investments in Haiti and "prevent adverse publicity." The public relations experts, suggested Sharlitt, would "seek to identify the origin of attacks (against the blood program), most probably the political opposition to the Government."

Later, Sharlitt traveled to Haiti for a personal meeting with Finance Minister Edward Francisque. The lawyer delivered a letter of introduction from his partner, Milton Barall, who used to be U.S. deputy chief of mission in Haiti.

The letter, written on Barall's own stationery, was contained in an envelope stamped "Official Business, the Organization of American States." Barall told us he occasionally consulted for OAS and "absentmindedly" put the letter in an OAS envelope.

Oh yes, the American promoters also offered to increase the price they will pay for blood plasma to four dollars — plus the customary soda pop.

The Appearance of Detente

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.
The Senate, under the domination of Senator Fulbright's Foreign Relations Committee, has voted to amputate a couple of limbs from the United States Information Agency and perhaps even the agency's heart. The 31-million dollar cut means drastic reduction of USIA activities and means that the great transmitter in the South Pacific scheduled to disseminate a breath of news and truth to mainland China is — cancelled. Why? Relations Committees' report advises us, the USIA is a "cold war anachronism."

We are to suppose then that it is an anachronism for the United States to make the effort to disseminate the news of the world in corners of the world that do not otherwise get such news. It is unclear how a cold war can end as the result of a unilateral resolution of one party to end it. The Soviet Union continues to jam the Voice of America, at a cost to the Soviet Union in excess of our own cost in transmitting. We have the testimony of refugees from the tyranny of the Soviet Union that they get such news as they have of the outside world from the Voice of America (and its ancillary network, and from the BBC. Out of a combination of fatigue and funk it is now proposed that we withdraw the only hand of friendship one is in a position to extend to a captive people.

Senator Henry Jackson, in a remarkable address at Yeshiva University, eloquently challenged the assumption that detente is what happens when the United States cease to stand by the cause of human freedom, and to guard against possible attempts to export tyranny.

"The greatest mistake of the western world" during the thirties, said Jackson, "was the failure of Britain and France and America to heed the warnings of Winston Churchill and to stand, firm and early, for the defense of individual liberty." As a result of that failure we went on to "the holocaust" — which "is the central political experience of our time."

"We will have moved from the appearance to the reality of detente," Senator Jackson said, "when East Europeans can freely visit the West, when Soviet students in significant numbers — not the 25 who are here now — can come to American universities, and when American students in significant numbers can study in Russia. When reading the Western press and listening to Western broadcasts is no longer an act of treason, when families can be reunited across national borders, when emigration is free — then we shall have a genuine detente between peoples and not a formula between governments for capitulation on the issue of human rights."

Senator Jackson was concrete on the nature of detente, U.S. style. He calls into question the general notion that President Nixon has ideally conducted our foreign policy by the use of "quiet diplomacy." "We have seen that sort of 'quiet diplomacy' before. It got us a grain deal in which the Russians purchased cheap wheat subsidized to the tune of $300 million by the American taxpayer. It got us a strategic arms limitation agreement in which the Soviets obtained a three-to-two advantage in land and sea-based missiles. It got us a new wave of repression and trials following the Moscow summit. It got us the infamous education ransom. It brought about the appearance of detente and the reality of an even lower Soviet tolerance of individual liberty."

But last week all that

Senator Fulbright could get excited about was — Greece; because Greece, a middle-class, middle-level, pastoral despotism got rid of an exiled king. On March 25, 1964, Senator Fulbright advised the Senate that "insofar as a nation is content to practice its doctrines within its own frontiers, that nation, however repugnant its ideology, is one with which we have no proper quarrel."

Greece's doctrines are hardly designed for export. The Soviet Union's bind down not alone its own nationals, but a tier of countries to the west. And the gallant response of the United States Senate is: pull back on the USIA. There is a cruel psychological justification to it. If we cooperated completely with the People's Republic of China, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in sealing those areas hermetically against any fugitive penetration of truth, we would seal out such irritating pollen as inhumanity and the spirit of the Solzhenitsyns; and the slaves, along with Senator Fulbright, would be more contented. Senator Fulbright could then exercise his moral conscience by giving stirring speeches against Colonel Papadopolous.

Inside Report

Magruder to Shoulder the Blame

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Contrary to widespread expectations here that he might implicate his superiors still deeper in the Watergate scandal, former Nixon political aide Jeb Stuart Magruder will give the White House no trouble at all in his sworn public testimony, according to present plan.

Both Magruder's own private interviews with federal investigators, in which he has admitted perjury in earlier testimony, and his attorney's confidential preview of his forthcoming testimony to the Ervin committee point to one conclusion: Magruder, the slavishly loyal Nixon lieutenant, now intends to blame himself for illegal political espionage. "I would say," a high Senate source told us, "that his superiors have nothing to worry about."

This becomes particularly important in light of the decision of ex-White House counsel John Dean to tell all — even if he does not get the immunity from prosecution he has been bargaining for all spring. The two top former Nixon aides, H. R. (Bob) Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, have clearly decided to rebut Dean at every point, backed by public pronouncements out of the Oval Office.

The course that Magruder now intends to follow betrays the Nixon-Haldeman-Ehrlichman position and isolates Dean. With the White House denying Dean the documents he claims are necessary, President Nixon's supporters hope to destroy his credibility about the 40-plus meetings he tells investigators he had with Mr. Nixon this year.

All this bears an uncanny resemblance to power alignments of happier days. Dean was a White House agent of then Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and as such a key actor in Mitchell's continuing power struggle with the White House staff. But Magruder was Haldeman's protégé, placed at the Committee to Reelect the President (CRP) as acting director to safeguard Haldeman's interests against Mitchell, the future campaign director. Mitchell tried to undercut Magruder there, but Magruder was protected by Haldeman.

The pattern persists. According to lawyers close to the case, Mitchell has told investigators that he gave no espionage instructions to Magruder but adds that Haldeman probably did. Dean is still hoping for corroboration from Mitchell on the witness stand, though both Mitchell's credibility and predictability are clouded by recent erratic behavior.

When U.S. Atty. Harold H. Titus, Jr., announced May 24 that a key figure in the Watergate case — later identified as Magruder — had agreed to plead guilty and testify as a prosecution witness, it was assumed that meant trouble for Magruder's bosses. The ingratiating Magruder humbly told friends that he was willing to tell the truth, take his punishment and then start a new life.

But that obviously did not mean implicating his superiors. According to government and Senate sources, Magruder is saying that he inferred too much from broad directions given him by the White House. The blame, he is expected to testify, is his.

That is obviously the best of news for Ehrlichman and Haldeman, who are simply denying everything and admitting nothing — not taking the Fifth Amendment, not claiming executive privilege, not seeking immunity. Their denials and the strategy to discredit Dean have clearly become key points of the Nixon defense strategy.

Simultaneously, Dean is suddenly finding trouble getting the documents he contends will back up his charges. The White House refuses to release the President's daily schedule logs which Dean says would document his claim of frequent 1973 meetings with Mr. Nixon. Dean also has told investigators that Mr. Nixon scribbled Watergate comments in the margins of his daily news summaries, but any effort to subpoena those records almost surely will be rebuffed.

Finally, Dean claims he cannot even get access to his own files, stored in the basement of the Executive Office Building. According to his account, he was denied access last Saturday to his own chronologies which he says could substantiate his testimony.

Nevertheless, the White House position is shaky. Without testimony from either Dean or Magruder, Ehrlichman and Haldeman are still likely to be indicted. The fact that Dean's leads to prosecutors have so far proved quite accurate means his testimony may well severely damage the President and his top aides even without substantiation by other witnesses and documents.

Against this background comes Jeb Magruder's confrontation with the Ervin committee — probably next week — as the highest level Nixon operative yet to testify. Unless his lawyer's preview proves wholly false, it will be a day to testimony bringing some sighs of relief at the White House.

Circus Fan

Editor, The Freeman:
This evening we went to the circus.

For many, the nostalgia, the old fashioned excitement of "the circus coming to town" is the memory land of (when there was no TV to anecdote the excitement) an era where the pages of the story books came alive with elephants, jugglers, trapeze artists and of course CHILDREN.

That mystique may no longer be with us BUT the children, the rosey cheeks, the mystified eyes as the tightrope walker — 3 artists high — crossed the wire, is still very much alive.

Thank you Kiwanis Club for bringing the Circus to town and for giving us the opportunity to share and enjoy our children's pleasure.

Maybe the TV one day will bring forth that mystifying energy that the circus does with our children.

Thank you,
Philip Gurrieri

School Vote

Editor, The Freeman:

How is your child doing in school? The chances are he's doing fine and you can well be proud of him and thankful to his teachers. But there are many children who aren't doing well. For reasons which are too lengthy to pursue in this limited space they are finding the learning experience not at this time in their young life. They need special help.

In the Saugerties Central School System there are an estimated 85 children in this category. Under the proposed budget money has been allocated for only 20 out of the 85. This means that 65 children with learning difficulties are sitting in regular classes which is harmful to them because they are not receiving the special attention they require and unfair to the other student who might well progress faster if their teacher were able to devote full time to them. Many of these children with learning or emotional difficulties are potentially gifted students and in smaller classes with specially trained teachers they stand a good chance to eventually become high achievers. Without this attention, however, they may never gain the self esteem which is so essential to personal fulfillment.

I urge the voters to vote for this special option at the polls on election day. It would add a meager $2.50 to the tax rate. This issue plus the election of qualified candidates to the Board of Education makes this the most important election in the history of the Saugerties Central School System.

Sincerely,
Wesley Maxwell

Sense of History

Editor, The Freeman:
Your story on the Dewitt House at 20 John Street, under date of May 31st, created much public interest judging by a great many telephone calls from interested citizens.

It inevitably reminded me of a column in the NEW YORK TIMES about a year ago by Ada Louise Huxtable, the noted and knowledgeable architectural critic:

"This is the story of the drive-in teller.

Bankers all think he's a very nice fellow.

So send in the bulldozer, knock down the past.

Build a kind-of-colonial replica fast.

Drive up, right onto the village green.

Its service, it's progress, it's part of the scene.

Whizz by on wheels, just leave your bread:

Long lives the small town, the small town is dead."

"And it's not happening just here and there. It's not the odd small town or the aberrant banker. It's an epidemic. To Main Street everywhere, the drive-in banks come. To the New England Village, the upstate town, the places that stand for history, beauty and amenity.

They come, ruining the patrimony and the scenery over the protests of the people who live there. Your friendly banker knows best."

In quoting a letter of protest to a bank in New England by citizens who felt a demolition was not in the best interests of the town, she continued:

"Our directors would be subject to severe criticism by the shareholders for the subjecting of an asset of the bank in that it would represent an action by the directors of our bank in violation of the trust and confidence placed in them by our shareholders."

"No mention, of course, of the trust or confidence of ordinary citizens, of disruption or mutilation of the town's historic character or the violation of its heritage. No recognition of the fact that the shareholders' profit would be the town's permanent loss. They left something out when they made bankers. Call it, kindly, Bankers' Mental Block."

"... in Altamont, N.Y., the script is the same, and the story has already ended in demolition. In this case, The National Commercial Bank and Trust Company, whose many branches are now known, in friendly fashion, as The Bank, bought a corner property on Main and Park Streets and proposed to demolish a large frame, Victorian house to build, guess what? — a branch with a drive-in window.

"Interested citizens began to ask questions. Why introduce a drive-in teller into what had been and should logically remain a pedestrian area? Why should a house that was a key to the architectural character of the street and town be sacrificed? The then mayor held off The Bank's project pending completion of a master plan.

A new mayor and new administration proved more amenable."

"... A referendum was conducted by some of the town's young people (the young, surprisingly, care about the past and find "progress" suspect) and 70 per cent of the residents queried were found to be against The Bank's demolition plans. A telegram was sent to The Bank, so stating. A few hours later, The Bank sent the bulldozers in. There will be a drive-in teller by the village green."

Of course, the City of Kingston is much more fortunate than most small cities. Most of our banks are highly conscious of the priceless heritage of our past. In contrast, the Heritage Savings Bank tore down a very mediocre apartment-row and, at much expense, created a beautifully landscaped parking lot designed to harmonize with the city's architectural environment. The Ulster Savings Bank took the same course on Fair Street. The Savings and Loan of Kingston redesigned a new building on Wall Street several years ago to blend in with traditional Kingston architecture of the past. And the Heritage Savings Bank purchased the almost three-century-old stone house on Green Street next to their parking lot and are about to embark upon restoration to the period of its original construction.

None of them can be accused of 'Bankers' Mental Block'! Let us count our blessings — and recognize from whence they flow.

The article concludes "the fate of the building (20 John Street) apparently lies in the hands of Quick's Laws and Rules Committee." This is heartening, since Don Quick during a radio news interview on Saturday (in connection with a building he hopes to acquire on Green Street) noted that he would make alterations in a "colonial style." There is recognition, evidently, that the philosophies of the Historic Landmarks Preservation Commission are in the best public interests and welfare of the City of Kingston and its citizens. It is heartening that a powerful member of city government, in fact, from the chairman of the committee which supposedly handles by choice the efforts of the Commission.

Incidentally, in connection with a mistaken belief on the age of the DeWitt House, let us refer to page 115 in "The History of Kingston, Rondout and Vicinity" authored by William DeWitt, a deceased prominent citizen of Kingston and an ex-City Historian:

"Across the street... stands the Macauley-Ingraham homestead at 20 John Street, now the home of this author and his wife, Jesse Dyer DeWitt. The Macauleys were an old family and occupied this house in 1836."

Seeking Support

Editor, The Freeman:

As June 13th, the day of the election of school board members in Saugerties draws near, there are many issues which are of vital importance to the residents of our community. Some would have us believe that the retention of Dr. Arnold as an employee should be paramount. This is contrary to my thoughts. Although I am concerned for Dr. Arnold as an individual, my main concern is for the 4700 students in our school system.

When first elected as a trustee to the Saugerties Board of Education three years ago, my first reaction was one of pride that the people of our community had placed their faith in me. It was my desire then, and it is today, that as a trustee my actions would be such that the Board would re-assume the authority vested in it by law and become responsive to the feelings, thoughts and needs of the parents of Saugerties.

I believe that some of these desires have been realized. The old policy prohibiting board members from serving on committees has been abolished. Today committees such as Buildings and Grounds, Transportation, Budget, Personnel, Curriculum, and Student Activities are chaired by board members who make recommendations to the entire board based from the knowledge gained from educators and parents. In addition, board meetings are now being held in the various elementary schools in our district in order that residents have an easier access to them. The development of the Agenda for these meetings is no longer the sole responsibility of the Superintendent. It has been placed in the hands of the Clerk appointed by the Board of Education and any concerned taxpayer has the right to be heard. The Agenda for these meetings is available to the public and the full text of the Minutes distributed to the news media.

The big issues should be: Is there greater communication with and responsiveness to community needs? Are we providing the best educational program possible within our ability to pay? Has the strife and division among the members of our staff which was so evident several years ago diminished? The answers to these questions should determine the community support for my re-election.

Whether or not one man was willing to work cooperatively with the new board is not the issue. The actions taken unanimously by the board a year ago this month are those which I supported then and do today. The legality of our decision has been upheld recently by the Supreme Court of New York State.

Working with the children, parents, teachers and administrators in our district has been a satisfying experience. I am grateful for the support you have given me in the past. If it is the wish of the majority of parents on June 13th, that I serve another three year term, I will devote the same energy and time that I have done in the past.

Sincerely yours,
PHILIP MEADE
Saugerties

Ex-Area Inmate Suing State

Martin Sostre, an inmate in the Clinton Correctional Facility at Dannemora and a former inmate at the Walkkill Correctional Facility in Ulster County, N. Y., is suing the State of New York for $70,000 in damages for what Sostre alleges to be cruel and inhuman treatment, physical and mental cruelty and violation of his constitutional rights.

The suit, filed last week in the northern district of the U.S. District Court, charges that prison officials have kept Sostre in solitary confinement for the past seven months because he has refused to shave a mustache and a 1/4 inch beard he has had since 1967, and refused to submit to numerous requests for strip searches and rectal examinations.

Sostre charges that officials at various prisons in the state have systematically obstructed or delayed his mail and denied him access to literature, Sostre has been at Clinton since Dec. 19, 1972. He had previously been an inmate at Auburn, Walkkill and Attica prisons.

In addition, the suit states that prior to a recent habeas corpus hearing in U.S. District Court in Buffalo seven guards at the Clinton facility assaulted him and forcibly performed a rectal examination on him.

A spokeswoman for the Martin Sostre Defense Committee in Buffalo said Sostre was treated for bruises on the area of his back, groin and pelvic areas when he was in Buffalo May 30 in connection with the hearing.

The hearing was the latest action in Sostre's appeal of his 1968 conviction for possession and sale of dangerous drugs and second-degree assault charges.

At the hearing Arto Williams, the prosecution's key witness against Sostre, admitted he gave perjured testimony during Sostre's 1968 trial.

The suit seeks $50,000 in compensatory damages and $20,000 in exemplary damages.

UNITED JEWISH APPEAL—Members of the Ulster County Jewish Community met Friday at the Holiday Inn to hear Daniel Pinkas of Israel, who served as advisor to prime minister Ben Gurion speak concerning the United Jewish Welfare Drive which hopes to raise $100,000 locally and about a half billion nationally. The funds are needed to help alleviate the economic impact on Israel caused by the sudden immigration of Jews from Russia to Israel. About 100,000 have immigrated in the past few years and it is hoped even more Jews will come. ## Commuter Train Mishap Claims Life of Passenger

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y.—A commuter train collision that killed one passenger and injured 140 was attributed Saturday to "man failure" by a spokesman for the Penn Central Railroad.

The spokesman, Robert Benish, declined to elaborate pending completion of several investigations.

"We can't make any accusations or allegations until all the facts are in," Benish said.

A crowded express rammed the rear of a local train which was discharging passengers at the station in this northern suburb of New York on Friday evening.

Several passengers on the front car of the express said the motorman ran out of his compartment just before the crash and shouted: "Get back! We're going to crash! The brakes are gone!"

However, Benish said it was not mechanical failure which caused the accident.

WEST SAUGERTIES
A New York City man who maintains a summer home on Kate Yager Road was frustrated once again Saturday by another seemingly meaningless burglar of his home here.

Frank Pisseri reported to Saugerties Town Police Saturday morning that his home at the end of this rural road had been entered and minor articles taken.

This is reportedly the third or fourth time this has occurred, and what makes it more strange is the fact that some of the items missing in a burglary a month ago were found in Pisseri's back yard under plastic cloth.

Investigation by Town Police showed that entry had been gained through the window.

Free Rides For Seniors Proposed
William B. Merrill, Kingston Republican majority candidate, today proposed that the city give consideration to "easing the hot summer months ahead" for senior citizens.

Pointing out that many Kingstonians over the age of 65 are hard-pressed financially, he suggests that they be allowed to ride the city buses free of charge.

"Walking when the temperature and humidity are very high is uncomfortable for anyone, but in the case of our elderly citizens it can be very weakening physically. Free bus rides for them would be humanitarian and would ease their financial burdens as well," said Merrill who went on to point out that his proposal would incur no additional cost to the city.

That the current contract with the bus operator is in effect until March 1974.

"Our senior citizens have contributed so much to Kingston. This is a small but important service we can and should render to them, and if successful should be continued on a yearly basis," Merrill concluded.

Driver Killed In Accident
CLIFTON PARK, N.Y. (UPI)—One person was killed and another hospitalized Saturday when their car crashed through guard rails along Route 87, the Adirondack Parkway, and traveled more than 800 feet before hitting a tree, state police said.

Troopers said David A. Racht, 18, of Schenectady, the driver, was pronounced dead at the scene. The passenger, Bradley K. Brush, 19, also of Schenectady, suffered two broken legs and facial cuts and was taken to the Albany Medical Center Hospital, troopers said.

Both persons were ejected from the auto, troopers said, and Brush apparently crawled back to the highway for help.

State Tax Head Leaving Post

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Norman Gallman, a genial public relations man who rose to commissioner of the State Tax Department, is retiring in July.

"I'm going trout fishing for a month or so and I'm going to sit around the house," said Gallman, 63. After that, he said he would work part-time as a public relations consultant "in areas unrelated to taxes or to the state."

Gallman said he had been trying to resign for a year because of pressures from his wife and the chore of driving 180 miles a day to Albany from his home at Schroeve Lake.

His resignation from the $42,475 a year job was announced by the governor's office Saturday.

Gallman, a native of Wells, N.Y., worked as a reporter and editor on the Allegany County Democrat, the Hornell Tribune, and the Wellsville Daily Reporter newspapers before entering state employment.

Starting as publications editor with the State Tax Department in 1939, he became public relations director in 1943. He was appointed deputy commissioner in 1959 and commissioner in 1971.

Gallman and his wife have two children.

'Special' Autopsy for Getty's Son

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The executive died under mysterious circumstances from an overdose of drugs and alcohol. Whether the death of George F. Getty II will be ruled a "psychological autopsy," "accidental or a suicide" will be left up to a team of pathologists and psychologists who are conducting what coroner Thomas Noguchi calls a "psychological autopsy."

The executive of the Getty Oil Co. was found in a coma at his hillside home early Wednesday and he died about 15 hours later.

Getty's family rushed him to Queen of Angels Hospital and had him admitted under an assumed name. When his death was first announced it was attributed to an apparent brain hemorrhage.

But the coroner's office said the autopsy revealed no signs of that or a heart attack.

Police at first launched an investigation into the Getty death because of a puncture wound, apparent bruises on the body and other "unusual circumstances."

TOWN OF ULSTER
In a feature story in Thursday's Daily Freeman on new ferro-cement techniques developed by Ulster Marine, Inc., it was inaccurately reported that a "rotting 40-foot hull" was refurbished with a cement coat.

The owner of the 40-foot Nova Scotia fisherman, Clyde Churchwell of Wawarsing, noted that the boat's hull is in excellent condition, and that the ferro-cement coating was applied only to avoid the 50 to 75 hours of yearly maintenance required to caulk the seams and otherwise prepare the boat for Springtime launchings.

Churchwell, who lives aboard the boat, said the wood was not rotting and that no planks were removed prior to the cement coating. Officials at Ulster Marine, Inc. concurred with that evaluation.

County School District Balloting

Boards, Budgets Up for Votes

By WADE BURKHART

ULSTER COUNTY

All candidates have filed their nominating petitions, and the balloting is now set for those Ulster County school districts with June voting.

In Saugerties, nine candidates have filed for the three seats available on the school board, including the three incumbents now holding the seats. Board vice president Thomas Macarilli, and board members John O'Rourke and Philip Meade have all filed petitions for their reelection. Also filing are former board member Edwin Olson, Ralph Childers, Perry Quillen, Mrs. Joan Pawlus, Joseph Ellis, and Ray Fuller. All the seats are for three years.

The district's budget is up $384,096.75 from the present budget, totalling $6,297,537.75 as the proposed 1973-74 figure. It is anticipated that the increase, if approved by the district's voters, will raise the school taxes of Saugerties residents $6.90 cents per thousand of assessed valuation from this year's figure of $136.70 per thousand.

The annual meeting in Saugerties will be held Tuesday, June 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Voting on the board candidates and the budget will be Wednesday, June 13, from noon to 9 p.m. in the Cahill School.

Nine school board candidates have also filed for election in the New Paltz Central School District. There are three seats open, and Harry Cornwell is the only incumbent to file. Also running are former board member Dr. John Hain, Paul Donahue, Herbert Fliegner, Dr. James Hillestad, Kenneth Kahn, Nello John Pesci, Dr. John Price and Matthew Seddon.

The nine candidates are the most for an election in the district's history. All terms are for three years. Incumbent board members Walter Paradies and Robert Reid are not running for reelection.

The proposed budget for the 1973-74 school year has risen to $3,454,614, and it is anticipated that, if approved, the increase will cause school taxes in the district to rise from seven to nine per cent.

The district's annual meeting will be held June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Voting on the budget and the candidates will be June 13 from 2 to 9 p.m. in the middle school auditorium. District voters will also be asked to approve a separate proposition to rent three classrooms to Ulster County BOCES for $5,310.

Highland Central School

District voters will have the unique pleasure of voting on a budget that should mean a tax cut to the district's taxpayers. The budget is up from the 1972-73 budget of $3,477,720 to $3,637,519.70, but gains in state aid and real property assessment should drop the tax rate about $2.36 per thousand for the present figure, for Lloyd residents, of $163.05 per thousand of assessed valuation.

Five candidates have filed for the three available three-year seats, led by incumbent board president Robert A. Hansut. Incumbent Wilfred Rohde is not running for reelection, and former board member John Elia had previously resigned. Also running are Robert Bain, Doanid F. Halstead, former board member Gelisimo Andreini and Mrs. Virginia Litts Meuser.

The annual meeting and voting will be held June 12, from 2 to 9 p.m., in the middle school.

The Marlboro Central School District

will be voted on at the annual meeting June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school.

The Marlboro school board election will be held June 13 from two to 9 p.m. in the high school. The only candidate running is incumbent Charles Winfield, who has filed to succeed himself for a five-year term.

COOPERATION THEME — Cooperation was the main theme of Ulster County Commissioner of Social Services Bernhardt S. Kramer's keynote speech at a recent workshop of representatives from public and private social service agencies at Ulster County Community College. Taking part in the workshop on Effective Management were Commissioner Kramer (L), Henry Weber, former director of the United Way, Northeast Region; Dr. William Wasmuth, ILR School, Cornell University; Glenn Sutherland, United Way president, and Miss Rosemary Sheridan, administrator, Mother Cabrini School. The workshop was jointly sponsored by the Management Institute, UCCC, United Way and the Council of Service Agencies.

Dutchess To Polls

RED HOOK

Increased budgets and school board candidates will succeed or fail June 13 when voters go to the polls in the Red Hook and Rhinebeck school districts.

In Red Hook, three candidates are seeking election to the one available seat on the school board. The candidates are Harry Van Parys, Richard Barrett and Mrs. Marian Greig. Incumbent Francis Rabbett has declined to seek reelection. The term is for five years.

The Board of Education will also present a $3,836,113 budget to Red Hook voters on June 13. The proposed budget is some $316,000 higher than the spending package for 1972-73.

If Red Hook voters approve the budget, they'll face an estimated true value tax increase per $1,000 of assessed valuation from the 1972-73 figure of $17.12 to $19.59 for 1973-74.

Voting in the Red Hook district will take place from 2-9 p.m. on June 13 at the Red Hook High School. The district's annual meeting will be held June 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

In Rhinebeck, two candidates are seeking a five year term on the school board. Incumbent John Grimes is being challenged by Mrs. Marcella Briggs.

Voters will also decide the fate of the Rhinebeck school board's proposed $2,769,744 budget for 1973-74. It is $253,607.75 higher than the measure approved by voters for the 1972-73 school year. The biggest increase is in teacher's salaries, which shows a $173,000 hike over 1972-73.

The tax rate per $1,000 of assessed value would be $22.13 if the budget is approved by voters.

Voting in the Rhinebeck School district will take place June 13 from 2-9 p.m. at the high school cafeteria. The annual district meeting will be held June 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the high school gymnasium.

Scott Realtors, New Paltz, Open Branch Offices

EDYTHE CROWELL

EUGENE SCHNEIDER

Realtor Kathleen B. Scott, president of SCOTT, Realtors, of New Paltz, announced recently the opening of two branch offices for the listing and sale of real estate in southern Ulster County.

In Wallkill, serving the Town of Shawangunk and the southern part of the Town of Gardiner, the new Branch Office of SCOTT, Realtors is at the corner of Albany Post Road and Lippincott Road. The manager of this office is Edythe U. Crowell, who has been a saleswoman with SCOTT, Realtors, since December, 1971, and only recently received her license as a real estate broker. Mrs. Crowell will be aided in her new office by her husband, James B. Crowell, III, and by Chris McHugh as salesmen.

To provide better service for clients in the Marletown area, Mrs. Scott said she was fortunate to have an office in Stone Ridge managed by Eugene C. Schneider. Schneider comes to his new position after more than 10 years experience in Manhattan real estate. Having been a weekend resident of High Falls for several years, Schneider said that it was a great pleasure to become a full-time resident of the area. His office of SCOTT, Realtors, is on Cottekill Road (Box 121), in Stone Ridge, just south of Ulster County Community College.

Mrs. Scott pointed out that a client who lists his property with one of the branch offices will have the benefit of the entire staff working to market the property in the best possible way to qualified customers.

Mrs. Scott noted that SCOTT, Realtors, is now a member of MLS, the Multiple Listing Service of Ulster County, to provide this service to property owners in the southern part of the county. The advantage of listing property with a broker who is a member of MLS is that while the property owner still deals only with the broker of his choice, all of the fifty brokers who are members of MLS and their more than 200 salespeople are immediately notified that the property is on the market. Any member of professional Service, Mrs. Scott hopes that the listing broker is the only playing their best efforts toward the sale of that property.

UCCMA Plan: Money Counseling

KINGSTON Paul E. Wiser Sr., president of the Ulster County Credit Management Association, has advanced a plan to provide the residents of Ulster County with a Professional Financial Counseling Service.

Wiser revealed some of the facts of this service in his year-end report of 1972-73 for the UCCMA in which he hailed the past year as one the membership can look back on with extreme pride and pleasure. "From a very good beginning, our membership participation has grown steadily and definitely underscores the accomplishments of the objectives we have established for ourselves," Wiser continued.

Wiser, in pointing to the Professional Financial Counseling Service, said the plan would be available on a "no fee" basis to debtors, supported by creditors by a percentage of recovery and tax deductible as a business expense.

The UCCMA president added: "The program would be staffed by volunteers and could provide some much needed guidance education and assistance to area residents and businessmen as well. Many communities across the nation have established similar programs that have effectively reduced creditor losses through bankruptcy and other equally undesirable recovery alternatives."

Wiser, in his year-end report to the membership noted:

"It has been my privilege to share in the beginning growth and realization of our dreams and aspirations. No one could be more pleased by your accomplishments because I truly believe that through your mutual efforts, you will make Ulster County an even better place to live, work and transact business."

"Through our mutual efforts," Wiser said, "we have provided the credit grantors of Ulster County with a strong forum from which the entire community will profit."

Langley, McCourt Buy Plank's Mat Business

MARLBORO featuring practically every type of Civil War relics, has attracted individuals and groups since 1930 by Will Plank in Marlboro, has been purchased by his two young assistants, Merle W. Langley and Dennis McCourt.

As a partnership, the two also have purchased the business building and a section of surrounding land from Mr. and Mrs. Plank and will continue their headquarters there under the name of Marlboro Mats, Inc.

Langley, a native of Orangeville, O., began work with Mats, Inc. in 1960 and after two years of military service became an official "associate" in Plank's business reportedly the largest individual typesetting mat business in the country.

McCourt, one of the twin sons of Attorney and Mrs. J. J. McCourt of Marlboro, worked in the mat business and also in Plank's historical museum during weekends and vacations while in high school in Marlboro and later as a college student. After graduation in 1970 from Manhattan College he began full time work that summer for Mats, Inc., and soon became a junior associate. McCourt makes his home with his wife, Pamela, a teacher at St. Francis School, Newburgh, in Marlboro.

The Plank matrix business began in late 1929 when the large new building of a bankrupt weaving mill on Dock Road, Milton, was purchased by Plank who moved his newspaper plant to that location. After the newspapers were sold in 1947 the mat business was moved from Milton to Marlboro and has been operated there ever since. Plank, a newspaperman since his teens, also operates the Will Plank's Marlboro Museum, a few yards away from the Mats, Inc. concern. The museum,

Secretariat - Truly A Horse for the Ages

NEW YORK (UPI) — Secretariat, running everyone else into the ground with one of the most eye-popping performances in turf history, stamped himself a horse for the ages Saturday when he smashed an American record while winning the $150,000 Belmont Stakes by an unbelievable 31 lengths to capture the first Triple Crown in 25 years.

In 1948, Citation accomplished the feat, but of Secretariat's trainer, Lucien Laurin, said, "I think he's a better horse."

Off his unprecedented performance, Secretariat very well may be that. No horse in the previous 104 runnings of this classic ever won the Belmont by such a large margin, and Secretariat's clocking of 2:24 flat set a record for the mile and a half distance.

The previous American record of 2:26 1-5 was set by Going Abroad at Aqueduct on Oct. 12, 1964. The fastest mile and a half ever run was a 2:23 performance by Fiddle Isle at Santa Anita on Feb. 23, 1970, but that mark was set on a downhill turf course.

"I wondered a bit when I saw those early fractions, wondered if he was going too fast," Laurin said. "But I told myself that Ronnie (jockey Ron Turcotte) knows the horse and that made me feel better."

"I felt better all through the stretch when he was drawing out and still running like a gem."

Turcotte, who has ridden Secretariat in all three of the Triple Crown victories—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness Stakes and now the Belmont—said he decided to go for the record Saturday when he was halfway through the stretch and could see the fractions on the tote board.

"Secretariat pulled away on his own down the backstretch and I never asked him to," Turcotte said. "He was running his race. When we got into the stretch and I saw those fractions on the tote board I set him down for the first time.

"I knew he had a chance at the record. He had been fast, but he still had more when I asked him and he got the record. Real good, too."

As the huge crowd of 69,138 cheered their favorite every step of the way on a sunny, 90-degree day, Secretariat never let up as he easily broke the stakes record of 2:26 3-5 set in 1957 by Gallant Man.

This renewal of the final event in the Triple Crown series was a two-horse race, but only for half its distance. Secretariat, who set a track record in winning the Kentucky Derby by 2 1/2 lengths and then unofficially was credited with one in winning the Preakness stakes by the same margin, battled arch rival Sham in the early stages of the event.

For the first half mile Secretariat and Sham, who was second in both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, battled head and head. The two horses matched stride for stride until they were almost halfway down the backstretch. Then the true merit and worth of this colt called Secretariat manifested itself to everyone.

Relentlessly he left Sham behind. He was a 'length ahead, two lengths ahead, seven lengths ahead, and the huge crowd roared its approval. As Secretariat steamed around the final bend, Sham gave up in exhaustion and eventually finished fifth in the field of five.

The Freeman

Sunday Sports

THIRTEEN

Unbelievably, Secretariat widened the gap over the struggling field, who were too far back by now to even wallow in his dust.

Twice A Prince, the longest shot in the field, managed to take second place by half a length over My Gallant, but it was as though they were in an entirely different horse race. They had just about passed the sixteenth pole when Secretariat blazed to turf immortality.

Through racing history only eight other horses had won the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes. And not even such a turf immortal as mighty Count Fleet had been able to complete his sweep of the Triple Crown with the power and majesty of Secretariat.

Count Fleet won his Belmont Stakes in 1943 by 25 lengths and that effort was even better than Man o' War's 20-length triumph in 1920. In addition to Count Fleet, Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral, Whirlaway, Assault and Citation, the last one 25 years ago, won the Triple Crown.

Secretariat picked up a winner's purse of $90,120 and that skyrocketed the lifetime earnings of the long-striding colt to $895,242 and this was his 12th victory in 15 races. He was 2-year-old champion and Horse of the Year a year ago and he already has been syndicated for $6,080,000, and that big price looms as a better and better bargain everytime Secretariat races.

He was bet almost exclusively and he paid only $2.20 to win, but $2.40 to place. There was no show betting.

Twice A Prince paid $4.60 to place.

In charging to his record Secretariat set an unbelievable fast pace with help from Sham for the first half mile. The colt ran the first quarter in 23 3-5, the half in 46 1-5, and three Machine."

quarters in an astonishing 1:09 4-5.

From there on Secretariat left Sham for dead, and he reached the mile in 1:34 1-5. No other horse in the mile and a half Belmont ever ran the first mile that rapidly. Yet what should have been an exhausting effort, never fazed Secretariat an iota.

On and on he rolled until he passed the mile and an eighth in 1:59 and reached the finish line in 2:24 flat. Despite the speed he displayed in the early stages, he still was able to run the last quarter in 25 seconds.

That was the same time Gallant Man recorded for his final quarter but he had the help of Bold Ruler, the sire of Secretariat. For it was Bold Ruler that set the pace in the 1957 running and reached the mile in 1:35 3-5. And that was the end for "Daddy". Secretariat, his son, just kept running on to live up to the name they call him on the backstretch—"The Big Red Machine."

The Complete Horse-Turcotte

NEW YORK (UPI) — "It was a great ride, a wonderful ride. He's just the complete horse," beamed jockey Ron Turcotte in the jockeys' room at Belmont Park after riding Secretariat to a record-smashing 31-length win Saturday in the 105th running of the $150,000 Belmont Stakes.

The victory gave the Meadow Stable colt a sweep of the Triple Crown, making him the first since Citation in 1948 to accomplish the feat.

Turcotte, winning his second straight Belmont Stakes after scoring with Riva Ridge last year, had high praise for Secretariat, who became the ninth Triple Crown winner.

"I let him run a bit early to get a position to the first turn," said the Canadian-born Turcotte. "Once he got inside of Sham he wasn't about to give anything away."

Secretariat, taking the lead shortly after rounding the first turn, moved into command before going a quarter of mile and widened on his field with every stride in the mile and a half.

His clocking of 2:24 clipped two and three-fifths seconds off the track mark of 2:26 3-5 held by Gallant Man, winner of the 1957 Belmont Stakes, and two and a fifth seconds off the American record for the distance.

"When we got into the stretch and I saw those fractions on the tote board I set him down for the first time," said Turcotte. "I knew I had a chance at the record. He had been fast but he still had more when I asked him and he got the record. Real good, too."

Braulio Baeza, aboard Twice A Prince, the 17-1 outsider in the field, was pleased with the performance of his colt. "My horse ran a better race than was expected, but Secretariat is a super horse," Baeza said. "You can expect him to do more things better than any other horse."

Angel Cordero Jr., rider of My Gallant, said Secretariat "is just a tremendous horse. He is a runner, a real runner, but when Sham and he hooked up in the early part I thought I had a shot. But that feeling lasted only until Secretariat ran Sham into the ground and went off by himself. The winner is the best horse I've ever seen."

Laffit Pincay Jr., aboard Sham, who was expected to provide Secretariat with the strongest challenge in the Belmont, said his horse "just didn't run his race."

"We just couldn't get the lead and he ran well for about three-quarters of a mile. After that I didn't abuse him."

Trainer Lucien Laurin said Secretariat would probably make his next start in the Travers Stakes at Saratoga in August but might be seen next under silks in the Jim Dandy. Secretariat, the 1972 Horse of the Year, was winning his fifth race this season in six starts. His only loss came in the Wood Memorial in April when he finished third behind his stablemate Angle Light and Sham.

First money of $90,120 brought the colt's lifetime earnings to $895,122.

This will be the final year of racing for the son of Bold Ruler. Something royal, who will be retired this year to stud.

Pittsford Youth Paces State Golf

BINGHAMTON Robert Ladd of Pittsford fired a two-over-par 73 to emerge the individual leader after the first 18 holes of the New York State interscholastic golf championships here Saturday.

Ladd will take a one-shot lead into today's final round over four competitors. Two shots back at 75 is the defending champion Rad Yaun of Liberty and five other golfers. Coleman A.J. Mameen, runner-up to Yaun in the Section Nine qualifier, carded an opening 87 and placed 25th in the field of 109.

In the team competition, defending champ Union-Endicott of Section IV, the eastern South Tier, notched a 311 total over the Ely Park course to take the lead. With four of five members back this year from the 72 winners, Union-Endicott was 11 strokes better than Utica's Notre Dame.

Todd Pike of Rye, Jim Fucillo of Plainville, Steve Murphy of Ardsley and Chuck Phillips of Watertown all stayed in contention with 74's. With Yaun at two off the pace are Jim Hart of Union-Endicott, Scott Landy of Bath, Jim Young of Plainville, Don Deleka of Rome Catholic and Mark Ceccanes of Niskayuna.

The battle for second place among the teams is tight with three schools within five shots of Notre Dame. East Aurora of Section Six is at 325, Levittown-

MacArthur of Section Seven is competing over led by Section 326 and Southampton of Four with a 457, Section Three, the Syracuse-Utica area, Nine's representative, was one back followed by Section Five, Rochester, at 463, Section Two, the greater Albany area, was in fourth position.

Yanks First!

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Horace Clarke's two-run single capped a five-run ninth inning Saturday night that carried the New York Yankees to a 6-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The victory enabled the Yankees to take over first place in the American League East by a half game over Detroit while the loss was the fifth in a row for Kansas City.

The Yankees took advantage of the wildness of starting pitcher Dick Drago and three relievers to mount their ninth inning rally. Drago had checked the Yankees on three hits over the first eight innings and seemed headed for an easy victory when he walked Roy White and Bobby Murcer with one out in the ninth. When Ron Blomberg followed with a single to score White, Drago was replaced by Doug Bird.

Bird walked designated hitter Jim Ray Hart to load the bases and Norm Angelini, a southpaw, was called in to pitch to left-handed hitting Graig Nettles. Angelini walked Nettles to force in a run and was quickly replaced by Bruce Dal Canton.

Dal Canton got Thurman Munson to hit into a force out at the plate but walked Gene Michael to force home the tying run. Clarke then followed with a ground single to center to chase home two more runs.

Pat Dobson, acquired by the Yankees on Thursday, allowed only one hit in five innings of relief to pick up the win while Sparky Lyle, who pitched the ninth, recorded his 13th save.

KHS Nine Gains Finals in Section One Open

VALHALLA

The steamroller that used to be known as Kingston High School's baseball team crushed its seventh consecutive opponent Saturday, winning a semi-final game in the Section One Open Championship over Eastchester, 7-2, at Westchester Community College.

The Maroons exploded for five runs in the fifth inning to support a strong two-hit pitching performance by rookie

Joe Primo. Kingston will now meet Valhalla, a 2-1 victor over Millbrook at Arlington High School Tuesday at 5 p.m. for the section title.

Primo finished with nine strikeouts and gave up only one walk, but he fell behind in the first inning and trailed 2-0 after four. At that point, KHS coach Ron Cole said, "We were scared."

The Maroons' fifth put the fears to rest. Bob Marz led it off with a single, and on the hit-and-run play, Ed Glynn poked one through the infield to put men on first and third. Primo drove the first Kingston run across with the third consecutive hit off Eastchester's Bob Lam, then Chuck Bouton worked a walk to load the bases.

Lam headed for the showers as the Westchester nine's ace, Nick Sairano, moved in from left field to take over. Sairano had pitched his club this far, but with only two days rest he couldn't handle the Kingston lineup.

Dan Brown was the first to face him, and the KHS second baseman got a piece of it to score Glynn with the tying run on a fielders choice. A wild pitch moved Primo and Bouton into scoring position, and they both raced home on a single by Walt Houghtaling.

Houghtaling tallied the fifth run on a double by Walt Debrosky.

Primo withstood the murderous heat to blank Eastchester over the last three frames and secure the victory. He got additional padding in the sixth from Rocky Secreto who singled home Bouton, and from Houghtaling who collected his second hit and third RBI of the game by knocking in Secreto.

Eastchester got its initial score with two men down in the first inning. A single by Lance Weiglein and a triple by Mike O'Connell spoiled any hopes Primo might have had for a shutout.

Secreto and Primo then combined a pair of errors in the bottom of the fourth to allow Weiglein to score again.

Kingston, which won the AA championship, will shoot for the open crown against Class C winner Valhalla. Eastchester was the A champion, and Millbrook had won the D title.

AT THE START: The Ferrari 312 driven by Arturo Merzario of Italy leads the pack of 55 cars a few moments after the start of the 50th anniversary race of the Le Mans (France) 24-hour endurance classic. (UPI)

Matras Takes Lead

LE MANS, France (UPI) — Italy's red Ferraris and France's blue Matras were locked in an absorbing battle today in the early stages of the Le Mans 24-hour sports car classic.

After the opening two hours, three Matras, led by the all-French crew of Francois Cevert and Jean-Pierre Beltoise, headed the field with the Ferrari of Argentina's Carlos Reutemann and Australian Tim Schenken in fourth spot directly behind.

The Ferrari of Italian Arturo Merzario and Brazil's Carlos Pace led for the first 30 laps before making an unscheduled pit stop which cost them 23 minutes.

Ferrari, bidding for their first victory here since 1965, also fought for fifth place with the fourth of the French Matras as the leading cars began lapping slower cars.

Officials said more than 400,000 persons had flocked to the north-western French circuit during the holiday weekend. The weather bureau predicted possible thunderstorms but the early running was made in sweltering 75 degree temperatures on a dry track.

Merzario started fast and opened up a gap of more than one minute over Cevert. He gradually clipped away at the lap record before establishing the new mark at three minutes 40.8 seconds — an average speed of 138.1 mph for the 8.4 mile circuit.

The only other cars in a position to butt in on the Ferrari-Matras battle were the British Mirages, but they were forced into the pits for some unscheduled stops with transmission problems and soon dropped three laps down.

Two American crews were fighting for the honors in the grand touring class further down the field. Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., sharing a Porsche Carrera with Frenchman Guy Chasseuil, held a slight edge over Sam Posey, Sharon, Conn., and Milt Minter. Palos Verdes Calif., in a Ferrari Daytona after the opening 30 laps.

The first retirement was the three-liter BMW of Switzerland's Walter Brun and Cox Kocher, but Ford, BMW's only rivals in the special touring (group two) category, also lost one of their three cars when Briton Gerry Birrell rolled his Ford Capri to a stop out on the circuit with ignition failure. The group two was being led by another Capri driven by Briton John Fitzpatrick and German Dieter Glemser. Behind the leading Cevert-Beltoise Matras were two other all-French machines of Henri Pescarolo-Gerard Larrousse and Jean Pierre Jaussaud-Jena-Pierre Jabouille.

Also in the running for grand touring honors was the Ferrari Daytona of Argentina's Luis Di Palma and Nestor Garcia Veiga on the same lap as the two American crews.

RVC, Liberty, Marlboro Lose

LIBERTY High School, the only Ulster County Athletic League member to get past the first round in the Section Nine baseball tournament, lost in the second round as Albertus Magnus took the Indians and the Class C championship, 9-1 here Saturday.

Albertus Magnus had advanced to the C finals by defeating UCAL champion Marlboro on Friday, 4-2. Liberty won its berth by whipping Goshen, 2-1. Rondout Valley, the third UCAL school in the tourney, dropped a Class B tilt to Port Jervis, 5-3.

Other school emerging with class championships Saturday were Chester, which took the D crown by blanking Florida, 5-0, and Cornwall, which downed Port Jervis, 5-4, for the B title. Valley Central played Clarkstown South for the A championship.

Magnus' Dan Brechbiel fired a one-hitter to stop Liberty. The winners pounced on loser Steve Foster for three quick runs in the first inning then chased him in the fourth with three more. They scored again in the sixth and seventh off reliever Jerry Altbach.

Foster tallied for Liberty in the second inning to spoil the shutout.

Albertus Magnus upped its overall record to 8-10, but losing coach Harry Rapenski thought the winners were a better team than that.

"They play a lot of bigger schools during the regular season, so maybe their record isn't very good. But they all knew what they were doing at the plate as well as in the field, and I think they'd run through the UCAL pretty easily."

Liberty wrapped up its season with an overall 12-5 record.

To get into the finals, Ivan

Richards pulled off some versatile heroics to defeat Goshen. The big righthander fired a four-hitter, and he won the game in the eighth inning with a run-scoring single.

Marlboro, the team that defeated Liberty for the UCAL championship, couldn't stop Albertus Magnus either. That game also went an extra inning, and in the eighth Charlie Jones, in relief of Frank Taddeo, walked a man then gave up three straight singles to get tagged with the loss.

Rondout and Port Jervis went 10 innings to decide their contest. Neither team scored until the eighth when Port pushed three across. The Ganders rallied in the bottom half, scoring three of their own to push it to the ninth.

Bill Wilkins, who worked the last four innings in relief for Rondout, finally took the defeat in the tenth when a walk, a single and an error loaded the bases. He then walked in the winning run and another man scored on a fielder's choice.

Wottle — Fastest NCAA Mile

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Dave Wottle ran the fastest mile of his life and eight men broke the four-minute mark in the same mile race for the first time in history Saturday on the final day of the NCAA track and field championships.

Magnus' Dan Brechbiel fired a one-hitter to stop Liberty. The winners pounced on loser Steve Foster for three quick runs in Wottle clipped off a 53-second final lap in the heat and humidity on the Louisiana State University track to turn in a 3:57.1 in breaking the NCAA meet record of 3:57.6 set two years ago by Marty Liquori and in the process drew the next seven runners across in less than four minutes.

Finishing second behind UCLA, thanks to Steve Prefontaine's three-mile victory, was Oregon with 31 points. Next

Arizona State with 26 points each. Tennessee had 24 points and Texas-El Paso and Kent State tied with 22 points each. Next came Memphis State and Texas with 20 points each. The Trojans of USC finished with a mere nine points.

Other than Wottle's NCAA record in the mile, new meet records were set in the javelin where Sam Colson won with a throw of 279.9, by Prefontaine who won the three-mile run in 13:05.3 and by Reynaldo Brown of California Poly with a leap of 7.4 in the high jump.

Two other records were tied. Doug Brown of Tennessee equaled one in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 8:30.1 and Texas' Robert Primeaux tied another in the 400-yard hurdles with a clocking of 49.5.

Prefontaine, in winning the three-mile, became the first athlete in NCAA history to win the same event four consecutive years.

Other champions Saturday included defending titleholder Dave Roberts of Rice in the pole vault (17-4); Mack Wilkins of Oregon in the discus (203-11); Marshall Dill of Michigan State in the 220-yard dash (20.9); Maurice Peoples of Arizona State in the 440-yard dash (45.0); Earl Kent of Wisconsin in the 880-yard run (1:47.2) and the sprint relay team from Memphis State (39.6).

Wottle said that because of the slow pace, he had no idea how fast a race was being run. "I really didn't know because everybody was sitting back and relying on his kick," said Wottle. "I have been worrying about my back which I hurt in the prelims, but it didn't bother me today."

"I think the pace was slow because of the heat."

Schmidt Keeps Promise

DETROIT (UPI) — Joe Schmidt seems to be making more I thought about it, the good a promise.

The 41-year-old Schmidt, who just six months ago announced his resignation as coach of the Detroit Lions, is hinting at becoming a National Football League owner.

At the time of his bittersweet resignation, Schmidt said there was only one way he'd return to football—if he owned a team. "I used to kid about it, you where he'd like to set up the know, and some people came to new team, but there has been me and asked about buying a talk of Tampa.

LPGA Championship

Three Tied With 217

SUTTON, MASS. (AP) — Local favorite Jane Blalock and veteran Kathy Whitworth charged from far back and moved into a tie with Japan's Chako Higuchi for the third round lead Saturday in the 19th Ladies PGA golf championship.

Miss Blalock, a former New England champion from Portsmouth, N.H., fired a sizzling four-under-par 69, the best round of the tournament, for a 54-hole score of 217 in the 72-hole test.

Runnerup to Kathy Aher for the 1972 LPGA championship here, Miss Blalock calmly sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the last green to climax a round during which she made up six strokes for a share of the lead at the Pleasant Valley Country Club.

Miss Whitworth, starting four strokes back, pulled into a two-stroke lead, but then ran into trouble on the back nine and settled for a 71.

Miss Higuchi, a five-time Japanese champion still seeking her first victory in this country, put together a pair of 71s for the halfway lead of 142 but slipped to a 75 under third round pressure applied from the outset by Miss Whitworth. Mary Mills, a former U.S. Open and LPGA champion who is back in form after undergoing wrist surgery last fall, had a 72 to move within one stroke of the leaders. Miss Mills was tied with Miss Whitworth at 146 after 36 holes. Betty Burfeindt had a third

All-Star Tickets Ready

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mail orders for reserve seats at major league baseball's 1973 All-Star Game will be accepted beginning Monday. Kansas City Royals' officials announced Saturday.

The 40th All-Star clash, matching the best players of the American and National leagues as selected by a vote of the fans, is set for July 24 in the new Royals Stadium.

Requests for reserved tickets at $8 apiece will be honored on a postmark basis, the Royals' announcement said. First priority will be given to applications postmarked June 11. Applications postmarked prior to June 11 will not be accepted. CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Bobby Riggs lost a love game to open the first set Saturday then swept past Al Bunis of Cincinnati 6-1, 6-1 in an exhibition tennis match.

Riggs, 55, who last month defeated Margaret Court in the Battle of the Sexes, baffled Bunis with an assortment of junk shots.

Bunis, 49, is captain of the defending world champion U.S. Dubler Cup team. He was the nation's seventh-ranked seniors player in 1971.

eliminating Boro Jovanovic of Yugoslavia, 6-4, 6-1, and Okker dispatching Russian Vladimir Korotkov, 6-2, 6-4.

In the ladies' singles quarterfinals it all went according to schedule. Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had to come a set behind for her quarterfinal win, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 over Katie Ebbonighaus as she joined Evonne Goolagong of Australia and Heiga Masthoff of West Germany in the semifinals.

Evonne had an easy time with Marina Tomanova of Russia, 6-0, 6-3 and Miss Masthoff eliminated Linda Tuero of New Orleans, 6-3, 7-5. The one mild surprise among the ladies was Vlasta Vopickova of Czechoslovakia. Kodes' sister, who won through to the semifinals with a 6-2, 6-4 defeat of Kris Kemmer of Los Angeles.

Holtzman Wins 11th

OAKLAND (UPI) — Reggie Jackson drove in three runs with a double and infield out and Ken Holtzman pitched a two hit shutout for his 11th victory Saturday in leading the Oakland A's to a 4-0 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Jackson drove in Oakland's first run during a two-run first inning rally and delivered two more in the eighth to push his RBI total to nine in the last three games and to 46 for the season.

Holtzman gave up a single to Mickey Stanley leading off the game, then retired 20 batters in order before Willie Horton doubled with two out in the seventh. He wound up the game by retiring the next seven batters in order and needed only 88 pitches to accomplish the victory.

Holtzman struck out six and didn't issue a walk. His record now stands at 11-3. He also reduced his earned run average 1.50.

Jim Perry started for the Tigers and left in the middle of the seventh. He went down to his fourth loss in 11 decisions.

Bert Campaneris beat out a drag bunt for a hit in the first inning and went to third when Perry's pick off attempt sailed past first baseman Al Kaline. Bill North walked and one out later Jackson delivered Campaneris with an infield out.

Chris In, Smith Out

ROME (UPI) — East Europeans, who dominated the finals at the French Open, today smashed, served and lobbed their way into half the quarterfinal places at the Italian Tennis Championship.

But it was Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., who showed the best form in advancing to the last eight.

Smith, playing almost faultless tennis on the sun-baked clay courts of Rome's Foro Italico, took only 40 minutes to dispatch fellow countryman Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md., 6-0, 6-4.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, who won at Forest Hills last year and in Rome in 1970 and then added the French championship to his growing credits last week, led the East European assault into the quarterfinals with an easy 6-1, 6-1 win over Italy's Tonino Zugarelli.

Peter Szoke, the Hungarian who ousted John Newcombe in the second round, eliminated Italy's Marty Mulligan, the Australian expatriate, 7-5, 6-1, and Jiro Hrebec of Czechoslovakia downed Charles Pasarelli of Santurce, Puerto Rico, 6-4, 6-2.

Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, twice a runner-up in Rome, completed the East European charge with a 7-6, 6-2 win over Chile's Patricio Cornejo to gain the last eight.

Italy's lone remaining hope was Paolo Bertolucci, who downed Patrice Dominguez of France, 7-5, 6-3.

Manuel Orantes of Spain, the defending champion, and Tom Okker of Holland made up the remaining quarterfinalists.

Neither man faced any problems today with Orantes eliminating Boro Jovanovic of Yugoslavia, 6-4, 6-1, and Okker dispatching Russian Vladimir Korotkov, 6-2, 6-4.

In the ladies' singles quarterfinals it all went according to schedule.

Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had to come a set behind for her quarterfinal win, 4-6, 6-2, 6-1 over Katie Ebbonighaus as she joined Evonne Goolagong of Australia and Heiga Masthoff of West Germany in the semifinals.

Mays' 655th Homer Lifts Mets to Win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays, the third leading all-time home run hitter behind Babe Ruth and Hank Aaron, smacked his first of the season and his 655th of his career to snap a 2-2 tie and made a tumbling catch in center field to lead Jon Matlack and the New York Mets to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

It's Siderowf

PORTHCAWL, Wales (AP) — Dick Siderowf of Easton, Conn., battled through the winds that suddenly invaded the British Amateur Golf Championship Saturday and won the title, beating England's Peter Moody 5 and 3 in the 36-hole final.

The finest and strangest moment for the 35-year-old New York stockbroker came at the 21st hole, where his second shot hit a rock on the seashore and ricocheted to the other side of the fairway, leaving him farther away from the hole than before.

He calmly hit a massive three-wood into the heart of the green and canned a 12-foot putt, winning the hole he seemed certain to lose.

"I never hit a better shot in my life," Siderowf said. "That was a big turn in the final."

Siderowf, one of 50 U.S. starters in the six-day match play season with a sore shoulder and batting only .095 before the start of the game, rifled a high fast ball from loser Al Downing almost 400 feet into the left field bullpen with two out in the third inning. It was Mays' first homer since August 18, 1972, and pushed his lifetime total base mark to 6,003. He trails only Aaron and Stan Musial in that department.

The 42-year-old Mays also thrilled a crowd of 47,800 on Oldtimers Day when he robbed Willie Davis of a triple and possible inside-the-park homer in the top of the third when he grabbed Davis' liner with his back to the plate before falling to the ground just short of the 410-foot sign in center field.

The Mets reached Downing for two runs in the first inning when Ted Martinez singled. Mays walked and Rusty Staub unloaded an opposite field double into the left field corner. Staub doubled home Felix Millan with the Mets final run in the eighth.

Dave Lopes, who had three hits, opened the game with a double, moved to third on Bill Buckner's single and scored on a force out for Los Angeles' first run. Lopes also tallied the Dodgers' second run in the third when he beat out a bunt, moved to third on an error and a stolen base, and scored on Buckner's sacrifice fly.

Matlack scattered seven hits, struck out four and walked three to break a personal five game losing streak and record only his third win in 11 decisions. He also became the first Met pitcher, other than Tom Seaver, to win a game since May 24.

The Dodgers blew a chance to tie the score in the seventh when pinch hitter Tom Paciorek doubled and Lopes beat out a bunt. However, Matlack trapped Lopes off first base and in the ensuing rundown right fielder Staub finally tagged out Lopes and then threw home to nail Paciorek attempting to score.

Reds Shock Cubs, 8-4

CHICAGO (UPI) — Johnny Bench singled home the winning run with two out and Tony Perez followed with a three-run homer to cap a seven-run Cincinnati rally in the ninth inning Saturday as the Reds shocked the Chicago Cubs, 8-4.

The Reds, held in check by Dave LaRoche, who replaced starter Ferguson Jenkins in the top of the seventh, collected four singles, a double and a homer and were aided by two walks off four pitchers in putting together their biggest inning of the season before a national television audience.

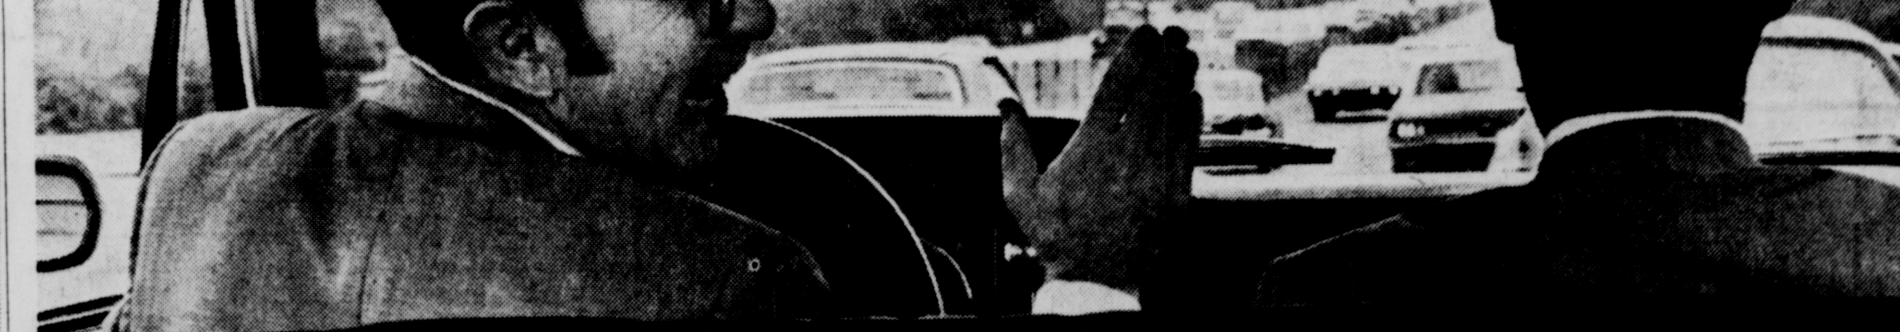

When LaRoche walked rookie Dan Driessen to open the ninth, he was replaced by Bob Locker. Locker got Dave Concepcion on a fly ball but gave up consecutive singles to Cesar Geronimo and pinch hitter Larry Stahl to make it 7-2.

Pete Rose grounded out to the pitcher of Donald Patton and Polacco's scored eight runs in the third enroute to a 10-7 decision over Alpha Portland Cement.

Dave Rask slugged two doubles and two singles; George Boisvert a double and two singles and Gordon Bell a triple and two singles for Eddie's. Leroy Chaffin's eighth-inning homer won for Rite Cleaners over Pier 7.

KINGSTON club. Another possible location other professional league does is in Cottekill, and some of its members are in favor of that. But that would be even worse than here — even more of a hole in the wall.

That particular problem, however, is minor compared to some of the impositions the Kickers have to put up with from the German-American Soccer League itself. That organization, essentially a New York City based operation, is one of the worse run sporting ventures in existence.

Reinhardt is an outspoken critic of the G-A, and his comments make sense: "The G-A is outdated. It's run by a bunch of old men who smoke their big cigars and sit back and tell you how great they were always hard to do here (at Oehler's). At Dietz we could attract more spectator interest, and we might be able to draw more younger players to the follow our example. They didn't, and you still have teams who call themselves the Czechs or the Greeks or the Sons of Italy. It gets to the point where guys say, 'Hey, the Greeks are coming today,' and you have a riot already."

A recent ruling by the league cost the Kingston club in yet another manner. After three years of competition in the Premier (second) Division of the association, the Kickers were demoted to the League (third) Division because of their inability to field a reserve team. This extra manpower became a requirement evidently to promote the spread of soccer, but Reinhardt points out that the goal was not accomplished.

"The only way we could get enough men was to take a few of the oldtimers and take some young kids and just put them on the field for a few minutes. It didn't really serve to promote soccer at all. So we dropped back to the League Division and won that with a 12-13 record — that automatically puts us back into the Premier Division this fall."

Whether or not the Kickers will be allowed to play Premier without a legitimate reserve squad is still a question at this stage. It is certainly where the Kingston belongs. They were walloped regularly their one time in the Major Division, and in the lesser leagues they are just as unstoppable themselves.

One of the most amazing chapters in local sports history was written by the Kickers when they ran off 51 straight victories in the Central New York League over a three year span and won four straight championships.

"That was meaningless," said Reinhardt. "It got to the point where the only thing important was the bets among ourselves as to who would score the most goals."

Reinhardt's aims as he readies his team for the next season are several. The summer exhibition schedule for one will be tougher, and without an allegiance to Oehler's the team will be able to do more traveling. He would also like to lure more local talent into the fold.

The days of the private soccer clubs, Reinhardt feels, are coming to an end. The money is no longer there for one. Top players today get about $60 a game and perhaps travel and food money. Really good European players can make more on other continents. The slow emergence of American players is also starting to take effect.

"Budget cuts have encouraged schools to pick it up. It's a lot cheaper to field a soccer team than a football team, especially for a smaller school or university. And it can be successful. Hartwick College is a good example. They're one of the top teams in the East, and I'd put them up right now. They do what you tell them, and you don't have any of that foreign snobism."

The biggest stumbling block to soccer right now, however, is the game itself. "There is just not enough climax in soccer for the American fan," Reinhardt said. "Every other game has changed to become successful, and soccer should too. Lessening or eliminating the offside ruling would increase the scoring. You could also make the goal bigger. Just one change would probably be enough. Soccer should go over here. It's the world's biggest game and the competition is here. It just has to be done right."

Fuoco in LL Record Book With Four Homers

KINGSTON Lou Fuoco, the slugger from the Crows of the Jaycee League, jumped into the Little League home run derby in a hurry with his record-breaking, four-home-run, 10 RBI single game performance. The four circuits tie him for the area lead with James Brown of the Wards of the Kingston American League and Steve Jackson of the Cubs of the Kingston National League.

Russ Shults of the Esopus Indians and Ed Debrosky of the Ulster Giants share the runnerup spot and lead their respective loops with three homers each. Other league leaders are Steve Bidwell of the Saugerties Braves, Dave Shults of the Hurley Tigers and Tom Loughlin of the Rondout Cubs and Steve Stauby of the Rondout Red Sox, each with two homers.

Other batting pace setters are Greg Sinsbaugh of the National Pirates who has slammed five doubles to lead the area, and Jackson of the Cubs and Dan Langton of the Esopus Mets who have hit two triples each.

Paul and Randy Perry, the pitching duo from Rondout Valley's Pirates, have combined to hurl three no-hitters thus far in the season. Three individuals have turned the trick unassisted. They are Mike Tentowski of the Hurley Yankees, Ed Debrosky of the Ulster Giants and Pat Sapp of the Jaycee Owls.

Tentowski, James Brown, Russ Shults, and Terry McWeeny of the Hurley Tigers have all recorded single game strikeouts highs of 16.

Economy in Little League

KINGSTON That's the way those little League games go sometimes. Like two teams collecting six hits between them and scoring 30 runs. Of course, there were 24 bases on balls and a flock of errors, as the Rondout National Bank routed the Lions Club, 24-6 in the American Little League.

Just to make things interesting, Rondout scored 16 runs in the second inning. The only extra baser was a double by Pat McGowan.

In the Glascow-East Kingston League, the Braves racked 14 runs in the fifth inning. Jim Flanagan pitched a 2-hitter in the Hurley league and Phil Haber had one in the National. Tony Lamonte fanned 14 in a losing cause in the Hurley loop.

THRUWAY® Air Adjustable SHOCK ABSORBERS

The ultimate in shock absorber design for the motorist who wants complete control of his car's height under all driving conditions. By adjusting these shock absorbers with air pressure, motorists can raise or lower the rear of the car to meet any driving conditions. When the car is level the headlights are properly aimed, the car steers easily, and brakes properly — and, the ride is comfortable. Towing a large house trailer, for instance can be a dangerous undertaking—too much weight on the back of the car will make the front end raise and cause serious driving problems.

To compensate for this extra weight, air is added to the THRUWAY Air Adjustable shock absorbers as needed to raise the rear and level the car to the proper height. When the car or trunk is not overloaded or not used for towing, air can be released to return the car to the original or normal height.

Goerlich's THRUWAY Air Adjustable shock absorbers are 1 3/16" heavy duty shocks with a neoprene air sleeve sealed between the dust shield and the reservoir tub.

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. ## Point Grad Tells of New Case

Silence Decree for Another Cadet

WEST HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — A young Army officer who endured 19 months of "silence" at West Point said today that another cadet is undergoing the same treatment at the academy.

James J. Pelosi, who received his commission Wednesday, said in an interview at his home that a member of West Point's class of 1974 was censured to silence nearly one year ago.

Pelosi declined to identify the cadet or say why the silence was imposed on him. He said the cadet had asked his advice during the past year but that the pair had not been drawn close together by their mutual adversity.

Pelosi held the highest peer rating in his 100-man company when he was convicted in November 1971 by the senior Honor Committee of completing an answer on a quiz after the examiner had given the order to stop.

He denied the charge, backed his claim with witnesses and an officer board was convened. The case later was dismissed by Lt. Gen. William A. Knowlton, the West Point superintendent, after it was learned that a high-ranking officer had urged board members to "expedite" their deliberations.

But the trial was not over for Pelosi, then 20.

Supported by a cadet referendum, the Honor Committee moved to impose "silence" on Pelosi, a rarely used penalty of total social ostracism.

For most of the next 19 months, Pelosi roomed alone and ate by himself at a 10-man table in the cadet mess hall. Almost none of the 3,800 cadets talked to him except on official business.

Nationwide publicity about his plight in the two days since his graduation has brought telegrams of congratulations from Texas, Florida and California and more than 30 telephone calls.

"People consider it a victory for me to have graduated," Pelosi said. "I guess they were glad I stuck with it." Before reporting in August to his next duty station, Ft. Benning, Ga., Pelosi will spend a month touring Europe with his parents.

His father, James V. Pelosi, said that in the first few months of the silence his 5-foot-11 son lost 26 pounds and was treated for nervous exhaustion at the academy's medical department.

Young Pelosi, who was also the target of vandalism during the silence, said the experience has not made him bitter either toward the academy or toward his classmates.

West Point officials would not comment on Pelosi's case, citing litigation by another cadet challenging the academy's honor code provisions.

The silence is defined in an Army memorandum as "a traditional and unwritten proviso" of the Honor System designed to deal with a cadet convicted of an honor violation, but who does not resign and cannot be discharged because of insufficient legal proof.

The penalty is rarely imposed because most cadets, faced with the prospect, choose to resign.

Benjamin O. Davis Jr. was silenced during all his four years at West Point from 1932 to 1936 because he was black. He went on to become a lieutenant general in the Air Force.

Cox Takes Dispute to Courts

Competing Priorities Watergate Issue

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the dispute over the Senate's continuing Watergate hearings, the central issue is one of competing priorities: immediate disclosure on one hand, prosecution and punishment on the other.

Investigating senators, now in their eighth day of televised hearings, put the emphasis on swift public testimony about political espionage operations and coverup efforts.

Archibald Cox, the special prosecutor who unsuccessfully sought a postponement of those hearings, stresses punishment of the guilty. And the wheels of prosecution turn slowly.

Neither side contends that the two aims are mutually exclusive, although Cox has raised the prospect that because of public testimony now, guilty men might go free later.

So the question becomes who goes first, prosecutors in private or senators in public. The answer for now is senators.

But Cox, denied an outright postponement, now seeks a federal court order to close the doors of the Senate hearings when potentially incriminating testimony is taken.

As an alternative, if that is not granted, Cox asked that such testimony not be broadcast or televised.

His court move Wednesday raises the possibility that when some of the biggest names in the affair appear before the committee, it will be in private, or off the air.

AP Analysis

What Cox asked was that when witnesses who might become defendants are questioned, it be in executive session or under rules similar to those that apply in a courtroom.

If the Cox request is granted, it would affect the appearances of major figures in the case, among them such men as former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III, and Jeb Stuart Magruder, once deputy director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Cox originally had asked that the hearings be put off for 90 days, saying that would help him get at the truth and safeguard later prosecutions. In his new request to the court, he said the continued hearings raise a danger of impeding his investigation and generating pre-trial publicity which might "prevent bringing to justice those guilty of serious offenses in high government office."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate committee, said in resuming the hearings over Cox's objection that his panel did not share the fear of the guilty going free because of its inquiry.

Ervin said long before the hearings began that it seemed to him more important to tell the nation what happened than to send people to jail.

Laird's Aim: Protect Nixon

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new man in the White House is said to believe that Richard Nixon at times has to be "protected from his own impulses" and told no even though he "reacts strongly."

This is the view of Melvin R. Laird, a deceptively affable politician with a tough sense of realism, who is now in the delicate position of practicing what he, on occasion, has preached.

Laird came out of retirement this week to accept appointment as counselor to the President for domestic affairs, with Cabinet rank. As such, he becomes the domestic Henry A. Kissinger and replaces John D. Ehrlichman, a casualty of Watergate.

He now has a chance to do what he has said privately that Ehrlichman and others failed to do: say no to the President of the United States.

A few weeks before his appointment, sources close to Laird made known his view of the "White House mentality" that may have led to Watergate. He was said to feel that Nixon's top aides were too inexperienced to "protect the President from his own impulses."

"They got so carried away," Laird was quoted as saying. "They could easily have misinterpreted the President in a 'subterfuge.' Laird refused to say whether he thought the President's judgment in carrying out what they thought were his desires."

These sources said that Laird felt the President was solid and deliberate in his conduct of foreign affairs but sometimes impulsive on domestic matters.

As secretary of defense, these sources said, Laird several times was ordered by the President to fire someone, and didn't.

"In each case, the secretary thought the President was wrong and just sat it out, doing nothing about the firing, until the matter blew over."

On another occasion, these sources said, Laird was "told by the White House" to give a direct $300-million loan using the Defense Production Act as a "subterfuge." Laird refused and said the matter should be taken to Congress.

"Do you mean," a top White House assistant asked the Secretary of Defense, "that you are refusing to carry out a direct order of the President of the United States?"

"Yes."

Where are you going from here?

'Advanced Stages' for Lloyd Nuclear Study

TOWN OF LLOYD
The study of a town of Lloyd site for the possible location of two or more nuclear power plants has "reached its advanced stages," according to the chairman of the State Atomic Space and Development Authority (ASDA), which is investigating the site.

ASDA findings are expected to be published in August, according to James G. Cline, with public meetings in the area expected to follow during September.

Cline's statements were made during a meeting of the Mid-Hudson Pattern for progress in New Paltz. Paltz is conducting a study for the ASDA concerning the possible development of the site excluding the power plant location. The plants themselves are expected to take up only 100 acres of the site, which may consist of from 1,000 to 2,000 acres. Part of Pattern's study of the site consists of an evaluation in light of existing planning on a local and county level, according to Don Knorr, director of communications for Pattern. The organization is also evaluating the best use of the portion of the site outside the power plant area in light of the desires of local citizens, and other factors, Knorr said. The Pattern study is "nearing completion," he said. Geological studies of the Lloyd site by the ASDA have been completed, and a meteorological tower is expected to be erected shortly. The ASDA has not yet confirmed the precise location of the site, but The Freeman has learned previously from an informed source that the area under study is located near the northern boundary of the Chodick Lake. ASDA is in charge of finding and evaluating possible sites, but does not actually develop the sites should they prove suitable. The construction of the power plants is done by outside private companies.

The ASDA study of the Lloyd site is in addition to studies by a separate agency, the State Power Authority, of possible sites for nuclear or fossil fuel plants in Dutchess and Greene Counties. A spokesman for the ASDA has confirmed that there is an exchange of information between the two authorities. In fact, a panel of speakers consisting of Cline, president V. David Look of Pattern, and quite probably chairman James A. Fitzpatrick of the Power Authority, will be in attendance at a meeting of the Mid-Hudson Sierra Club on June 12 at 8 p.m. in the theater of Champaign Hall, Marist College, Poughkeepsie.

The subject of the presentation will be "Power Plant Siting in the Hudson Valley." The current status of projects underway, issues involved, and the roles of the citizen and local government will be dealt with. Letters of invitation have been sent to approximately 150 legislators, town supervisors and mayors in the six-county Mid-Hudson area. Early replies reportedly indicate the meeting will be well-attended. The meeting will be open to the public.

WEST HURLEY LIBRARY FAIR — The annual West Hurley Library Fair will be held this year on Aug. 4. Members of the planning committee include (L) Mrs. John Spratt, fair chairman; Mrs. Peter Sammons and Mrs. John Miraglia.

Mosquitoes Add to Woes For Thousand Islanders

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — This is the month the spring high water levels are reached by a powerful storm which on Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence River and the water begins receding. But Mrs. Ellen Hickey, a resident of Cape Vincent, said this week, "The water is as high or higher than ever." She and her husband operate a 10-unit motel which remains open but sandbagged as the tourist season nears. "I talked to the board of health today about the mosquito-breeding problem," she said. "I'm going mad with them."

"That's your problem," she was told. Mosquitoes are only one of the frustrations facing residents and business owners of the popular Thousand Islands area along the St. Lawrence in northern New York. Thousands of boats and docks are damaged as the result of record-high water made worse by a powerful storm which whipped the area in mid-March. Pilots of the ocean-going freighters which travel the St. Lawrence have had to slow the speed of the ships. Property owners along the banks of the river complained about further damage caused by wave action on the already-eroded shorelines. The March storm whipped waters from the lake and river and tore apart docks, trailers and summer cottages which line the banks of the river. Waves crested as high as 10 feet. Now, 10 weeks later, the shoreline erosion and property damage remains visible. Several counties were declared disaster areas by the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP).

Residents tell of their boats apparently having been reached, residents warily keep an eye on the water, looking for signs it is receding. Some say the water level is higher than the previous benchmark, the spring of 1952 when similar damage occurred. While the high water mark she said.

Woman Suffers Burns

PORT EWEN Port Ewen fire chief Clark Mains said the fire started in the kitchen. The cause is undetermined. Three pieces of equipment and 35 volunteers battled the fire until 6:10 a.m. Friday. Extensive fire damage was reported to the kitchen of the home. The Kingston Police Department, meanwhile, is investigating an incendiary blaze shortly before 3 a.m. Friday, at the rear of a three-story structure at 405 Hasbrouck Avenue, which broke out at 11:25 p.m. Thursday. Only minor damage was reported.

Dr. Harri Janssen Re-elected President

Cancer Elections and Awards

KINGSTON An optimistic report on the 1973 fund campaign, election of officers and presentation of several awards featured this week's annual luncheon meeting of the Ulster County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The luncheon, held at Holiday Inn, heard a hopeful report submitted by Raymond Armatuer, 1973 Crusade chairman, who said approximately $66,000 has been raised to date and the indications pointed to the realization of its $78,000 goal.

Armatuer's report was read by Robert C. "Josh" Randall. The appearance of Diane Demskie, R.N., of Benedictine Hospital in her role as Miss Hope of Ulster County, was another highlight of the program.

Miss Demskie related her impressions of a visit to the Roswell Park Institute in Buffalo, covering the research, education and service aspects of the institution. She made a plea to all concerned to do their utmost on behalf of cancer in order to give hope to these patients at Roswell and others throughout the land.

Re-election of Dr. Harri H. Janssen as president of the county unit headed the election portion of the program.

Others named were: Dr. Roberto E. Benítez and Dr. Milton W. Grover Jr., vice-presidents; Mrs. Gertrude Felsen, secretary and Frederick P. Carpenter, treasurer.

Fifteen other persons were named to the Unit Representative Assembly, all for two-year terms, including: Mrs. David Aubel, Saugerties; John Betaudier, WKNY; Mrs. Gil Clough, New Paltz; Mrs. Frank Fabbie, Kingston; Miss Diane Demskie, the 1973 Miss Hope of Ulster County; Mrs. Emily Johnson, Kingston; Robert S. Kelder Jr., Stone Ridge; Mrs. Verlin Hobericht, New Paltz; Kenneth Osterhoudt, Woodstock; Robert C. Randall, Saugerties; Mrs. Charles J. Turck, Kingston; Allen Stauble, Ruby; Mrs. Clark Kurtz, Highland; Mrs. Douglas Sheppard, New Paltz and Joseph Kelly, Kingston.

Named for two-year terms, effective Sept. 1 to the board of directors were: Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly and County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago of New Paltz.

Elected to serve an additional two-year term on the board of directors were:

And Dr. Michael C. H. Wang and Sister Gabrielle, O.S.B., were named members of the Division Representative Assembly.

Various citations recognizing individual and business support for the cause of cancer were made including one to Charles J. Tiano, Daily Freeman sports editor; a certificate of merit to Youth Against Cancer (YAC) to Ellen Flanagan, Susan Helmrich, co-chairmen and Debbie Moore.

James J. Rua, vice-president and cashier of Rondout National Bank, received a plaque honoring him for his 20 years of service as treasurer of the cancer unit.

Albert J. Cawein, public information officer for the unit, in lauding the outstanding support of newspapers and radio stations, presented citations to the following: Don Fellows, Saugerties Post Star; Bill Skilling and Jon Nichols, WGHQ; Phil Nero, WKNY and Irwin J. Thomas, Sunday Editor, Daily Freeman, accepting the award on behalf of this newspaper.

Reports from the various standing committee chairmen also featured the luncheon program.

Hearing Help For Youngsters

WASHINGTON Free help for hearing-impaired youngsters who need but cannot afford hearing aids will be available from Children's Hearing Aid Banks, a new project sponsored by the nation's hearing aid dealers, manufacturers and suppliers.

Formation of the Banks was announced today by Anthony DiRocco, executive secretary of the National Hearing Aid Society (NHAS), the dealers' association which administers the program. NHAS dealers will sponsor state Banks in cooperation with the Hearing Aid Industry Conference (HAIC) — the manufacturer and supplier association, and the National Association of Hearing and Speech Agencies (NAHSA).

"We specifically want to help those youngsters who cannot afford hearing aids, yet who do not qualify for public or private sources of funds," said DiRocco. "HAIC and NHAS jointly initiated the national Bank plan, responding to a U.S. Public Health Service study that shows 3,000,000 school children with hearing defects. We believe at least half of these children could be helped with a hearing aid."

A child's lack of hearing can interfere with his ability to speak, and to learn the meaning of words. It can distort his personality, frequently making him appear dull or retarded. Prompt hearing aid helps as early in life as possible can assist the child in attaining his fullest potential.

DiRocco noted that local dealers are financing the Banks and that they will also provide voluntary free service to the children before, during and after hearing aid fittings.

He said that NHAS dealers acquire bank hearing aids at a special price from HAIC manufacturers. The National Association of Hearing and Speech Agencies' 154 members across the nation provide technical and administrative assistance to state dealer associations in determining physical and economic qualifications of candidates for bank help. Applications for bank assistance are processed by participating state dealer associations.

The mechanics of the Children's Hearing Aid Bank utilize the services and facilities of all the sponsoring organizations working together to serve youngsters in need to help with their hearing. A youngster may be identified and recommended for Bank assistance and directed to a NAHSA hearing and speech center by anyone aware of the child's problem.

At the NAHSA center, the child's physical and financial need is determined and if these criteria are met, a recommendation for amplification level, earmold fitting requirements and other specifications are prepared. NAHSA notifies the state bank committee at which time, on a rotating basis, selects a hearing aid dealer near the applicant's home who will provide, fit and adapt the hearing aid and supply all related services.

The state committee then requests the NHAS headquarters to send a Children's Hearing Aid Bank order authorization to the dealer, who places the order with a participating manufacturer. The dealer receives the hearing aid, fits the child and provides free after-fitting services.

Requests for application forms may be addressed to Children's Hearing Aid Bank, National Hearing Aid Society, 24261 Grand River Avenue, Detroit, Mich., 48219.

No Protests on Scandal

Some Americans complain that the press pays too much attention to Watergate, but the British also have a scandal and they aren't protesting. Why? Because the subject across the Atlantic is sex.

The subject of our scandal so far is only political sabotage, espionage, illegal campaign fund-raising, bribery of public officials, the destruction of documents, perjury, conspiracy to obstruct justice, subversion of the FBI and CIA, and things like that — hardly the stuff needed to sustain public interest.

In other words, the Watergate Scandals lack spice — the element that made the groundlings so grateful for productions like the Hughes-Irving Case and The Chappaquid Channel Mystery.

This latest British sex scandal (there have been many others; it may have something to do with the climate) brings up several intriguing questions.

1 — Two members of the Conservative government, Lord Lambton and Lord Jellicoe, were asked to resign because they were consorting with call girls. (A call girl, for the uninitiated, is a girl who comes when you call — for example, a prostitute.) Prostitution is not illegal in Britain, but the theory is that officials are vulnerable to blackmail, thereby becoming security risks.

Question: Since no blackmail efforts were made in the Lambton-Jellicoe case, was it bad security or bad publicity that made Prime Minister Heath drop the playful peep?

2 — Question: If it was simply sex that scuttled Lords Lambton and Jellicoe, was it because the sex was extramarital or because it was purchased, or both?

3 — Question: If neither extramarital nor purchased sex were the nub of the problem, could it have been the price — $125 per frolic?

(Prime Minister Heath is in the midst of a giant struggle against inflation, and those inflationary escapades could wreck the next round of wage negotiations. It's not hard to imagine a Labor leader saying: "Look 'ere, Mr. 'Eath, if your ruddy rich Tory peers cavort with call girls at 50 quid a night, do you think I'm going to tell my mates to stand pat on 'alf that for a week of hard work? Not bloody likely!")

4 — The last big British sex scandal, 10 years ago, did have more serious national security implications. Call girls Christine Keeler and Mandy Rice-Davies were consorted with by John Profumo, secretary of state for war, as well as by a Soviet naval attaché.

Question: How many official secrets have been lost in boudoirs or bordellos, except in spy novels? Was Osbert Lancaster right when he wrote in "The Express" that "Politicians are seldom so innocently employed as when tucked up between the sheets?"

5 — The world's largest circulation newspaper, the weekly News of the World, makes its living by pandering to prurient interests, all the while pretending moral indignation. The News of the World arranged for its photographers to record Lord Lambton "in flagrante," having earlier lied about the source of the photos.

Question: Would you rather have your daughter work as a call girl, or your son as an editor of the News of the World?

6 — Two Victorian prime ministers, Lord Melbourne and his brother-in-law, Lord Palmerston, were publicly accused of illicit sex; both enjoyed public support. The last charge of sexual misbehavior was made against Palmerston in 1863, when he was 79.

His chief political rival, Benjamin Disraeli, tried to keep the affair quiet. "For God's sake," said Disraeli, "do not let the people of England know or Palmerston will sweep the country!" He did.

Question: Have the British become less permissive than their Victorian ancestors, more fretful over national security, or more hypocritical?

Let Americans feel superior because our scandal is so far unsullied by sex, let them remember that the British were tolerant of Benjamin Franklin, the best ambassador we ever sent to London. That lusty founding father wrote that his first stay in London brought him, as he put it, "frequently into intrigues with low women that fell my way, with some expense and great inconvenience." Just like Lords Lambton and Jellicoe.

THE GOSSIP COLUMN by ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: You never seem to have any items about our favorite movie star Katharine Hepburn. How come? — O. B., Lake Bluff, Ill.

A: Mainly because the lady leads a quiet, circumspect life, spending most of her non-working time at home in Hartford, Conn. Recently, though, she indulged in a typical Hepburn escapade. It seems that a man cut her off at a red light and she drove after him at top speed for about ten miles until he pulled over, slammed on the brakes, got out and demanded to know why she was chasing him. Miss Hepburn looked him straight in the eye and replied, "I just wanted to know what a pig looks like."

Q: Is it true that Bobby Riggs is going to play on the Women's Virginia Slims tour after his ruthless game with Margaret Court? — R. R., Little Rock, Ark.

A: Riggs, a born hustler and publicity hound, has, indeed, asked to play in the women's tournament. So far, the best answer he's received is that of Stella Lachowicz, the circuit's publicity director, who said, "We'd be very happy to have him, but he must pass the physical and wear a dress. Bobby would look especially cute in our designer's blouse and ballerina skirt."

Q: Did playboy Porfirio Rubirosa's widow ever get married again? She was French actress, I believe. — M. M., Albany, Ga.

A: Odile Rodin just remarried. This time to Paulo Marinho, a Brazilian financier who is 24, a mere 12 years younger than his new bride. Odile claims that Rubirosa came to her in a dream and told her to marry Paulo.

CONGRESSMAN ROBISON

Watergate Topic In Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — Congressman Howard W. Robison (R-27th Dist.) told the Woodstock League of Women Voters Friday night that he is "not wholly satisfied with the President's explanations so far of his role in the Watergate."

Robison said he believes President Nixon "must render a further public accounting" of his activities as they pertain to the Watergate affair.

While noting that such an accounting would be difficult, Robison said, "Yet, I feel he will eventually have to undergo it if he is to restore his own credibility — something vitally necessary if the current vacuum of national leadership is to be filled since, at least at the moment, I do not feel Nixon will either resign, as some demand, or be impeached, as others would now require on a basis, evidently, of willingness to presume Nixon guilty until proved innocent."

What Nixon seems to need most is to provide us with a "plausible" reason for that part of Watergate — the earlier part having a relationship to sorts to considerations of national security — of which he has now admitted knowledge and approval."

Speaking at Deanie's Restaurant, Robison said he shared the apprehension of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox that the Senate hearings now underway make difficult the task of bringing to justice those responsible for wrongdoing. "For what is most important," he commented, "is that those responsible for illegal political activities be found out and punished."

Robison said it appears to him that in a sense President Nixon's "impeachment trial" is already underway in the form of the Senate hearings, the key question of which, he said, "appears to be that determining the actual degree of involvement of Nixon in the Watergate's political side and its ensuing coverup."

It is for that reason, the veteran legislator said, that at the proper time it will be important for President Nixon to "do more to reassert and establish the plausibility of his non-involvement."

Commenting on the national security aspects of the Watergate affair, the Tioga County Republican said the climate, at the time those activities were instituted, must be kept in mind.

"Therefore," he said, "to say that a government — even one possibly following a 'wrong' policy — should not move to protect itself in such a situation would, I think, possibly be involving a dangerous precedent. But, clearly, it is now appropriate to ask: At what point does the defense of the 'system' corrupt that system? Just as clearly, once both the President and the men around him began to bend the law for 'good' means, it became easier for some of those around him to justify also bending it for 'bad' ends. We are evidently on the verge of a national debate over where the dividing point should lie — and, if we can learn something from it, that would be one of the few useful things that might come out of Watergate."

Robison asked that people be patient in making final judgments about President Nixon. Noting that this would not be easy, he said, "Some citizens, literally, want to 'hang' Nixon now, without waiting for the 'judge,' others say, as vehemently, that the whole inquiry ought to cease — that all we are doing is hurting ourselves by tearing the President down."

"Perhaps Richard Nixon cannot lead this nation during the next three and a half years. Perhaps he cannot repair the horrible gaps in his credibility. But I suggest we ought to give him a chance at trying. He may not succeed, but the governance of our nation has to go on."

Robison Calls Farmer Talks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. Howard W. Robison (R-27th District) has called a meeting of the upstate New York Congressional delegation for June 13 at 1:30 p.m. to discuss what he terms a "near crisis situation" facing New York State dairy and poultry farmers.

Robison has arranged for representatives from Cornell University Department of Agriculture to speak at the meeting headed by Dr. Bernard Stanton, chairman of that department. Officials from the federal Department of Agriculture will also be in attendance.

In announcing the meeting Robison said that farmers in his district (which includes the western sections of Ulster County) have contacted him on the seriousness of the problem of rapidly increasing feed grain costs. "It brought to my attention that a number of dairy farmers have been forced out of business in just the last two weeks because of the price squeeze now being experienced," Robison said.

Also on the agenda will be a discussion of several other problems of interest to farmers including transportation, a possible fuel shortage, the level of milk supports, the possible continuation of the emergency feed grain program and the proposal to halt exports of grain.

Meanwhile Rep. Robison has introduced two new bills with Rep. William Steiger of Wisconsin which would grant immediate U.S. citizenship to Vietnamese-American orphans who are to be adopted by American parents, and would establish a new branch of the Peace Corps, the Vietnam Assistance Volunteers, to work with refugees and orphans in Indochina.

According to Robison, "... in two areas — the adoption of Vietnamese-American orphans and the resettlement of refugees — there exists a large potential for tapping the qualities and energies of the American people that are a historical part of their character."

Robison reasoned further that, "By proposing the grant of American citizenship to Vietnamese-American orphans, we would help smooth the process of adoption of these children, as well as signal this country's willingness to accept Vietnamese-American orphans in our society. And, by proposing a Vietnam Assistance Volunteers program as a branch of the Peace Corps, we are responding to the sentiments we have directly received and know to exist in all parts of the country, that Americans want to contribute directly to the reconstruction of Indochina."

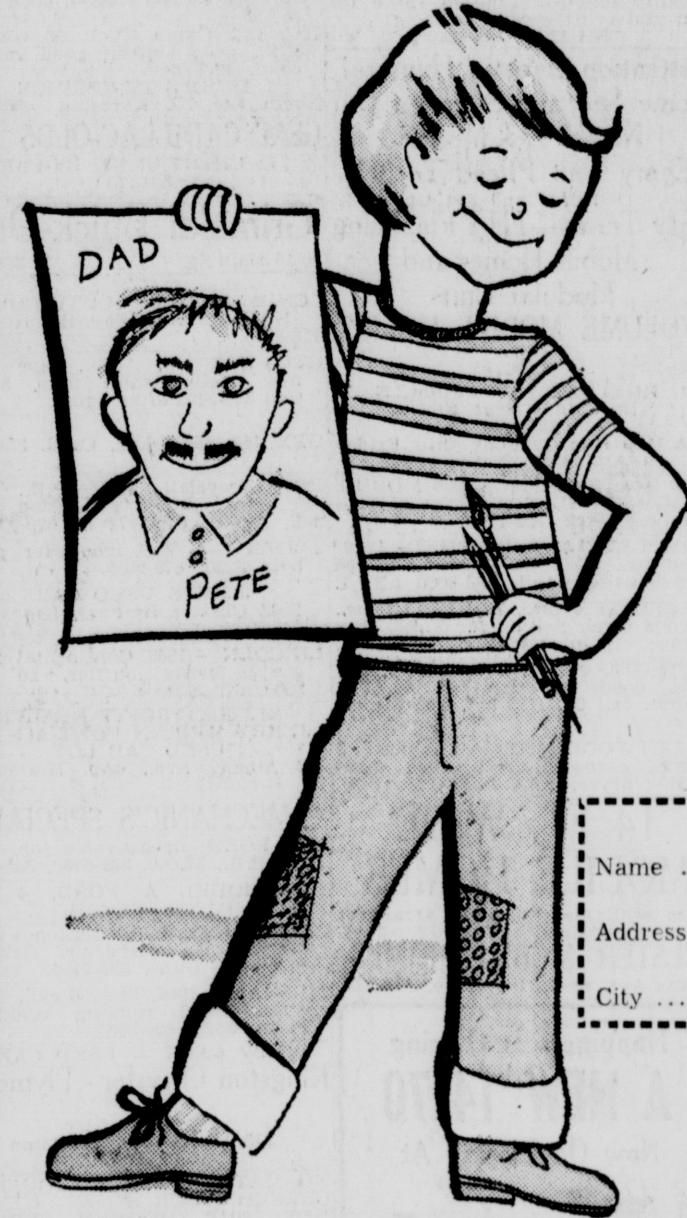

Robison commented that his new legislation would grant immediate United States citizenship to Vietnamese-American orphans once adopted through a U.S. adoption agency. "There are thousands of prospective parents in the United States who have directly indicated their desire to adopt a Vietnamese-American orphan," Robison said, "and I have little doubt that these children will quickly find homes if their adoption can be facilitated through the grant of United States citizenship."

Montreal Mode '73

Fall-Winter Designs Unveiled For American, Canadian Press

It's just a step across the border to Montreal — an exciting melange of modern underground shopping complexes and ancient cobbled streets...of grand tradition and contemporary culture...of haute cuisine and haute couture.

Montreal is fast becoming a major fashion center, and to prove it more than 20 top designers and manufacturers of women's and men's fashions paraded highlights of their Fall and Winter Collections before the American press at the second annual Montreal Mode Press Weekend sponsored by the Quebec Department of Industry and Commerce this weekend at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Montreal.

This year the impact of the two cultures of Montreal is easily identifiable in the fashion collections. For example, the English attitude toward fashion classics takes on a French accent which results in "franglais" — a word used today to describe a light-hearted mixture of French and English.

Throughout the collections the "franglais" look appears in nipped in bodices that extend over the hips...soft, blousy silhouettes spotlighting big shawl collars and large dolman sleeves and large patch pockets...sweetheart necklines and skirts that flip and flare. Some dresses feature shaped silhouettes — others gently skim the body. For evening there are voluminous skirts and flowing caftans.

Coats shape up and go wider at the shoulder. The wrap coat continues to be popular. Jackets inch down to finger-tip lengths.

Some pants take the straight and narrow path to fashion — others follow the jodhpurs curve in, or the bias flare out.

Two designers showed lounge wear — a market growing in importance in Montreal — and there were two distinct looks. One resembled the turn of the century evening costumery — very flattering and very feminine — the other an ultra-contemporary clinging jersey — quite sophisticated and sexy.

'AT HOME' fashions by Leo Chevalier combines subtlety of design with the softness of jersey that can step out with equal confidence. Thin, finely rolled bias edging ties up the sleeves of both the dress and the pajamas and wraps the waistline of the dress. From a collection for VAN ESSA of Montreal shown this weekend to American and Canadian women's page editors and fashions editors in Montreal, Canada. (Getz photo)

MONTREAL LEATHER serves up a tasty twosome of aniline leather. For him, a straight classic jacket. For her, a fitted jacket belted at the waist. Both with matching leather pants. (Getz photo)

Fabrics are every bit as diversified as fashion — tattersall plaids... wool crepes... tweeds... brushed challis... flannel... cashmere... corduroy and gabardine. Knits are newest when they are subtly patterned in shadings of taupe and greige with browns and grays and charcoal.

Predominant colors are hunter's green... camel... chocolate... beige... rust... burgundy... air force blue and black.

In Montreal, sueded and leathers are a three season fashion for both men and women. Newest for Fall are aniline glaze leathers with a distinct look of luxury seen frequently in pantsuits for both men and women.

Long recognized as a fur fashion center, some Montreal designers have fun with furs turning out fur sweaters...neat and narrow coats of fur combined with suede...great sweeping fur capes in the Kamourka theme. Others take a dramatic approach with full flare backs...fur on fur, such as combining Crown sable and soft broadtail.

Fur designers and manufacturers are careful to explain that all native fur trapping quantities are controlled by federal and provincial restrictions.

Men's wear is one of the most important facets of the Montreal export fashion market. There are two approaches to men's fashion. One is the great Canadian outdoors look of leather and suede — the other is the sophisticated city look of flannel and gabardine. For the younger market there are coordinates of corduroys, tattersalls...and tweeds in suits with many cutaway jackets and wide tuxedo lapels.

This year the fashion presentation of Montreal — fashion capital of Canada — made it abundantly clear that the designers are involved in the vital, exciting life of this "franglais" metropolis. With the burgeoning of the Montreal Fashion Market, clothes labeled "Made in Montreal" are appearing in strength on this side of the border.

Craft Fair Coming

Local Craftsmen Will Exhibit in Dutchess

Local craftsmen from this area will exhibit their handcrafted works at Craft Fair 8, the largest exposition and market of crafts in the country. And since the hobby fever is running high as ever, women will be able to gather up new ideas in various creative fields.

Set for June 29 through July 1 at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds in Rhinebeck, N.Y., this Fair is sponsored by the Northeast Region of the American Crafts Council and this year features more than 500 craftsmen, representing the entire country.

Included in this year's show will be practical stoneware casseroles as well as whimsical stuffed toys or soft sculpture; velvet smooth jewelry and massive metal sculpture; velvet smooth leather purses and rough-textured woven rugs and wall hangings; natural-grained wood bowls or furniture and flowing enamel plates.

Craft Fair 8 bears only slight resemblance to the myriad of summer craft festivals and sidewalk art-craft shows that now dot our summer calendars. Through its previous seven years, the Fair has established a reputation for high quality standards and professionalism in presenting creative and imaginative arts.

Many area residents will be participating this year. Among them are: Sylvia Hutchins, Woodstock, who will feature stoneware fountains and planters along with stoneware and polyester plaques and hangings;

Susan Dann, Woodstock, hand sculpted candles, delightful whimsical animals; Stephen Robin, Woodstock, who will exhibit functional sculptural furniture;

Win Nadel of Art Centered Gallery, Woodstock, exhibiting production pottery, mugs, pitchers, plates, functional pottery;

James and Helen Hosking of Accord, exhibiting metal; husband and wife team with a background in sculpture now designing and producing functional metal items for the home including lamps and weathervanes;

Tina Oppenheimer of Krumville, exhibiting crocheted items including blankets, rugs, mats and bags.

Also Toni Wilson Gran and Arthur Granof Kingston exhibiting wood furniture, copper and brass hammered, burnt and brazed weathervanes, candle holders and spoon holders;

Henry P. Summa of High Falls, exhibiting handblown glass decanters, vases, bogles and art glass;

Cardy Uzzle of Stone Ridge, will show pottery, mugs, plates and casseroles;

Charles Barnes of West Shokan, leather articles such as tooled and carved belts, watchbands and purses;

Gill Wilson of Kerhonkson, who will be exhibiting pottery;

Stephen Rowles of Kerhonkson, handcrafted bamboo flutes;

Monica Albright of Kerhonkson, jewelry including ceramic and silver;

Eric Snowden of New Paltz, exhibiting mobiles in wood, brass, bronze and copper;

Cynthia Winika Rokier of New Paltz, showing soft sculptures, pillow and hangings with delightful drawings and etchings used in combination with fabric;

Robert Sedstrom of New Paltz, featuring pottery, non-functional pottery using a combination of molds, decals and colorful glazes;

Raymond Bostwick of Red Hook, showing weaving, natural-dyed, hand-spun wool used in hand-woven pillow balaclavas and rugs.

There will be many more exhibiting from the Greater Poughkeepsie area including Campbell Hall, Washingtonville, Bloomingburg, Pleasant Valley, Rock Tavern and Sugarloaf.

Craftsmen will set up their colorful displays both inside the exhibit buildings and outside on the surrounding grounds. Many will demonstrate and explain the techniques in producing their work. And some doubly-talented craftsmen will sing and play guitars, dulcimers, and bamboo flutes.

More than 25,000 people visited last year's Fair in Bennington, Vt. It is hoped that the new location at Dutchess County Fairgrounds in Rhinebeck will attract even more. The fairgrounds will be open each day from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is one dollar and children under 12 are free.

Father's Day Is June 17th; Why Not Make Him a Gift

DESK ORGANIZER — This handsome and handy Desk Organizer was handmade for Dad. The empty cans are stacked in a pyramid and covered with clippings reflecting Dad's particular interests such as stock market quotations and a cartoon of Father studying the front end of the car Mother has been driving. Easy to do, it's a project the whole family can enjoy.

In many families, there is a delightful tradition of making Dad a present for Father's Day. In times gone by, such handcrafts made by a little girl or boy often became family heirlooms. History may be repeating itself today, since many youngsters are taking great pleasure in making things themselves.

Along with their interest in handcrafts is a real concern with the ecological idea of recycling what we used to casually throw away. With a bit of imagination, it is possible to turn these ordinary, everyday objects into small works of art.

A good example of this, is a handsome and handy desk organizer made from a collection of empty Pepsi Cola cans. The cans are stacked sideways and covered in a collage effect with newspaper and magazine clippings reflecting Dad's particular interests, i.e., stock market quotations, sports, cartoons, etc. As you will see from the easy directions given below, making this gift for Dad is a child's play yet it is something the whole family can join in doing.

Begin by assembling the materials needed:

6 cans
White glue and brush
Newspaper and magazine clippings

2 bottoms of cans
Felt Masking tape
Scissors
Clear varnish

Now remove only the tops of the 6 cans with a can opener. Stack cans pyramid-fashion on their sides; 3 cans on the bottom, 2 in the middle and 1 on top. Tape them together with strips of masking tape about 2 inches from top edge and bottom edge of each can. This will hold them all together firmly.

Cover sides of each can with newspaper clippings in an overlapping pattern, gluing them down with white glue. Allow to dry, then coat with clear varnish and allow to dry again. Cut 6 circles of felt to fit bottoms of cans. Glue them on.

Cut narrow strips of braid and glue along the edges of each can for decorative trim. Fold 2 can bottoms almost in half to form arch-effect and cover with felt. Glue both of these under front (open end) of desk organizer fitting them in the ridges either side of the center can. These serve as feet.

Flowing elbow-length sleeves added to the cape-effect from the scooped neckline. They wore matching picture hats and carried bouquets of red and pink carnations, red roses and rose heather with burgundy streamers.

Attendants were Alison Barber of Palenville; Diane Fong of Bayshore, L.I.; Judy Gambino, Kathy Siracusano, and Karen Robinson, all of Saugerties. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendants'.

Joseph Barber, brother of the bride, Saugerties, was best man. Ushers were Larry Siracusano, Danny Erceg, William Simmons and Edward Tucker, all of Saugerties; Garey W. Fong, Bayshore, L.I.; and Mark Jubie of Cementon. David Barber of Saugerties, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception was given at Sawyerkill Country Club in Saugerties.

The couple took a wedding trip to Florida.

The bride, a graduate of Saugerties High School, studied Retail Merchandising for her AAS degree at Ulster County Community College. The bridegroom is also a graduate of Saugerties High School. He served with the U.S. Army, earning the rank of Spec. E-5. He is employed at Sears Roebuck Sales Division in the automotive field.

Before You Buy: Study Consumer Education

By MARGARET DANA

This is the time of year when schools and clubs are planning their programs for next season. As well as general consumer buying information, there is great demand for subjects which open doors for real consumer know-how.

In checking with a cross-section of people to find out what kind of subjects seem to rouse the most response, I learned that the two top subjects for a majority of concerned consumers are: intelligent food buying and information on pollution — all kinds of pollution, but especially "noise" pollution.

There is an increasing number of excellently prepared programs available to be used either as part of consumer education in schools and colleges, or as planned programs for club meetings and adult education.

Two of these programs are so well done and timely I believe they would be highly successful in any community, whether for school or club.

Take the subject of food buying, first. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Service has just released a large Booklet titled "How To Buy Food: Lesson Aids for Teachers." This can be used as either a detailed guide for teaching a class in school, or just the framework for a study program.

The seven lesson plans are intended to be used with some basic information materials like the series on "How To Buy Meats, Dairy Products, Eggs, Poultry, Fresh Fruits and Vegetables, Canned and Frozen Fruits and Vegetables," and finally, "How to get more For Your Money."

Any and all of these subjects are almost sure to be of great interest to any audience. You could use one lesson by itself as a program framework or use several.

An active organization that is aiming to be of service to the entire community, could sponsor an entire series of lessons. And very often a speaker would be available from local Cooperative Extension Home Economics Service, or from a nearby college.

Supplementing the teaching guide is a suggested list of special booklets on each subject that can be bought and handed out to individuals at meetings. Some of the information is sure to surprise, like the special leaflet on how to buy dry beans, peas and lentils. It points out that beans, peas and lentils expand greatly when cooking. One cup of the dried beans, for example, yields 2 to 2 and three-quarters cups of cooked beans.

Also available are film strips, slide sets and even a crossword puzzle that is both entertaining and informative. For teachers or program chairmen who would like to see this guide, "How To Buy Food: Lesson Aids for Teachers," before deciding on its use, write to the Office of Communication, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Make a note that these educational materials are generally available in both Spanish and English, making them very helpful in various parts of the country.

The other program I have found is on the subject of sound — the kinds we like and the kinds we don't like. The first type is often good music and the second type we call "Noise."

The Koss Corporation, which specializes in producing stereo headphones, has developed a fascinating women's club program called "Live and Let Live." This company sponsored a unique research study at the University of Wisconsin on "Noise in the Home."

You may remember the small leaflet with the title, "Noise in the Home," which I was able to make available to readers through the courtesy of the Koss Corporation.

Now, that research study has been used as the basis for a woman's club program, not only discussing the facts about noise pollution in the home, but also providing some not-always-understood information about how a home can today have some great music that once was only available by attending concerts and operas in a few metropolitan areas.

The idea behind this contrast of sounds — music and "noise" — is an excellent approach to one big target: recognizing the harm that "noise" can do in the home and considering what consumers themselves can do about changing this trend.

For further information on this program and how to get the material, write to Miss Diane Levin, Harsh-Rotman and Druck, Inc., (M.D.), 108 N. State St., Chicago, Ill. 60602.

(Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R.R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914.)

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

... it tells you how

Care for Your Own Injured Animals

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

"Whether you live in a city apartment or a wilderness cabin," says one of MOTHER's veterinarian friends, "if you own pets or livestock you will — sooner or later — have to care for an injured animal. And — strangely enough — a pampered Persian cat, a backwoods pack horse or a suburban family cow all heal in basically the same fashion and all respond to similar treatment."

The fellow who recently made the statement is R.J. Holliday, D.V.M., and he's a handy man to have around. Holliday practices veterinary medicine in Missouri and, unlike many other vets (who seem to try to cure everything these days with massive doses of antibiotics), he always looks first for the simplest and most natural remedy for every ailment he doctors.

on bandages to discourage a patient from chewing on them!"

Dr. Holliday really reaches back into Grandpa's folk medicine for the next item he includes in his animal first-aid kit: the dried or fresh leaves or roots of the comfrey plant (Symphytum officinale). He knows — just as Granddad did — that a poultice made of the macerated comfrey roots or leaves contains "allantoin," a substance that stimulates the growth of epithelial (skin) cells and thereby helps speed the repair of hard-to-heal wounds or ulcerated areas on the body's surface. Even though comfrey may be found growing wild, the good doctor recommends that the owner of every suburban or country homestead cultivate a few of the easily encouraged plants.

Although R.J. Holliday certainly has respect for comfrey and other country remedies that work, I hasten to point out that he has an equally great respect for modern medical and dietary ideas that produce results. He is, for instance, a firm believer in using vitamins A, D and E — in the form of cod-liver oil and wheat-germ oil — both directly on a

COMMON SENSE CARE OF WOUNDS IN HOMESTEAD ANIMALS

That kit, according to our advisor, should contain — first and foremost — some mild soap. "Never put irritating, caustic materials such as turpentine, coal oil or salt on a wound," says Holliday. "They'll only further damage the injured tissues and thus impede the normal healing process. Mild soap and water is far better for removing any dirt that may be present and for reducing the numbers of contaminating bacteria on and around the injury."

Once a wound has been cleaned, Dr. Holliday says that it should be coated with an oily substance to keep it soft, and, thereby, promote its ability to heal itself. Holliday feels that ordinary oleo vaseline is about as good a product for this job as any. If you want to give the dressing some anti-bacterial properties, he advises that you add a small amount of Lugol's Iodine Solution to the vaseline.

Lugol's Iodine Solution (iodine in a water base) is classified as a prescription drug when bought for use on humans, but no restrictions are placed on its sale for veterinary use. A pint should cost you less than $3 and, in addition to its application in vaseline directly to a wound, it can be given orally as an anti-infective. The dosage is one or two drops for each five pounds of body weight. This is four to eight drops a day for a 20-pound dog and 200 to 400 drops (two to four teaspoons) daily for a horse or cow weighing 1,000 pounds. "Remember," though, cautions Holliday, "that cats are very susceptible to iodine poisoning and should never be treated with products containing the substance."

mending wound (that's one of the doctoring profession's newest discoveries) and as a supplement to the normal rations of an injured animal.

"Better yet," he says, "feed the cod-liver and wheat-germ oils to your pets or livestock regularly. A healthy, well-nourished animal heals much faster than one that is deficient in any respect."

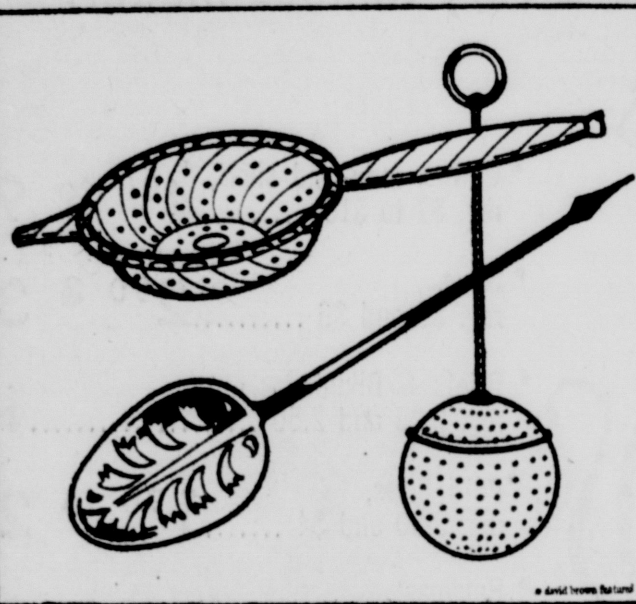

Dr. Holliday rounds out his emergency livestock healing kit with a generous supply of cloth and gauze that can be used for bandages, compresses and dressings. He says not to worry about the absolute sterility of this material as long as it is clean.

"I hope you'll never have to use this standby doctor's bag," R.J. says, "but if you do, remember that the most sacred precept of medical practice is: If you cannot help your patient, at least DO HIM NO HARM! Bear in mind that NATURE heals...we can only help. If one of your animals is injured, control any severe hemorrhaging with a tight — but not so tight that it shuts off circulation — compress or bandage. Forget techniques except as a desperate last resort, as they frequently do more harm than good."

"Once you've stemmed the flow of blood, clean the wound with soap and water and — if necessary — try to bring the edges of a severe cut together with skillful bandaging. If a bandage is not required to control hemorrhaging, to exclude dirt or to hold the edges of the injury together, though, don't use one. Most wounds will heal more quickly when exposed to the air...and that's as true for a tiny apartment lap dog as it is for the biggest, toughest farm bull."

ABOUT ANTIQUES

Mote Skimmers, Strainers, Tea-Balls

Tea drinkers of the eighteenth and nineteenth century were faced with a problem not usually encountered today — floating leaves, motes (particles), and tea dust in the brew. Tea-balls and fine grades of blended tea were not available in earlier years. Large Leaves, stems, and plenty of fine dust were commonly found in the home-blended tea varieties. Mote Skimmers, Strainers, and Tea-Balls were devices grandmother used to help serve a clear cup of tea.

The Mote Skimmer was a spoon-shaped utensil with a pierced bowl and slender handle. The bowl was used to skim the floating motes and leaves from the pot or cup. The handle (usually of silver wire) was also put to good use to clear the teapot spout when it became clogged. Sometimes, tea was poured into a Strainer, which rested on the cup, to remove the stray leaves. Tea-Balls were hinged, pierced, ball-shaped devices into which tea was placed and then immersed into the teapot. A chain with hook, or a handle was attached for convenience.

These small necessities from the past are often found fashioned from silver with patterns matching tea-set or flatware services. Most leading silversmiths in North America produced them and the quality was generally high.

As conversation pieces or collector's items, they are quaint reminders of the past. Why not impress your guests by using one of these curios the next time you make tea?

Demand for Cycles On the Increase

NEW YORK — Americans travel on wheels. Increasingly, they're traveling on bicycle wheels.

As more people get around by pedal power instead of motor power, so the dangers to the cyclists increase.

Consider these statistics: An estimated 15 million bicycles will be sold in the United States this year, 55 per cent of them purchased by adults.

Last year, 13.8 million were sold, 50 per cent of them purchased by grownups.

Fatalities among cyclists last year totaled 1,100, up from 1972's 850, according to the National Safety Council.

Imports Increasing Several states have passed legislation to allocate one per cent of the auto use and gas tax to develop bicycle paths and other facilities. A bill before the U.S. Senate has a section calling for safety education in the schools.

With the demand for cycles increasing, the number of imports is bound to increase also. The Bicycle Institute of America BIA, a trade group representing U.S. manufacturers, says that as of July 10 all imports will have to pass standards outlined by the Federal Bureau of Product Safety.

A New York police sergeant known as "Mr. Bicycling" for his leadership in the field, thinks strongly that a lot of motorists must change their attitude for safety's sake.

"An accident often is the case of the cyclist not being educated to handling his vehicle in traffic," said Al Toefield. "This is where he's jeopardizing himself. Adding to it is the motorist who thinks he owns the road and anyone else on it is infringement of his rights."

Bike Marathon Set Sergeant Toefield was coordinator of the Bicycle Marathon held May 26-27 in New York's Central Park.

In an interview, Toefield called it "absolutely necessary" that bicycle safety as well as auto be taught in schools.

The Consumer Question Box

By MARGARET DANA

Q. My husband and I are considering a set of encyclopedias for our children ages 9-2. Some of the sets we have seen sell for around $300. Are these that much better than some I have seen in grocery stores selling for $2 a volume or so? And do children do that much better in school for having the encyclopedia, as salesmen claim?

A. I have given a number of answers to this same question from others in the past year or two. It is true that some encyclopedias offer more information than others. But I suggest you visit your nearest local public library and check what encyclopedias they carry on their shelves. Ask the librarian to talk with you about the selection of a set for young children. And remember that parents can give their children a good sound foundation on which to start school, by talking with them, reading with them, encouraging them to reach for information about the world around them. And inquiring mind makes a good student — not a particular brand of encyclopedia.

Q. The enclosed ad was in last Sunday's paper. It offers a good buy on a brand of paper diapers. We went to the store intending to buy two dozen boxes, but were surprised to find at the counter a limit of two boxes per customer. The ad did not say this, but the store manager said that the label inside the package said "Limit Rights Reserved," and this took care of the limitation. Is this legal? Shouldn't the ad have stated this?

A. Yes, it should, but it is true mistakes happen and words are omitted.

However, I suggest you write to the Division of Consumer Protection, Federal Trade Commission Washington, D.C. 20580, and repeat this account of your situation. You can suggest that the FTC should consider ruling that this limitation on goods must be published in a store's advertising, or the customer cannot be limited in purchase.

Q. I would like to know what you advise about storing meat or poultry for a couple of days. Should we leave it in original packing or wash it and put it in a plastic bag?

A. For several days' refrigeration, you may safely store meat or poultry in the package in which you bought it, but should slit open the plastic cover. Make sure your refrigerator is constant at about 40 degrees.

Q. On a cellophane bag containing grapefruit I found a note in small type that referred to certain chemicals used as fungicides. Would these fungicides be likely to get from the rind into the fruit when it is cut in half?

Margaret Dana welcomes opinions and questions on buying and will use them in her column as rapidly as research and space permit. Personal answers are impossible due to large volume of mail from readers. Address: Margaret Dana Research Center, R.R. 1, Chalfont, Pa. 18914.)

for serving and would it have a harmful effect?

A. The U.S. Department of Agriculture always recommends that fruits and vegetables to be eaten raw should be thoroughly washed on the outer surface before being cut up for the table. While this removes pesticide residue it also helps to remove ordinary soil left by human hands, which can also transmit germs.

The FDA requires that any pesticide or fungicide residue shall be within a limit that lets the food be safe to eat as it is shipped to market. Normal trimming, peeling, washing and cooking, also substantially reduce the amount of pesticide residue actually consumed. FDA laboratories continuously test individual samples of fruits, vegetables, etc., for pesticide residues. When a sample is found over the safe limit, the entire lot is seized for federal court actions.

Q. A number of us would like to know if fabrics and textile products such as garments, blankets, carpets and bedding, when imported from a foreign country, must meet the same standards for flame-resistance as the new U.S. standards require of domestic goods.

A. Yes, according to the 1967 amendment to the U.S. Flammability Act, imports must meet the same standards that domestic manufacturers must meet. It is the importer himself who is held responsible for this, not the seller in a foreign country.

Q. What is the difference between unsweetened chocolate, sweet chocolate, milk chocolate and cocoa?

A. They are all made from the small, dark-brown cocoa bean. But the difference comes from the variety of bean, how it's roasted and what it's combined with. Unsweetened chocolate is made from shelled cocoa beans roasted and ground. It is more than 50 per cent fat and is used primarily for cooking.

Sweet chocolate is made of the same ingredients with sugar, cocoa butter (a fat from the cocoa bean) and vanillin added (Vanillin is an artificial vanilla flavor).

Sweet chocolate has these ingredients in specified proportions, and milk chocolate has them, plus milk solids.

Cocoa powder is unsweetened chocolate with most of the cocoa butter removed, and comes in two types: American processed and Dutch processed. The Dutch type is not necessarily imported, it just has an added alkali to produce a darker color and stronger flavor.

About Soups, Salads

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

It is bikini time again. Even those women who titter when they realistically think of covering a few inches with even less cloth pay lip service to a diet.

A tasty and less mentally painful way to lose a few pounds is with a low-calorie soup and salad regime. Here are eight recipes keyed to most ethnic tastes that are based upon a 1200-calorie-per-day diet. This diet allows a range of 350-500 calories per meal.

For a nutritional balance of foods select fish-beef-poultry protein, fruits, vegetables and dairy products in the low-calorie range in other meals or snacks to round out each day's diet. Do not skip meals. Nibble on celery or have a cup of beef bouillon rather than having a diet cola to soothe between-meal hunger pangs. Always consult your doctor before dieting.

Mexican Meatball Soup

One can (10½ ounces) condensed golden mushroom soup
One-half pound ground beef
Two tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
One-quarter teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
One-half cup carrots cut in thin sticks
One-third cup celery cut in thin sticks
One and one-quarter cup water
One-quarter teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
One-eighth teaspoon ground cumin
Mix 2 tablespoons soup with beef, crumbs, salt and pepper. Shape into 24 small meatballs (one-half inch). Arrange on broiler pan. Broil four inches from heat until brown; turn once. Meanwhile, combine carrots, celery, water and seasonings. Cover; simmer 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in remaining soup; add meatballs. Heat; stir occasionally. (Makes about 3 cups soup or 4 servings with 229 calories per serving). Serve with Tostada Stackups.

Tostada Stack-Ups

Two cups chopped fresh tomatoes
One-third cup sliced green onion
Two teaspoons finely chopped hot cherry peppers
One teaspoon salad oil
One-quarter teaspoon garlic salt
Four tostadas (crisp fried tortillas)
Four cups shredded lettuce
One cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
Bottled low calorie salad dressing
In bowl, combine tomatoes, onion, pepper oil and garlic, chill. Top tostadas with lettuce, cheese and tomato mixture. Serve with dressing if desired. Makes about 2 cups sauce. (Four servings — 207 calories per serving.)

Beefy Onion Soup

One tablespoon butter or onion
Two large cloves garlic, minced
One tablespoon butter or margarine
One can (10½ ounces) condensed beef broth
One can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
One soup can water
One-half cup Burgundy or other dry red wine (or water)
Two tablespoons chopped parsley
Dash pepper
Four melba toast rounds or thin slices French bread, toasted
One tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
In saucepan, cook onion with garlic in butter until tender. Add broth, soup, water, wine, parsley and pepper. Cook over low heat 10 minutes; stir occasionally. Sprinkle toast with cheese. Float on soup. Makes about four and one-half cups soup. (Four servings — 180 calories per serving.) Serve with Devilish Eggs.
(*Omit wine—135 calories per serving.)

Devilish Eggs

Eight hard-cooked eggs
Three tablespoons sour cream
One tablespoon prepared mustard
One tablespoon white vinegar
Two tablespoons dried chives
One-quarter teaspoon celery salt
Dash pepper
Paprika
One package (9 ounces) frozen whole green beans, cooked, drained and chilled
Salad greens
Low calorie salad dressing
Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks; mash. Blend yolks with sour cream, mustard, vinegar, chives, celery salt and pepper. Stuff lightly into egg whites; sprinkle with paprika. Chill. Arrange eggs and green beans on salad greens. Serve with your favorite salad dressing. Makes 4 servings. (4 egg halves per serving — 220 calories.)

Green'N Gold

SOUP

One can (10½ ounces) condensed chicken broth
One package (10 ounces) frozen cut asparagus
One-quarter cup sliced green onion
One-eighth teaspoon ground mace

Fruit Salad Gel Rose For the First Course

....Or the Last!!

A novel written in 1859 by George Meredith, titled The Ordeal of Richard Feverel, contained more romance than nourishment, apparently. For one of the characters remarks, "Kissing don't last; cookery do!" In other words, when the first blush of love begins to fade, the inner man must still be fed.

A romantic way to begin or end a dinner could be with Fruit Salad Gel Rose. This delicately colored, sweetly flavored, gently molded salad combines sweet Rose wine, fresh strawberries, banana slices, and canned sliced peaches, with unflavored gelatine holding all the ingredients tastefully together.

Because it's flavorless, colorless and contains no sugar, Knox Unflavored Gelatine lets the subtle taste and pastel colors of the fruits and the wine shine through perfectly. As the mixture is soft and doesn't lend itself to molding, it shows up best in pretty glass goblets or dishes. The salad can be many things, really. You might serve it as a cool appetizer for the first course. The Scandinavians contributed fruit soups to the Western World; they are especially satisfying in the warm weather. Then again you might enjoy it as a pleasant side dish salad with a hot meat entree or as a light and refreshing dessert, topped with a spoonful of sour cream, after a hearty meal. It's the just-right dessert that could become a real sweet habit.

Fruit Salad Gel Rose

1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1 cup cold water
1 one-quarter cups Rose wine
One-half cup whole small strawberries or halved large strawberries
1 can (8 three-quarter ounces) sliced peaches, drained
One-half cup sliced banana
Dairy sour cream

In medium saucepan, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over water; let stand until gelatine is moistened. Place over low heat; stir constantly until gelatine dissolves, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in wine. Chill, stirring occasionally, until mixture is consistency of unbeaten egg white. Fold in fruit and spoon into stemmed glass; chill until set. Garnish, if desired, with a dollop of sour cream. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Note: The gelatine mixture is too soft to mold; it is best served in glasses.

STRAWBERRIES, bananas, peaches and sweet Rose wine combine in a softly gelled fruit salad that's delightful as an appetizer, delicious as a dessert.

Mexican meatball soup served with a salad of Tostada Stack-ups makes pleasant low-calorie dieting.

Advice to Servicemen—Same Today!

By BIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Even tho, for the most part, the United States is "out" of Viet Nam, we still have thousands of men stationed in Southeast Asia as well as in other countries abroad, so I wonder if you would consider running the column you wrote several years ago, signed GI.

It made a tremendous impact on the servicemen when it ran in the Stars and Stripes. Many of them cut it out and sent it to their wives. And months later I was asked for additional copies. Thanking you in advance.

U.S. ARMY CHAPLAIN
DEAR CHAPLAIN: With pleasure. And here it is: DEAR ABBY: My problem is one that bothers thousands of other GIs so I hope you will print your answer because it is needed badly. I am a happily married man with a wonderful wife and two small children back in the States. I've been in Korea for four months. After living a normal life for three years, what is a young, healthy man supposed to do for his physical needs?

There are 12 women for every GI over here and the women practically throw themselves at our feet. Don't get me wrong, Abby, I love my wife and always will, but I have a long hitch over here and I am only human. This letter is sincere and I am not ashamed to sign my name, but if you use it, please sign me

DEAR GI: Assume for a moment that I received the following letter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman with a wonderful husband and two small children. My husband has been in Korea for four months. After living a normal married life for three years, what is a young, healthy woman supposed to do for her physical needs? There are plenty of men around and when they learn my husband is in Korea, they practically throw themselves at my feet.

Don't get me wrong, Abby, I love my husband and I always will, but he's going to be gone a long time and I am only human.

GI'S WIFE

WELL, GI: I would tell that woman to keep busy as possible with her duties and as many wholesome activities as her time and energy permit. I'd suggest reading, exhausting, physical exercise, and yes, even prayer! I'd tell her to stay sober and to avoid temptation and to write you every day! And that GI, is my answer to you and to all your buddies in the same lonesome boat.

ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My 4-year-old daughter likes to "ride horses" on my foot occasionally. My wife charges that this is "seductive and obscene." What do you think?

A MINISTER
DEAR MINISTER: "Obscenity" (like beauty) sometimes lies in the eye of the beholder.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell Ronny's mom not to worry about her son's being the youngest and smallest in his class. Ronny is a Capricorn — the most intellectual of all signs, and they reach intellectual maturity early. Besides, being short never stopped Napoleon.

I graduated first in my class, and I also was the youngest and smallest.
ANOTHER CAPRICORN

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Local TB Hospital Patient Service...Era Ends

KINGSTON—Members of the Patient Service Committee of the Catskill Region TB and RD Association have announced that a long and successful era in TB Hospital Patient Service program has come to an end.

Homer Folks State TB Hospital at Oneonta has discharged its TB patients recently and the hospital is now closed permanently. The Ulster, Greene and Sullivan Counties TB patients have been returned to the local area for treatment. Currently, the committee and its funds is planning to study local TB patient service needs in order to plan any identified needs.

The Catskill Region TB and RD Patient Service committee dates back more than 20 years to local TB Hospital-Christmas Seal program work. Mrs. Samuel Feldman, Kingston, has served since the Dr. Joseph Jacobsen's directorship of the Ulster County TB Hospital. Clifford DuMond and Mrs. Jacob Francis, also Kingston. With the transfer of the TB patients to the State Hospital at Oneonta, the committee enlarged specialized services.

The Catskill Region Committee and the TB-RD Association were organizationally a part of the State Hospital District Patient Service Committee which met quarterly. The local group funded the district patient program providing patients with store accounts, personal supplies, library materials, therapy and crafts materials, barber and beauty shop services and student supplies and equipment.

The local representative delegates to the district committee were Mrs. Feldman and Mrs. N. DuBois Riley, Catskill. Mrs. Riley also served the State Patient Service Committee as treasurer. Alternate Mrs. E. Robert Johnson, Saugerties and Mrs. Earl E. Libman, Catskill.

All area patients were remembered on their birthdays with gifts and cards. Gift shopping was done monthly by Mrs. DuMond and Mrs. Francis. Cards monthly were provided by Patient Service Committee member Mrs. William Schreiber, Kingston. At Christmas, also, all hospitalized area TB patients received gifts provided by the TB-RD Association's special restricted sessions for doctors, nurses, Patient Service Fund and hospital administrators and key personnel on the new local trend through the shopping of Mrs. Feldman and Mrs. Johnson. In addition, at least once annually, the local Patient Service group provided tray favors for all the patients at the State institution. The Catskill Region Patient Service Committee also made frequent patient visitations to Ulster, Greene and Sullivan TB patients, taking with them members of families of patients unable otherwise to visit their hospitalized members. In addition to the district representatives, those who served in visitation work include the Rev. George L. Wood, Saugerties; Mrs. John B. Plass, Mrs. Carol P. Sperling and Mrs. Virginia Turk all of Kingston; the late Mrs. Raymond Plank, Catskill; and TB-RD Association staff members Mrs. Robert Van Meter and E. Robert Johnson. Johnson also served on the District Hospital group's Executive Committee.

John M. Robbins, TB-RD Association president, pointed out that the patient service committee, along with the Association's Patient Service Fund, stand ready to establish patient-oriented service as need indicates. He noted that the Ulster County TB and RD Christmas, also, all hospitalized area TB patients received gifts provided by the TB-RD Association's special restricted sessions for doctors, nurses, Patient Service Fund and hospital administrators and key personnel on the new local trend through the shopping of Mrs. Feldman and Mrs. Johnson. In addition, at least once annually, the local Patient Service group provided tray favors for all the patients at the State institution. Johnson also served on the District Hospital group's Executive Committee.

Red Cross Vols A Family Affair

Many volunteers who are active in American Red Cross programs become such ardent supporters of the organization they often involve other members of their own families. This is true in the Ulster County Chapter of the American Red Cross where many family groups serve as volunteers.

A prime example is the present Chapter Chairman, James Thompson of Kingston, whose grandmother, Mrs. Frank Thompson, also of Kingston, was a Red Cross volunteer for many years. She was delighted to witness her grandson's election to the chairmanship of the local chapter last year.

Family groups whose members serve as active certified American Red Cross First Aid Instructors include Frank X. Backus and his wife, Nancy, New Paltz; Donald and Karen Beaumont, and their son, Gary, of Lake Mohogan, together with Donald's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Willard K. Walker of Glenford; Mr. and Mrs. Joaquin (Marilyn) Delgado, Marlboro; Hugh Greer and his brother, Phillip, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. George (Ruth) Kelley, Woodstock;

Robert Kurland and his son, Fred, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas (Joan) McElrath, Rosendale; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph (Delores) Leclerc, Glenford and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. (Joan) Morehouse, Woodstock.

Some of these first aid instructors are also active in other Red Cross programs including Frank Backus, who also serves on the chapter Disaster Committee and Water Safety Instructor. Donald Beaumont is one of the Chapter's First Aid Instructor-Trainers as is Robert Kurland, who also serves as a member of the chapter's Board of Directors, on the Disaster Committee, as a Water Safety Instructor, and as a representative of the chapter on divisional and national levels in disaster and Red Cross Youth activities.

Daniel Morehouse is a member of the Board of Directors of the Ulster County Chapter and as the chapter's First Aid Chairman. In addition to being an active first aid instructor, Delores Leclerc is one of the chapter's clerical aides. Ralph S. Smith of Kingston, another first aid instructor, is also a member of the chapter's Board of Directors, while his wife, Gay, an active volunteer in the Service to Military Families Program, joins 12 other volunteers to provide the 24 hour a day, seven day a week coverage which the local chapter gives to emergencies.

Red Cross Water Safety Instructors who are members of the same families includes brothers and sisters Kathryn and Stephen Cambone of Highland, and Delores, Michael and Steven Hoffer of Hurley; and sisters Christine A. Leonard and Jan A. Snyder of Clintondale. Arlene and Diane Reffelt, Shokan, and Gail Richter and Christine Richter Clist, Kingston; brothers Jeffrey and Michael Rubenstein, Accord, Eugene and John Warfel, Saugerties; and husband and wife teams such as Mr. and Mrs. Steven (Carol) Fulford, Oliveira; Mr. and Mrs. Allan (Joan) Heinze, New Paltz, and Mr. and Mrs. Gregory (Cathleen) Welch, Gardiner.

In addition, Allan Heinze's mother, Audrey, is a certified Red Cross First Aid Instructor and has received Red Cross Disaster Orientation.

"VOLUNTEER OF THE YEAR"—Harold E. Finkle of Kingston (R) receives the "Volunteer of the Year" award given to him as a member of Mid-Hudson Heart Association Chapter of the New York State Heart Assembly at the recent annual meeting in Cooperstown. Presenting the award is Richard Cope, who received a heart transplant four years ago.

Heart Association was Harold E. Finkle, of Kingston, chairman of the Heart Fund Advisory Committee.

Finkle, an officer in the First Albany Corporation and a member of Governor Rockefeller's Conservation Commission, was Ulster County heart Fund chairman in 1970 and recently represented the Mid-Hudson Chapter at the National Heart Conference in Dallas, Texas.

Cope, who received his heart from a teenage boy killed in a motorcycle accident, has spent the four years since his operation traveling around the country thanking volunteers for giving him his life.

"You have literally given me my life," he said to Finkle. "And however long it lasts, I would never have had it were it not for the efforts of yourself and all those who assisted you..."

Some Guidelines

Seeing Europe on a Bike

By United Press International

It takes a bit of muscle, time and an adventurous spirit, but if you've got all three maybe you are thinking of touring Europe by bicycle. If you are, here are some guidelines:

One of the crucial bits of advice most experts offer to Americans heading for a European bicycling tour is "bring your old saddle."

Saddle is, pretty obviously, a pretty obvious, saddle or allowing time to bicycle lingo for a seat and wearing those who use such terms explain that if a saddle is not broken in properly, riding will be uncomfortable. A sore rider, it seems, often ends up in scrapping the whole idea and taking a train.

That is just one of many tips being offered the growing number of Americans, mostly young, who "do" Europe by bike. Americans are realizing what the Europeans have long known, that bicycling is one of the cheapest and most enjoyable ways to see the continent.

Holland has hundreds of miles of bike trails that allow safety and quiet even in the most densely populated areas. Ireland (the Republic, that is, not the embattled North) is a virtual bicycler's paradise with light traffic, and camping just about anywhere by simply asking the landlord.

To travel any distance in comfort, planning is essential—such as bringing your old saddle or allowing time to bicycle lingo for a seat and wearing those who use such terms explain that if a saddle is not broken in properly, riding will be uncomfortable. A sore rider, it seems, often ends up in scrapping the whole idea and taking a train.

Physical preparation, Karen and Gary Hawkins advise in their book, "Bicycle Touring in Europe," should begin at least a month in advance with short day trips around the neighborhood, leading up to one or more overnight jaunts.

"This trip should be planned what the Europeans have long known, that bicycling is one of the cheapest and most enjoyable ways to see the continent."

you are going to tour light-experiment with weight distribution and to find out what is in a nice motel and eat in a restaurant. If you are a camper-tourist, plan to stay in a good campground and cook speed can be purchased at one of your favorite meals for dinner.

On the practice trips, the rider should carry most of the luggage planned for Europe to kit are a must.

TEA IN JAMAICA—Taking tea beside the sea in the late afternoon, pampered guests enjoy the amenities of the newly refurbished Shaw Park Beach Hotel in Ocho Rios. Golf, tennis, water sports and uncrowded beaches are among the offerings of such hotels in Jamaica. They also provide fine dining and evening entertainment. From May to December, these same amenities cost the vacationer in Jamaica from 20 to 50 per cent less than they would in the winter season. (Jamaica Tourist Board photo)

The free-tuition scholarships are made possible through current gifts and through income from the initial endowment of the late William H. Webb. Webb, a prominent nineteenth century shipbuilder, founded the school in order to provide a free education for deserving young men interested in such a career.

In a recent national study, Webb was found to be one of the 27 most selective colleges in the United States. Hence the students chosen for the Class of 1977 are among the top graduates of their secondary schools, with outstanding personal and academic records. Twelve states will be represented in the freshman class when school opens Aug. 27.

TEEN SCENE The Happy Medium

An alleged comic once wrote that TV was referred to as a medium because so little of it was rare or well-done. TV in its present state, even without the gum commercials, reruns, and constant repetitions of John Wayne movies, could stand a lot of improvement. It has undergone great change in the last five years, but the next five ought to see a big maturing of the little screen. As cartridge TV moves from the class of a millionaire's toy into a workingman's luxury, network TV is going to be in big trouble if it doesn't change some of its basic attitudes toward the viewing public.

When movies first became popular, producers still seemed to think that they were dealing with stage plays. They were filmed from one camera location, using obviously fake props, and sometimes even included a scene of a velvet curtain drawn back at the beginning of the picture! It was soon realized that one of the advantages of a movie camera was that it did move, and close-ups, pen shots, and location films entered the picture.

TV producers for years seem to have believed that TV was a smaller version of the movies—and usually a milder version. Or a more inspired version. Movies made ten years ago still have to have words blipped out before they can be shown on daytime TV, and movies made five years ago wind up being cut by a third to eliminate any objectionable material—and sometimes some of the plot.

However, TV is not a smaller version of a movie screen. It is unique in several ways, and recognizing these differences and building on them will eventually bring TV to its maturity, after a rather prolonged adolescence.

TV has certain limitations. While it is watched in the comfort of the home, it may not be viewed under ideal conditions. Not everyone has a color TV, or even a properly adjusted black-and-white set. Thus, a commercial featuring a white cat against a pale pink background, may reach the viewer as a baffling white screen with words coming out of it. A radio could do better. TV differs from radio only in the fact that it is visual, and therefore, anything shown on it should be interesting to the eye—this being a point which many TV shows miss. Interview shows, for instance, would be almost as interesting over the radio, unless one is really heavy on seeing what the star attraction is wearing that night. Many televised rock concerts would be just as interesting over the radio or on a record, unless the performers are really interesting to watch as well as to listen to. Attempts to make a piano concert or a big-band show interesting on the tiny screen usually succeed only in curing the insomnia. Road-racing, long-distance running, and often even baseball and football can only be interesting if you are an avid fan of the game. On the other hand, boxing, wrestling, and other visual sports make interesting—if violent viewing.

When TV tries to compete with movies as a storytelling dramatic medium, it usually comes in second best, simply because the amount that can be spent on a TV production is much smaller than that which can be spent on films. In addition to being second-best, TV tends to become just plain second. Since The Godfather became such a big hit, how many mumbling underworld leaders with photogenic offspring have you seen on the series TV shows? Avid watchers and channel changers can tally up at least two a week.

On the other hand, TV can make it possible for us to see things that we otherwise might never get to see. Unfortunately, that included dancing dolls leaping out of cleanser cans and talking bottles of household cleaner. That same technology can bring the viewer ballet-live from Russia, astronauts live from the moon, wild animals in their natural habitat, and strong visual news coverage. (That does not include announcers that look like the taxidermist botched their facelift reading AP releases off the teleprompter. TV news coverage is a regrettable stepchild of the industry.)

Television has educational potential which has nothing to do with Sesame Street or College of the Air. A book showing, for instance, how to repair a washer, can do no better than a series of photos showing the process, with appropriate text. TV could do the job far better by demonstration. Through old newsreels, history of the last 50 years can be made truly live. And, of course, on TV, Janis Joplin and Jimi Hendrix can still do their trip, and W.C. Fields, Clark Gable, and Charlie Chaplin are still at their prime. Unfortunately, TV rarely gathers its vintage film resources into anything but random filler between the sitcoms and the news.

Hopefully, creative young people will begin to use TV as a unique creative medium, not a radio with a picture, a shrunken movie screen, or a moving newspaper.

All America Roses for 1974

SHENANDOAH, I.A. One hybrid tea and two floribundas have been selected as the All-America rose award winners for 1974, according to the All America Rose Selections in Shenandoah, Iowa.

They include the Bahia, a bright orange-pink floribunda; Bon Bon, a pink and white bi-color floribunda and Perfume Delight, a clear pink hybrid tea. As per the AARS rules, these winners will not be offered for sale until this fall and the spring of 1974.

The flowers of Bahia are vivid, pinkish-orange, 2 and one-half inch blooms, borne in clusters of three to several. To Bon Bon, a pink and white bi-color floribunda and Perfume Delight, a clear pink hybrid tea, the while gently exuding a spicy fragrance.

Bon Bon is regarded as an ideal landscaping floribunda which is densely covered with dozens of delightful pink and white bi-color blooms. The beautifully displayed over masses of bright green leaflets. The flowers of this award winner are borne in large clusters, opening continuously from spring until the fall frosts.

It has an additional asset of dropping its petals cleanly. The pink and cream buds in the clusters pop open to rounded cupped 3 and one-half inch blooms, each formed as many as 25 petals of extra heavy substance.

Perfume Delight, the hybrid tea winner, has a rich, spicy fragrance that could fill a room from a single bloom. Three plants in a garden will add delightful perfume to the whole area.

It is a vigorous, well-branched medium-tall plant, covered with large, leathery leaves completely clothing the strong, bright green canes. It gives an unending display of flowers from spring until heavy frost. With its fragrance Perfume Delight makes a perfect single bud for the office or floating in a bowl and is just as valuable for a sophisticated arrangement

A Flat Roof On This One

By JACK McEENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

A home that contains a wealth of general living space is offered in today's feature. "The Update" is a three-bedroom house highlighted by flat roof treatment.

Close attention has been paid to integrating of functional qualities, for year around living. In this respect attention is drawn to the provision of an open patio plus a protective breezeway between the main structure and the carport.

Within the general living area, planning holds to modern styling. Besides the spacious living room, located at the rear for complete privacy, the designer created an alternate purpose area shown on the plans is a study room. For semblance of separation from the front entry, a half wall with spindles to the ceiling was included. But this is a matter of choice. Without it, the room is given greater dimension and, possibly, versatility.

The efficient kitchen with a front location adjoins a small lavatory, basement staircase and breezeway.

The exterior shows brick at the front thru the walk area and wood shingles for the remainder of the front, sides and rear. "The Update" contains 1,324 square feet of living space, with an overall length of 76 feet, including the breezeway and carport.

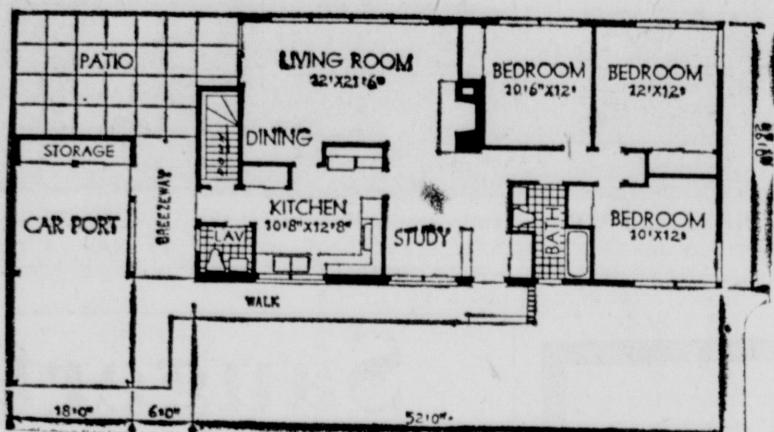

Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Advice to Home Purchasers On Getting Most for $$$

BERKELEY HEIGHTS, N.J. Because a home is the largest single purchase we will make, how can we be sure that we are getting the most for our money?

From surveys made by national realty associations and government organizations, the National Better Housing Council has compiled some important advice for prospective home buyers. At the outset, the Council strongly urges you to think of the house's resale value. The national average of home ownership is only seven years, so the time to think about selling your house is when you buy it.

Secondly, don't just select a house, but look at its location.

Is it near schools, shopping, work, and close to family and friends?

Next check the neighborhood. Is it going downhill? Is it near land zoned for industry or commercial use? If so, the resale value of the house will erode along with the neighborhood.

Now check the important features of the house. How many bedrooms and bathrooms are there? Although your family may be small now, you should plan for growth. Equally important, almost one third of the homes sold a year ago had four or more bedrooms and at least two baths. Make sure the house you buy has desirable resale features.

Getting the most for your housing dollar is not just what you pay for the house, but what you have to pay to keep it in top condition. Maintenance, as every homeowner will tell you, is what makes a home out of a house. Some people choose brick because they know it requires little or no maintenance.

Check the heating equipment. Remember that a hydronic (modern hot water) home heating system with a cast iron boiler is reputed to last for 40 years; steel boilers will give 20 years of service. Warm air furnaces are said to last for 15 years.

Annual Pruning Needed For Flowering Shrubs

STAMFORD, CONN. Flowering shrubs need annual pruning—after blossom time—to keep them in shape, encourage development of new wood, boost vigor and to promote prolific blossoming next spring, says Robert A. Bartlett, president of the F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company.

Pruning of azaleas should be done lightly, thinning the dense surface growth except where dead branches are to be removed. Andromeda can be reduced in height by heavy pruning after bloom. Rhododendron seldom requires pruning. When it does, be judicious, cutting above whorls of leaves.

A beauty bush can be kept within bounds by reducing the number of old canes. Lilac should be thinned carefully since blossoms appear on two and three-year old wood.

Deutzia needs shaping, but never a crew cut. Old branches of flowering quince should be removed at the base. Flowering almond requires renewing each year by pruning old wood and cutting back flowering wood after blossoming. After flowering, long shoots of forsythia should be cut back and old wood thinned at ground level. Weigela canes should be thinned and flowering branches reduced to encourage strong wood for next year's bloom.

Whatever you prune, shape the trees and shrubs to their natural symmetry. Use sharp shears. Never whack or tear bark; clean cuts at a slant are important.

Energy Crisis Grows As Fuels Diminish

Using ELECTRIC HEAT

is a RECKLESS WASTE of our DWINDLING FUEL RESOURCES

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

- (1) Public utilities in this area use fuel oil to generate electricity.
- (2) It takes three gallons of oil to generate enough electricity to produce the same number of BTU's for heating electrically as one gallon of oil will produce for heating with oil. This means that when electricity is used for heating, our dwindling oil supplies are being used up three times as fast as necessary. Incidentally, this is why it costs 2½ to 3 times as much to heat with electricity as with oil, for the same construction and insulation.
- (3) These electric generating plants not only operate at a very low efficiency rate of about 35%, but they burn heavy residual fuel oil, which has a substantial sulfur content. This contributes much toward air pollution. Look at the smoke-stacks of your nearby electric utility plant, and you'll see what we mean.
- (4) Although utility companies piously urge "conserve electricity" and "Save a Watt," they are actively and continuously selling electric heat for new homes and buildings — right today.

It makes a lot of sense to let more economical, efficient HEATING OIL do the job of heating your home or building ...DIRECTLY and at LOWEST CONSUMPTION of our IRREPLACEABLE FUEL RESOURCES.

The lead of the fourth best of your longest and strongest suit against no-trump contracts is something bridge players have been taught from time immemorial.

Some modernists have been getting away from it but the experts stick to it consistently except that they temper all rules with common sense. One bit of this common sense is that you make deceptive defensive plays when they can't fool your partner and can fool declarer.

West's lead of the four of hearts is an example of this deception. He has three aces and two jacks and all his partner can hold is some patience and perseverance. He wasn't dealt any high cards.

South can count the usual knocks out West's ace of clubs. West plays the ace and six of hearts. Declarer wins with dummy's queen and cashes three clubs.

West discards the nine and jack of diamonds. He doesn't bother to signal because it doesn't matter one bit.

South can count the usual eight tricks. Should he try for the ninth in spades or diamonds?

He is sure West is concealing the deuce of hearts. He does not know who has the 10.

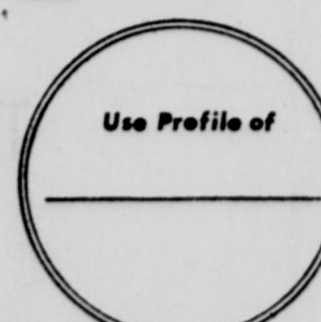

He will probably try the spades and wind up behind the eight ball.

'Just Leave It to the Lord'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A young man from Alexandria, La., sat on the steps of a University of Notre Dame building, wondering where he would sleep for the night. "Well," concluded Greg Bonner, his face brightening, "I'll just leave it up to the Lord." That was the kind of immersion in faith and reliance on it displayed here last weekend at a gathering of 20,000 Bible-reading, Pentecostal-style Roman Catholics, rejoicing in Jesus. They usually hugged each other on meeting, rather than shaking hands. They exuded such infectious cheer that ordinarily detached outsiders found themselves trading smiles and good-wishes with passersby. It was a rare atmosphere. Here are a few scenes from it: A businessman in a golfer's cap and a companion sat on a low stone parapet near a campus golf course, taking in the sun. A pretty, shapely blonde, in miniskirt and halter, came up and handed them a card. Before they examined it, she said, beaming, "I love you, too." As she sauntered on, the somewhat startled men looked at the card, which read, "Jesus loves you."

Court Can't Rule on Morals

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
It's often said that "morality can't be legislated." Neither, apparently, can moral issues be settled by judicial fiat.

The U.S. Supreme Court tried to settle a basically moral issue when it ruled 7 to 2 last January that a woman in the first six months of pregnancy may have an abortion on demand. But the court's ruling has not ended the controversy over legalized abortion. If anything, the battle rages today more hotly than ever. At least a dozen bills are pending in Congress to amend the Constitution to overturn the court ruling.

Rhode Island has enacted a law which states explicitly that "life commences at the moment of conception" and a fetus "shall have the legal rights of a person." That would make abortion tantamount to murder.

Ruling Draws Criticism

The reasoning of the Rhode Island legislature is directly contrary to that of the Supreme Court, which held that any unborn baby is not a "person" in the eyes of the law and therefore does not enjoy a right to life which the government is required to protect. Many observers predict the Supreme Court will strike down the Rhode Island law. But it could do so only by asserting power.

Philip B. Kurland, professor of law at the University of Chicago, is perhaps the nation's leading authority on constitutional questions involving church-state relations. He said recently the "primary defect" of the abortion ruling is that the Supreme Court "failed to account properly" for its decision.

Deep Question

"It has issued judgments but has not afforded adequate rationales for them," said Kurland. "It has attempted to rule by fiat rather than by reason." In a letter to New Republic magazine, Dr. Meade P. O'Boyle of Upper Arlington, Ohio, a physician, put his finger on the question that most bothers critics of the Supreme Court ruling: "What body of evidence establishes that the unborn child is sufficiently different from all other human beings that it is properly considered a nonperson before the law? . . .

"Given that an unborn child can be killed legally anytime before birth, what principle protects the life of a full-term baby? Or any other human being?"

That is a deep question, and no one — not even the Supreme Court — can really settle it.

Priest Helps the Peasants

ESCADA, Brazil (UPI) — priest of Cabo, Pernambuco, Father Mello has spearheaded in the early 1960s when he founded the first farmworkers' unions in the country. Until then rural workers were unprotected by Brazilian labor legislation. From Cabo the union organizing spread rapidly throughout the country. Mello helped spur national concern for the peasants by making a number of speaking tours.

Other programs scheduled are an Adult Prophecy Conference and a Singles' Conference. The camp is at the corner of Route 199 and the Taconic Parkway. The Camping Program is opened to all regardless of race or religious affiliation. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Camp Director, The Rev. Jay A. Berges, RD 2, Box 236, Red Hook, 12571.

Church Camp Program

RED HOOK challenged to explore the Bible for its relevancy to their lives and contemporary society, and to make a personal commitment of their lives to Jesus Christ and His Teachings. Activities include camp fire times, crafts and nature study, recreation including swimming, boating, hiking, basketball, volleyball, softball and archery. Camps include Boys and Girls Camps for those 8-12 years of age; Teen Camp and also "Camp Meeting" for the entire family.

Shifts Focus
Mello said he shifted the focus of his work after 1964 from union organizing to seeing that the 1962 Worker's Law was put into practice. "Even today, 10 years after its adoption it has not been put into complete effect," he said. "But when the unions take a violation to court it is usually backed up."

In 1962 President Joao Goulart signed the Rural Workers' Law which gave the peasants the right to a minimum salary and social security benefits—rights which the urban working force had been granted in the 1930s.

Critics on the left berated Mello for working within the government-directed labor system. There were some, including many clerics, who thought Mello had gone too far. They labeled him communistic. Mello maintains that the unions gave the peasants the legal instrument they needed in their fight for better salaries. "The workers saw that unions provided them with the power to achieve their claims," Mello said in an interview. The 1964 military coup d'etat threw out the Goulart government and installed a military-based regime allowed work toward a plan, and not to the new unions to continue. It fit a plan to the people."

A Master of the Kora And Other Musicians For 7th Folk Picnic

An outstanding African musician, Bai Konte, will be one of many entertainers at the Seventh Annual Hudson Valley Folk Picnic to be held at Kennedy Marina, Yonkers, Saturday, June 16.

Bai Konte is from The Gambia, West Africa, where he fulfills two roles in society as a Jali ba or great musician and also, a Marabout, a Moslem holy man.

Bain Konte, who brings to America a new concept of traditional African culture and music, plays the kora, a 21-stringed harp, and his hauntingly familiar chords have a universal appeal. He is known for his control, speed and imaginative ornamentation and is a master of the four styles of kora playing — the Gambia, Senegal, Mali and the two Guineas. He has performed for politicians, regional chiefs, and the President of Gambia, and has recorded for Radio Gambia and the Gambian National Archives.

Appearing with Bai Konte and such well known entertainers as Judy Collins, Don Cooper, Jimmy Collier, David Amram and Dan Smith, will be several local groups from the area: the Leake and Watts Steel Band, Lincoln High School Concert Choir, Messiah Revival Group, Pike Irish Dancers and Polonaise Dance Group.

The Hudson Valley Folk Picnic is an annual affair and again this year the proceeds will go to help the sloop Clearwater in her program as a floating classroom and symbol of the need for a cleaner Hudson River. Clearwater will be at dockside, open to the public, during the picnic.

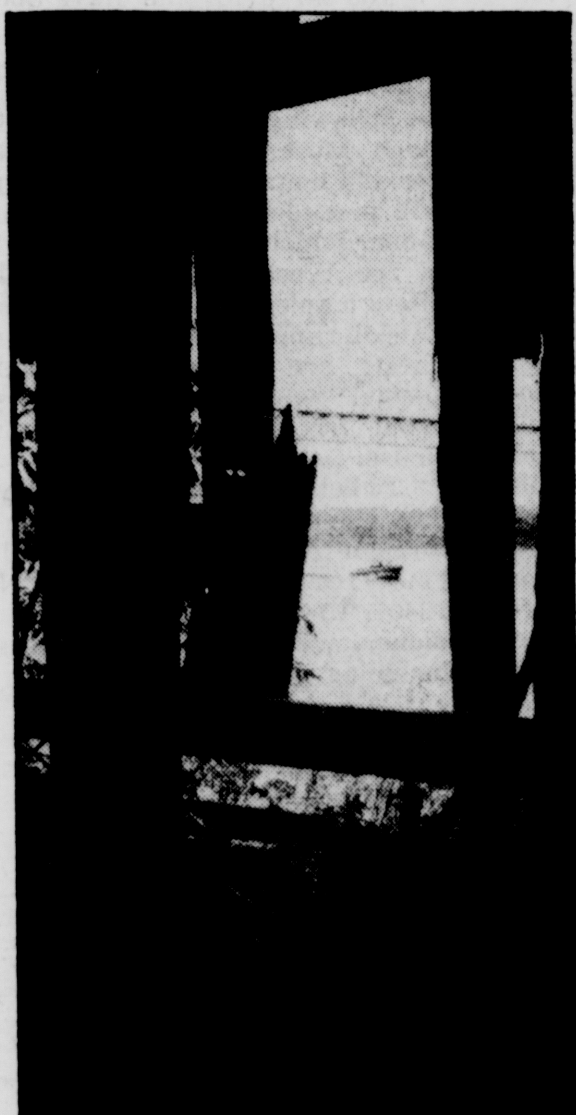

In addition to entertainment, there will be exhibitions and demonstrations of Hudson Valley arts and crafts, and refreshments. Picnickers are urged to bring their own gear.

Kennedy Marina is on the east bank of the Hudson adjacent to the Hudson River Museum and may be indicated as Trevor Park on older road maps. Parking space will be available, but it is recommended that all who can take the Penn-Central Railroad to Glenwood Station in Yonkers, a short walk to the Marina. Donation is $3 (adults), $1.50 (children under 12, senior citizens). Rain date, Sunday, June 17.

A Ghostly Gallery in an Old Brickyard

Wooden doors and window coverings — no longer bolted shut — and swinging open to the wind on rusty old hinges.

Through the battered-by-time boards of a brickyard shed — a view of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge and a modern day speedboat zipping through the waters of the Hudson.

Carloads of brick once groaned under their heavy burden along these now weed-choked tracks — Ulster County manufactured bricks destined for the sidewalks and streets of New York and Baltimore . . . or the stately mansions of Philadelphia.

Hundreds of voices of men at work once echoed off these walls and rafters when brickmaking was a burgeoning industry here. But the visitor in search of the past at Star Brickyards today hears only the hollow sound of his own footsteps.

Sumptuous Buffet Dinner At Mohonk for Canawlers

As a follow-up to the recent gala opening of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Historical Society's Museum in High Falls, there's a still more festive occasion on the way — the D&H Society's Annual Dinner at Mohonk Mountain House in New Paltz, Saturday, June 16. Anyone interested in canal lore and the "good old days" in general, is invited to attend this traditional event.

The museum opening attracted a record number of visitors; featured an autography party for Alf Evers, author of The Catskills — From Wilderness to Woodstock, and Manville B. Wakefield, author of Coal Boats to Tidewater, the definitive history of the D&H Canal. Copies of both volumes will again be available at the annual dinner and Wakefield, who was the principal speaker at last year's dinner, will again be on hand to answer questions pertaining to canal days. This will be particularly appropriate, as this year's speakers will discuss the ecology of the canal route and the preservation of landmarks along the D&H.

All the resort facilities of the famous Mohonk Mountain House will be available from early afternoon onward for those attending the D&H Society Dinner. Guests can confirm their reservations at the hotel desk upon arrival; and all are invited to visit the newly established Mohonk Carriage Museum to view its array of old-time vehicles and other mementos of bygone years. This has been scheduled as a new and special feature for "canawlers," as some of the exhibits are closely related to canal history, most notably a two-horse treadmill, still in perfect operating condition.

Too large for the D&H Society Museum, it was shipped to the Mohonk Carriage Museum for display there.

Following the tour of the Carriage Museum, a "Dutch Treat" cocktail hour from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. will precede the sumptuous buffet dinner which will be served at 7:30 in the West Dining Room, which offers a splendid vista of the entire Catskill range. Following the dinner, guests are invited to attend a special entertainment being provided by the Mohonk Mountain House.

Tickets for the dinner on Saturday, June 16, can be reserved through Mrs. William Russell, 9 Pine Tree Drive, New Paltz, N.Y., 12401, 914-255-1629. Price for the dinner will be $11 per person, including gratuities and tax.

Satellite Show

Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company is currently readying its next production, "A Snoopy Satellite Show." This attraction is being staged as a benefit performance for the ballet company by Estelle and Alfonso, and will feature students from their Highland satellite studio.

Highlight of the show will be the appearance of the Peanuts gang in person, who will entertain along with local youngsters. Appearing will be Snoopy, Charlie Brown, Lucy, Schroeder, Linus, Sally, Pig Pen, Franklin and Peppermint Patty. All forms of dance, mime and songs will burst forth on the Highland High School stage on Sunday, June 17 at 2 p.m. In addition, Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company will dance a short, lively waltz variation to complement the diversified program which will also include the Estelle & Alfonso T.V. Dancers. Children are invited to attend "A Snoopy Satellite Show" free of charge. An adult donation is only $2. Tickets are available from Estelle & Alfonso, 109 Cannon Street, Poughkeepsie, Benson's Mens' Store and Fair Lady III Beauty Salon in New Paltz, and Highland Department Store.

Introducing

The Puppetry Of Rod Young

Kindergarteners, third graders, sixth graders and those in between have shown their obvious delight and response to the entertaining and educational performances of The Rod Young Puppet Show.

Good news for all area youngsters, then, is the signing of Rod Young and his show for two performances at Woodstock's Cubiculo Theatre, operating in conjunction with the National Shakespeare Company in the art colony. The Master Puppeteer, who works with many different types of puppets, will perform at Cubiculo's Byrdcliffe Theatre first on July 14 at 1:30 p.m. A second staging of the puppet show is set for July 28 at 1:30 p.m., also at Byrdcliffe.

And, for those who want to learn as well as be entertained, Young will conduct a workshop at Byrdcliffe for children ages six to 12 on Aug. 4. It'll begin at 10:30 a.m., break for lunch at 12:30 p.m., and will be followed by another puppet show at 1:30 p.m.

The workshop will include instruction on how to create puppets from common materials, and how to manipulate the simple puppets once made.

The puppetry workshop will be the first in a series of all-day children's workshops at Byrdcliffe this summer. Others will include two each in fencing, dance, theatre, film and poetry.

Historical Contest

Town of Lloyd Historian, Beatrice Wadlin, announces a grant has been received from the America The Beautiful Fund of New York for a competition among local young people to depict local historical sites and events of interest in various media. Subject matter must relate to the Revolutionary War activity in the Town of Lloyd area and will be used in the 1976 BiCentennial celebration.

Ande Roumelis will direct the projects through the Highland High School Art Department and its summer workshop.

Categories will include landscape paintings, genre scene drawing, prints of sites by etching, engraving, woodcut, etc., photos of local scenes and illustrations of Warren Sherwood's writings and poems. Four prizes of $50 each will be awarded. A commission of $200 will be given one outstanding work and such work of art will become a permanent part of the Lloyd Historical Society exhibit. An exhibition catalogue of photographic reproductions will be made for the historical society. All art work must be accompanied by supporting historical data.

Participants should contact Miss Roumelis at the school or Historian Wadlin. They will issue materials and instruction. A fall exhibition with a reception for the public is planned.

MANY LUXURY CARS DON'T GO FAR ENOUGH.

All of them have power steering and power brakes as standard.

But you have to pay extra for air conditioning and radial tires on some.

Others make you pay extra to sit on leather.

Most don't even offer fuel injection or four-wheel power-assisted disc brakes.

The Volvo 164E offers all the above as standard.

So does one other popular imported car. But it goes for around $14,000.

And that's going too far.

Saratoga Festival Opening

June 15 with 3 Specials

Marking Debuts & Returns

Seals and Crofts, the guitar-mandolin duo known for the poetic lyricism of their intricate and unusual harmonies, will debut at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center as the opening program on June 15 at 8 p.m.

Their music, which upon first hearing seems Baroque in nature, actually is a blend of Oriental, classical, country, blues, jazz and rock. Their show moves from soft, melodic, haunting harmonies to a spirited saxophone solo by Jim Seals, and often ends with 10 minutes of hand-clapping, foot-stomping music of the country fiddle by that former Texas State fiddle champion.

Seals and Crofts currently have two albums on the charts, "Summer Breeze," and their most recent, "Diamond Girl."

Chuck Mangione is next in line opening weekend; will appear with concert orchestra and guest soloists at Saratoga on Saturday, June 16 at 8 p.m.

Mangione, who plays flugelhorn, will be making his second appearance with the Saratoga Festival. He debuted at the Center last summer.

Mangione started his musical career on trumpet in Rochester, where he began recording, with his brother under the name of the Jazz Brothers, as a student at the Eastman School of Music.

Following a tour with Art Blakey and engagements with Kay Winding and Maynard Ferguson, he returned to Rochester and began writing music for symphony orchestra to complement the basic quartet. He wrote an entire concert, "Friends and Love," for the Rochester Philharmonic which was seen nationally on the NET network and was recorded for release by Mercury Records. A single on that album, "Hill Where the Lord Hides," climbed to the top 10 on the charts all over the U.S. and his concert,

"Together," became a NET special.

Pink Floyd, the British rock group that topped the charts with its latest album, "The Dark Side of the Moon," closes out the opening weekend at Saratoga on Sunday, June 17 at 8 p.m.

This group has the distinction of having been among the most genuinely mad and most musically enduring of the "underground groups" that emerged in England during the mid-Sixties.

In 1968, Pink Floyd music moved from the free-form psychedelic explorations that had resulted earlier in "Interstellar Overdrive," into the territory of space-rock. The sound track of "More," a film released in late 1969, brought the group's name into the consciousness of the street-level public for the first time.

Most of 1969 was spent working on "Ummagumma," and then on the music for "Zabriskie Point." In 1970, "Atom Heart Mother," written by the entire group, was among the most successful of the plethora of classical-rock weddings that flooded the market at about that time.

Pink Floyd took it on the road in this country in late 1970 in performances complete with chorus and orchestra. Their presentation today is nothing short of spectacular: lights; clouds of smoke formed by 600 lbs. of dry ice; a quadraphonic sound system throughout the theater and their own brand of music.

Their other albums have included the retrospective "Relics," the well-received "Meddle," and "Obscured by the Clouds," music from the film "The Valley."

Tickets for all events of Saratoga Festival '73 are available at the main box office on Route 50, and at all Ticketron outlets. Mail orders should be sent to the Saratoga Performing Arts Center, Saratoga Springs, N.Y., 12866. For information call (518) 587-3330.

The Fantasticks

The Fantasticks, a musical recently completing its 14th anniversary in New York City, will be presented tonight, Sunday, June 10, 8 o'clock, at the Goddard-Riverside Camp for Older Adults, Rifton.

The play has had the longest run of all American musicals and will be performed by a cast of eight professionals with experience on and off Broadway. One of the group was in the Broadway production of Oliver for three years. Sherry Lynn Productions is bringing the play to the camp.

Time to Remember, one of the hit songs, and Harvey Schmidt's music together with Tom Jones' lyrics, account for the play's popularity. The plot follows the romance of a boy and girl whose fathers scheme to keep them apart, hoping by reverse psychology to bring them together.

Do you remember the streetcars of Kingston? Memories of this vanished and almost forgotten transportation are revived in old photos such as this — of a trolley competing with the horse and buggy and tin lizzies along Broadway. and memories will be revived, too, at the Pageant of Trolleys on June 23 in East Haven, Conn.

The Forgotten Transportation Will Be Remembered June 23

A trip into nostalgia is slated Saturday, June 23 at the Branford Trolley Museum, 17 River Street, East Haven, Conn. At that time the Branford Electric Railway Association will present its fourth consecutive Pageant of Trolley Cars.

It will be a rare opportunity for the general public to see more than 20 vintage trolley cars in operation including several cars built prior to 1900. An informative narrative will describe each car as it passes the viewing area and will place the role of the car in the development and decline of what was once the fifth largest industry in the United States.

Pageant shows will begin at 11 a.m., 12:30, 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. In between shows visitors may ride many of the trolleys on a two and a half mile round trip scenic line. There will be ample opportunity to view more than 50 other trolleys that are on display and to visit the Sprague Museum Building where photographs, models and exhibits of the trolley era are on display.

From before the turn of the 20th century through the Roaring 20's, trolleys were a way of life throughout the country. From daily urban transportation to adventurous family excursions, the trolley was the vehicle of the times. First horse drawn and later electric powered, the streetcar had a way of sparking the imagination of writers and songsters through the years.

Here in Kingston, the trolley was truly the Streetcar Named Desire when it came to summer attractions at Kingston Point. Many a local resident can recall the trolley trip in the open summer cars down to the Point for a day's outing.

At the Branford Trolley Museum, the two and a half mile rides are routed past scenic woods, salt marshes and acres of streetcar, interurban and rapid transit equipment. Rides start from in front of the Sprague Memorial Building at 17 River Street. Refreshments, gift shop and picnic area are available.

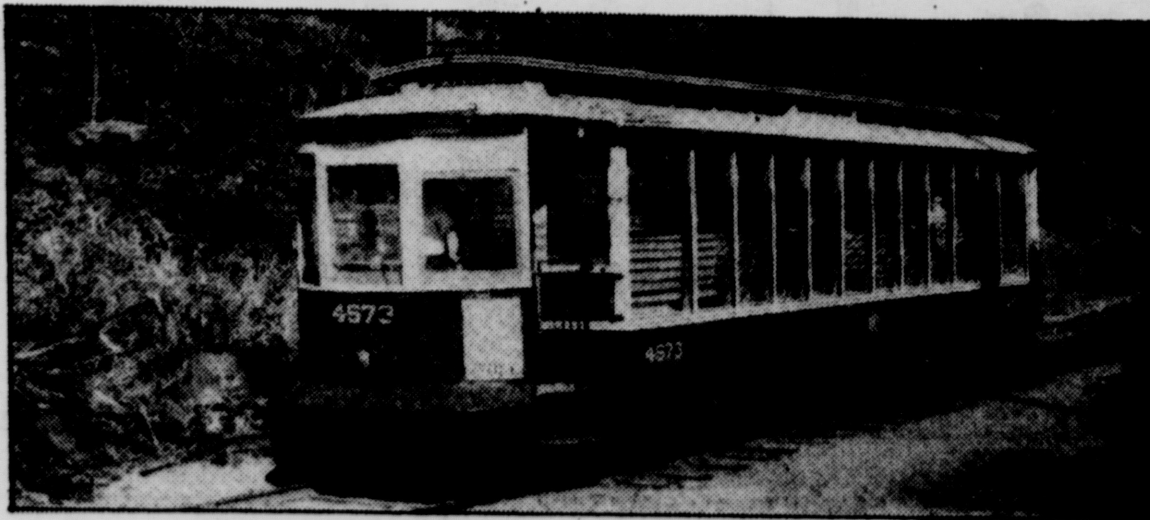

Cars most often used for the recreated excursion are Connecticut Co. open cars 1414 and 1425; Third Ave. lightweight 629; Brooklyn convertible 4573 and North Shore interurban 709.

For those who wish to make a return trip into nostalgia after the Pageant of Trolley Cars date, museum hours are Sundays, through November; Saturdays, June through September; weekdays July through Labor Day with cars operating 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., weekends and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays.

Visitors are advised to use Connecticut Turnpike exits 51 (eastbound) or 52 (westbound), following signs from East Haven Green to River Street.

On Pageant Day donations will be $1.50 for adults; 75 cents for children 6 to 14 and free for children under six years of age. At other times adult fare is 75 cents, children 30 cents, under six free. All-day passes are one dollar for adults and fifty cents for children.

The Branford Electric Railway Association is incorporated as a non-profit historical and educational institution. Memberships are available at the museum.

If you go to the Branford Electric Railway for the Pageant of Trolleys, you'll be able to ride this streetcar over 2½ miles of trolley track on a 20-minute excursion past scenic woods and salt marshes — and acres of streetcar, interurban and rapid transit equipment.

Dutch Coin Named Guilderland

What's in a New York name? There's a Dutch settler's dream of finding riches in his own kind of promised land in the name of Guilderland, a suburban township west of Albany.

During the 18th century, Jean de Neufville (NERF VEEL) and his son left their native Netherlands to escape certain religious and political pressures their family had been subjected to there. Their hope was to re-establish the family's window glass-making business somewhere along the prosperous Hudson River valley.

Since there was already a flourishing trade in British-made window glass, the Neufvilles were rather brave to attempt this venture, but Jean de Neufville was a man of hope and perseverance.

At last he found what seemed the ideal site, the sandy wooded region west of Albany, where nature had furnished the raw materials of glass-making: sand for glass and wood for potash. He is believed to have said to his son, "let this be our 'Guilderland,'" from the Dutch word "guilder" for coin.

The Neufville glass-making venture never made a profit and Jean and his son never received the hoped-for guilders of entrepreneurial success. But, despite their personal failure, the Neufville's choice of a name continues to reflect the Dutch heritage of Albany County today.

Only One More Year For Flip, Geraldine

The '73-'74 season will be Flip Wilson's fourth and last on his weekly hour on NBC-TV, in accordance with the terms of his recent new deal with the network.

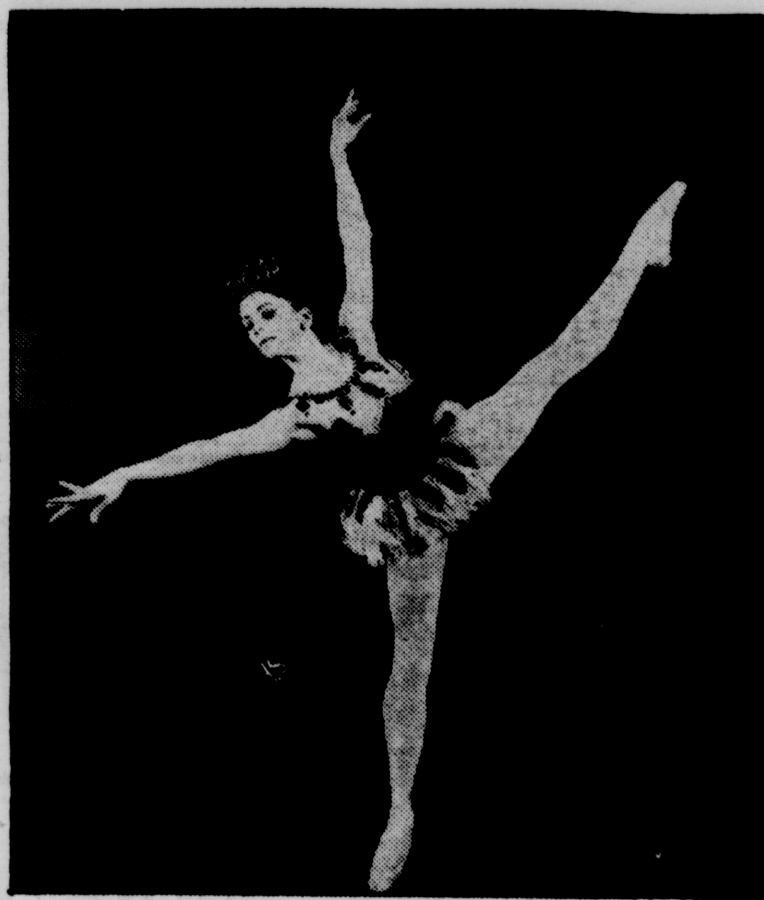

Wilson did not want to commit himself for the upcoming season on a weekly basis because it meant he would have to turn down some ten million dollars in night club-concert-motion picture-record offers as has been the case in the past three years on the variety show. However, when NBC was advised Wilson did not want to commit himself for a fourth year, the network countered with a proposal so generous, Wilson couldn't turn it down. The deal includes one more year of Flip's weekly variety format followed by a season of specials for '74-'75.

Why did Wilson want out of the series which catapulted him to superstardom, acquiring such noteworthy acclaim as the Peabody, Emmy, Man of the Year in Broadcasting, Grammy, Golden Globe and American Guild of Variety Artists Comedy Star of the Year Awards, among others? Flip, a great believer in concentrating all his creative energies on one project at a time, has done just that since the show's inception, to the exclusion of all other activities with the possible exception of an occasional fundraising appearance. With this new pact, Flip will now have time to do in television and other fields what his series schedule didn't permit. It isn't that he's turning his back on the TV tube that delivers him into millions of living rooms each week, he's simply shifting his gears.

Added to Flip's efforts as the star of his long-running series — the highest rated variety show in the network's history — will be nightclub engagements, concerts, motion picture appearances and recordings. His first album, "The Devil Made Me Buy This Dress," netted him a gold record when it passed a million in sales and a Grammy Award for the "best comedy recording."

Flip is currently on vacation, with production to resume on his final season of weekly variety hours the last week in July. Geraldine, of course, is also on vacation.

Marnee Morris dances to the music of Igor Stravinsky in "Rubies," the ballet that composes the second act of "Jewels," George Balanchine's ballet that returns to Saratoga after becoming one of the New York City Ballet's most popular programs with audiences there.

'Jewels' Returns For Spa Staging

The New York City Ballet will give two performances of George Balanchine's popular and highly-acclaimed full-length ballet, "Jewels," during its season at Saratoga Performing Arts Center opening Tuesday, July 3.

The three-act ballet, choreographed by Balanchine in 1967, will be presented Wednesday, July 4 at 8 p.m. and Saturday, July 7 in a 2 p.m. matinee.

The idea for a new ballet using highly jeweled costumes was initiated in Europe over 15 years ago when George Balanchine met the jeweler Claude Arpels. For the first act, "Emeralds," Balanchine chose music by Gabriel Faure from "Pelleas et Melisande" and "Shylock;" for the second act, "Rubies," Igor Stravinsky's Capriccio for Piano and Orchestra, and for the third act, "Diamonds," Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 3 in D Major.

The pale, scintillating green of Faure, the scarlet warmth and dazzle of the Stravinsky caprice and the crystalline hard-edged brilliance of Tchaikovsky present metaphors of sparkle and preciousness in a show-window of lavish gems.

Only the second act "Rubies" was presented at Saratoga last season as part of the New York City Ballet's extraordinary "Stravinsky Festival." In previous summers, "Jewels" had become one of the company's most popular ballets with Saratoga audiences.

For advance ticket information on all performances of the New York City Ballet, The Philadelphia Orchestra, the City Center Acting Company (formerly the Millard Acting Company) and the many special events of the Saratoga Festival 1973, write or call Saratoga Performing Arts Center, area code 518-587-3330.

Joan Plowright (left) as Masha in The American Film Theatre's presentation, "Three Sisters," and her husband, co-star and director, Laurence Olivier (center) as Chebutikin, with Alan Bates (right) who plays Vershinin in Chekhov's classic play. Bates will also be seen in Film Theatre's production of "Butley," recreating the role that earned him this year's Tony Award for Best Broadway Actor.

The American Film Theatre: Something New for Movies

Laurence Olivier's masterful screen version of Anton Chekhov's "Three Sisters" will be brought before American and Canadian motion picture audiences by The American Film Theatre as one of the eight major film productions to be presented in its premiere season commencing this Fall.

The American Film Theatre begins its season this October with some 500 theatres throughout the U.S. and Canada participating. Eight new major film productions will be shown in matinee and evening performances on two successive regularly scheduled week-days each month for eight consecutive months. Charge facilities of the Card Division of American Express Company will be available to purchasers of Season Subscriptions.

In addition to "Three Sisters," The American Film Theatre will also include in its premiere season seven new major motion picture productions based upon great contemporary works of the theatre:

Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh," Eugene Ionesco's "Rhinoceros," Harold Pinter's "The Homecoming," Edward Albee's "A Delicate Balance," John Osborne's "Luther," Simon Gray's "Butley," and Kurt Weill and Maxwell Anderson's "Lost In The Stars."

"The decision to present 'Three Sisters' as part of our initial program is an especially significant development to the state of the film arts today in that it is a graphic demonstration of what The American Film Theatre could mean to makers of serious motion picture drama all over the world," said Film Theatre president Ely Landau.

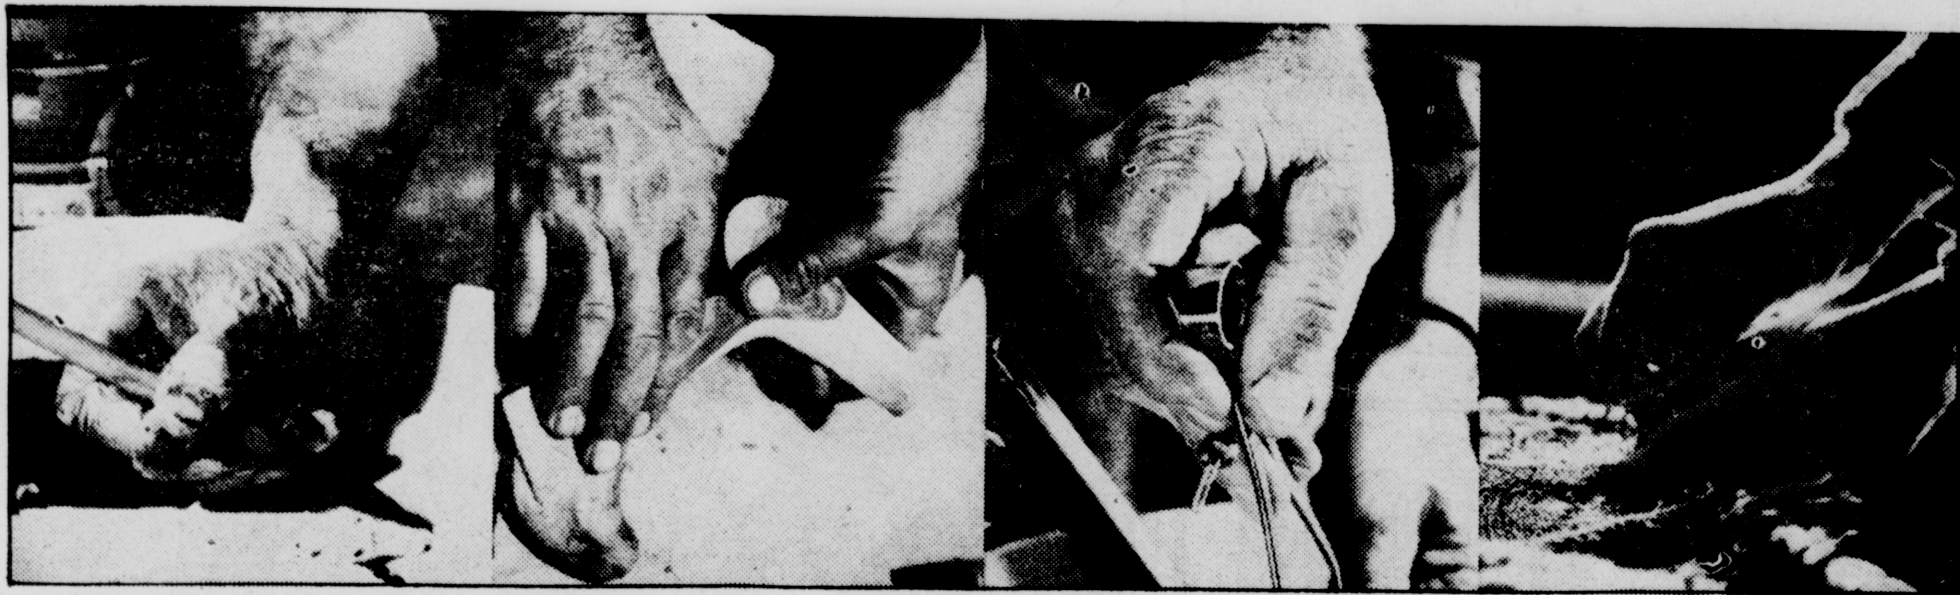

"Only a small segment of the American public had the opportunity of seeing Olivier's brilliant stage production of 'Three Sisters' in Los Angeles in 1970. More surprisingly, when a highly acclaimed motion picture version of that production was subsequently directed by Olivier, starring The National Theatre Company of Great Britain, Laurence Olivier, Alan Bates and Joan Plowright, it could not find an American or Canadian distributor to present the film in a manner commensurate with its importance and prestige. The inclusion of this superb film production in our series clearly illustrates one of The American Film Theatre's underlying 'reasons-for-being' and clearly underscores our avowed purpose of bringing great theatre-on-film to motion picture and theatre audiences everywhere," said Landau.

In addition to Olivier and Bates, the films star such distinguished performers as Katharine Hepburn, Zero Mostel, Paul Scofield, Lee Marvin, Fredric March, Stacy Keach, Jessica Tandy, Robert Ryan, Jeff Bridges, Vivian Merchant, Ian Holm and Lee Remick. Directors whose talents were utilized in the productions include John Frankenheimer, Guy Green, Peter Hall, Daniel Mann, Tom O'Horgan, Harold Pinter (making his film directorial debut) and Tony Richardson.

The only musical in Film Theatre's premiere season will be "Lost in the Stars." It stars Brock Peters, who electrified Broadway in the highly acclaimed 1972 revival of this Kurt Weill and Maxwell Anderson haunting musical adaptation of Alan Paton's magnificent novel, "Cry, the Beloved Country." The screen version of the stage triumph will be directed by Daniel Mann, whose credits include such memorable films as "Butterfield 8," "Come Back Little Sheba," "The Rose Tattoo" and "Teahouse of the August Moon." Alex North, winner of 13 Academy Award nominations, will serve as musical director — and the film will be shot in Los Angeles and on location in Montego Bay, Jamaica.

The hands of four American craftsmen who work (l-r) in ceramics, wood, wood again, and fiber. All of these crafts, and many more, will be featured at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds in Rhinebeck from June 29 to July 1.

500 American Craftsmen Showing at Rhinebeck Fair

Preparations are moving into high gear for the annual Fair of the American Crafts Council, Northeast Region, in Rhinebeck. More than 500 designer-craftsmen will start arriving at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds soon, in anticipation of the public opening of CRAFT FAIR 8 at 10 a.m., Friday, June 29. The Fair continues through Sunday, July 1.

With the rash of outdoor fairs and art markets in practically every city and town, what makes the event at Rhinebeck unique is that it draws so many of the nation's most outstanding craftsmen from areas as far north as Maine, south from Florida, and west even from Oregon. And, in turn, the Fair itself attracts a nation-wide audience.

Several very talented craftsmen of our own area will be exhibiting their works at Rhinebeck this month, representing a broad spectrum of the crafts.

Robert and Mary Langston of Poughkeepsie will be bringing their works in ceramics — mini pots, weed pots, people pots, and small ceramic sculptures. Their distinctive work reflects having learned to use the clay's plasticity, to respect its limits, and with great patience following through the whole process of working with it, finally putting something of themselves into it all.

Gold and silver jewelry, often set with precious stones, will be displayed by Arthur Varney of Pleasant Valley.

He specializes in cast jewelry, produced with the lost-wax technique, which results in only one piece being made with each casting; hence, each item of jewelry is unique. His work is organic, with flowing design.

The Bryans (S. Ann Krupp and Allen Bryan) will also be at the Fair, with new designs in the enormous variety of materials with which they work. This talented couple from New Paltz creates startling work, skillfully executed, in clay, metal, wood and fibers. They will be exhibiting pottery, jewelry, weaving, macrame, toys, dolls, candles, and some of the world's most unusual chess sets.

Also from New Paltz will be Eric Snowden, who creates intriguing mobiles in wood, brass, bronze, and copper.

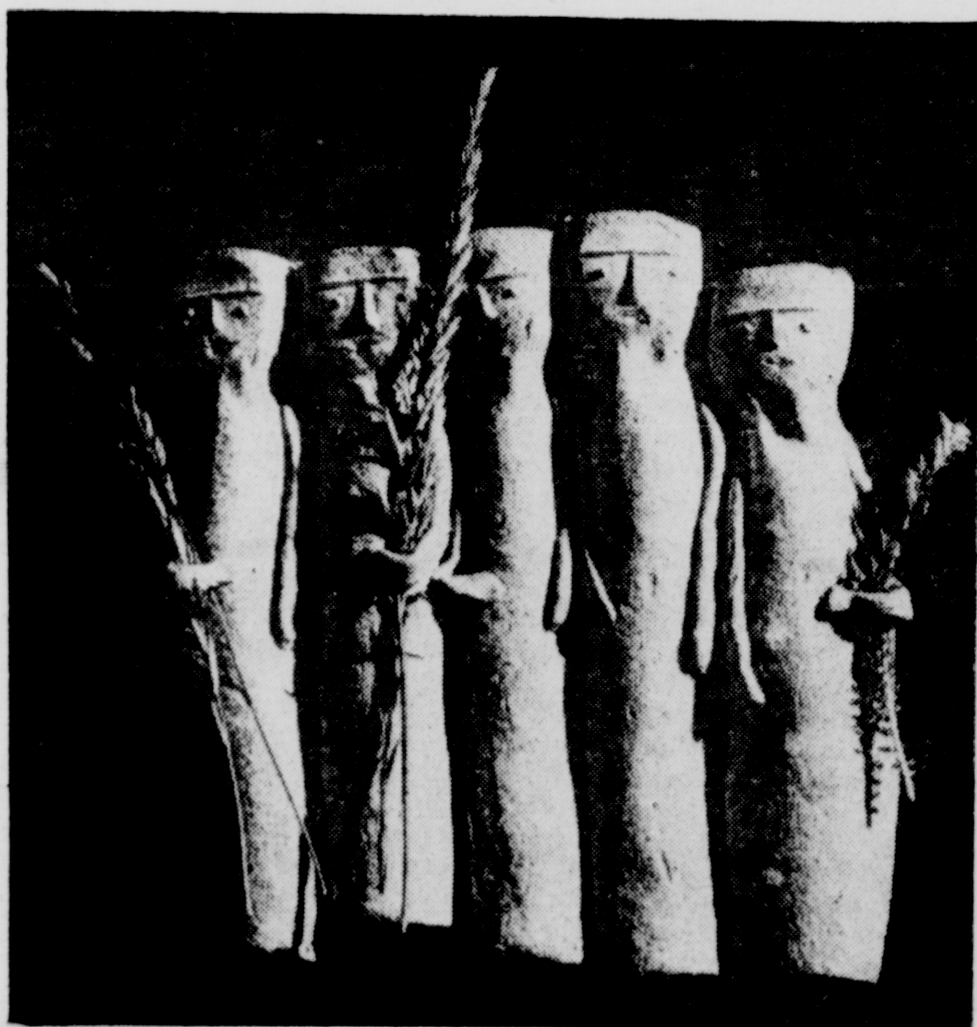

Sylvia Hutchins of Woodstock will be exhibiting stoneware pottery — fountains and furniture, planters and plaques, and highly original mirrors. Nature influences her work, too, and motivates her love for clay. Therefore, she digs local clay and incorporates it into her work. Recently, she has become interested in resins as a new medium, and is experimenting with the combination of clay and resin in wall plaques and hangings which give the effect of stained glass windows with clay outlining the translucent resins.

Woodstocker Susan Dann will bring her popular handsculpted candles to the Fair, many of which are totally delightful, whimsical animals.

Raymonde Bostwick, weaver from Red Hook, will be at this year's Fair with her marvelous wall hangings, belts, pillows, bags and mats. She calls herself a "senior citizen who wants to show other 'older' people how you can be useful, keep yourself active and alive, creative and happy." Ever since she started weaving 13 years ago — completely self-taught — she has been much in demand as a teacher. She loves the challenge of work well done, the satisfaction of working with her hands as well as her mind, and the opportunity of transferring her knowledge to people who appreciate it.

Other craftsmen, working in every imaginable material, will present a kaleidoscope of designs and techniques, from historic to contemporary, conventional to experimental, conservative to way-out, a range which has delighted thousands of admiring visitors who have attended this big Fair, now in its eighth year and being held in Rhinebeck for the first time, after previously being home-based at Bennington, Vermont.

Promising to be a major highlight of the summer season locally, the Northeast Craft Fair 8 will offer everything there is to offer in the way of sales, exhibits and demonstrations by 500 American craftsmen. Plan now to attend on at least one day of this three-day event, running Friday, June 29; Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

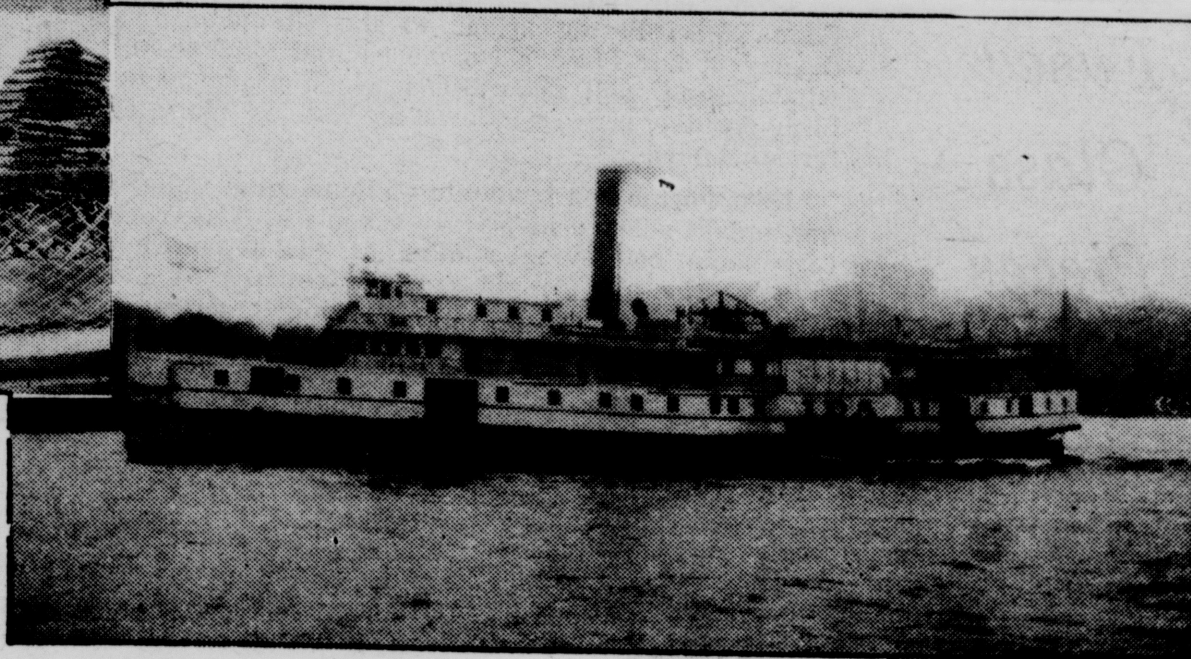

People weed pots are among the distinctive works in ceramics that will be exhibited and sold at the 8th annual Northeast Craft Fair in Rhinebeck.

A Fire At Barrytown

By CAPT. WILLIAM O. BENSON

Since I began writing this series of steamboat articles for "Tempo," I've received some 50 letters and more than 100 telephone calls from interested readers. It has been amazing to me, at least, to discover the wide audience reached by the articles. Letters have been received from such diverse points as Alaska, California and Florida.

One of the more interesting of these came from Mrs. Richard Dawson of Silver Springs, Maryland. Her father, Frank Luedtke, was the Barrytown agent of the Saugerties and New York Steamboat Company from 1901 until the company ceased operations at the onset of the Great Depression of the 1930's. She mentioned an incident that was previously unknown to me and has given me permission to use her letter. It follows:

Dear Captain Benson:

I have not been able to resist writing to you about the journey into the past afforded by your most enjoyable articles in The Freeman on the well remembered Hudson River steamboats. Of deepest interest and nostalgia to me was "No More Night Boats from Saugerties."

You see, my father (Frank Luedtke) was Agent-in-Charge of the Barrytown dock of the Saugerties and New York Steamboat Company from 1901 until the company went out of business. My parents lived, and I was born, in the house right on the bank of the river — reached by a flight of stairs from the dock. This property was purchased by the company with the express purpose of providing a place for their Barrytown agent to live.

In particular, the account of your visit aboard the "Robert A. Snyder" on that afternoon in New York at Pier 43, North River, foot of Christopher Street (how often I heard that address!) brought back many wonderful memories of my childhood and Captain Richard W. Heffernan. He was so wonderful to a small girl who thought that, next to her father, he was about the greatest thing that had ever happened to her and the resplendent gold braid of the Captain's uniform really cinched it! I am happy to say I never had occasion to change that opinion in later years when the gold braid was long gone — the wonderful person that he was still continued to shine!

I also remember well the pilot with whom you spoke and who gave you such timely advice. Strangely enough, I've always remembered his name as Harry Gough — not Grough as the paper had it. However, I could be wrong about that. The helmsman or quartermaster that I remember was a blond haired young man by the name of Johnnie but his last name escapes me at this point.

Incidentally, Captain Heffernan was instrumental in literally saving for us the home I mentioned earlier. Just to the north was a piece of property on which had stood one of the ice houses owned by the Knickerbocker Ice Company. With the advent of electric refrigerators, ice harvesting from the river was no longer profitable and the ice house, badly deteriorated, was pulled down and the materials mostly left where they were. Each summer at least one careless individual walking through would flick a cigarette butt which would ignite the sawdust remaining from the ice house.

This, of course, was a most difficult fire to conquer as, while it would seem to be extinguished, it was smouldering beneath the surface only waiting for a breeze to fan it into flame. On this particular late afternoon, a strong breeze from the north sprang up and a really large fire took hold. The Red Hook Fire Department responded but, at that time, they had no pumper so could only stand by with the chemical engine to use on the house should it catch.

Just as my mother had some treasured items and clothing ready to be moved out, the "Robert A. Snyder" hove into view. Captain Heffernan immediately sized up the situation and as soon as she was made fast at the dock, the captain ordered her hoses broken out and the pumps manned. The fire was shortly under control, the house was saved and the freight loading operation went on! But, it had been an unforgettable experience I assure you.

I also enjoyed your article on the "Old Steamboat Whistles at Rondout." However, since none of these boats put into "our" dock, with the exception of the "Jacob H. Tremper," I do not particularly remember their various whistles. Aside from the "Robert A. Snyder" and "Ida," probably my most vivid recollections are of the beautiful picture the Night Line boats presented gliding by on a mirror-like river with each of their lights from stem to stern reflecting a double glitter. As I recall, they would pass Barrytown going downriver at about 11:15 p.m.

I hope you will forgive the presumption on your time of these rambling reminiscences of a total stranger. I can only blame the contagion of your articles which I have just received from relatives in Kingston. Thank you for writing them!

Sincerely yours,

Wilhelminia Luedtke Dawson

The "Robert A. Snyder" of the Saugerties and New York Steamboat Company acted as a fire boat in Barrytown dock. Here, the Saugerties steamer is at her berth on Saugerties Creek in the 1920's.

Fused Glass Pieces

Fused glass — a new concept in ceramic art, and its creator and originator, Priscilla Manning Porter, are featured during June at The Greenhouse Gallery in Millbrook, on South Road.

From her studio workshop in Washington, Conn., Miss Porter brings to the Greenhouse a display of her fused glass pieces and varieties of window and wall decorations which grace many Fifth Avenue show windows as well as those of foreign lands.

Miss Porter is a graduate of Bennington College and taught science in private schools in New York City while continuing studies at the Greenwich Pottery. She also taught ceramic courses at the Museum of Modern Art. It was while teaching a course in mosaics there that she decided to try a "transparent mosaic." Stained glass pieces were glued to a window pane with another pane placed on top, then put in a pottery kiln and fired. The result? The start of a new and challenging craft — fused glass!

One of Miss Porter's fused glass birds was chosen by the Corning Museum for the "Glass 1959" exhibit which toured the U.S. for two years and is now part of the permanent collection.

Miss Porter received a merit award in 1968 from the Artists Craftsman of New York for a pair of fused glass candlesticks. She has had shows at Siena Heights College, Adrian, Mich., Patterson State College in Wayne, N.J. and the Slater Museum, Pawtucket, R.I. Her work has been included in the Smithsonian Institution of Craftsman of Eastern States; San Jose State College in Cranbrook, Mich., New York City and many areas of Connecticut. She has also given courses at Worcester Craft Center and Brookfield Craft Center.

'Oklahoma' Has Top Billing In Premiere Season Course

Ulster County Community College's premiere season of Summer Music Theatre will involve a major production of "Oklahoma."

There will be an intensive study of all phases of musical theatre during a seven-week session from June 18 through Aug. 4.

Auditions for the play will be held in John C. Quimby Auditorium on the Stone Ridge campus Monday, June 11, and Tuesday, June 12. Persons interested in auditioning for offstage positions should report at 7 p.m.; those interested in auditioning for the cast should report at 8 p.m.

The Summer Music Theatre program includes rehearsals in music, acting and dance as well as workshops in scenery, lighting, costumes, promotion, box office and theatre administration for all involved in the production, including both credit and credit-free students. In addition, seminars devoted to the discussion of each phase of the show will be conducted for those taking the three-credit course.

The College's approach to theatre is an ensemble one. Under this philosophy, every member of a theatre production is important to its success. There are no stars. Stagehand, seamstress, designer, performer are all working toward the same end — a production of professional quality.

All participants in the program must be enrolled in one of the credit courses, Introduction to Theatre Arts or Production Participation, or the credit-free course, OKLAHOMA.

Six performances of "Oklahoma" are scheduled in the Quimby Auditorium on Friday, July 27; Saturday, July 28, and Wednesday through Saturday, Aug. 1 to 4.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Office for Continuing Education (687-7621, Ext. 49).

POTPOURRI

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

Havin' a winnin' ticket in the sweepstakes is an uncommon delight. But then, so is havin' dinner at New Paltz' new Log Rail Inn. And at least the latter's a sure thing!

First off, Log Rail's menu looks like a seafood buff's dream-come-true. Prices look like circa 1950 ($5 for Maine lobster) . . . the bar looks like heaven (hundreds of blue "star" lights) . . . and the host, Bill Morris, looks like Burt Lancaster — which isn't hard to take either.

Incidentally, 'tho seafood's the specialty (complete with clambar), Land Lubbers'll be pleased to know there's also chicken and roast beef.

Sorry to hear 'bout the closin' of Ellenville's Motor Museum. Last September we made a visit there and remember seein' such sights as a 1966 Duesenberg wearin' a price tag of $24,900 (only one made but at 24 G's, it's no wonder).

Then, too, there was the only, original, four cylinder Rolls Royce on earth, a 1905 Gray Ghost, the most valuable piece, tires so large they could save a whole family from drownin'.

A 1908 White had a rumble seat affectionately called "mother-in-law;" a Mercedes, complete with bucket seats, and this back in 1906, mind you; and a 1931 Isotta Fraschini which originated in Milan, Italy — each one personally blessed in Rome by the Pope.

One car weighed 4000 lbs., 2500 of which was the battery. Some cars toted skis in case the tires gave out in the snow. Then, of course, there was the world's most famous car, 1919 Chitty-Chitty-Bang-Bang, the only survivor.

It was an education. You "auto" been with us!

Local residents have been takin' trips to Herkimer, N.Y., recently to dig in the Diamond Mine there. 'Tho not exactly another Gold Rush, Flo Brinkerhoff came home with a beaut. Understand the stones are used for costume jewelry . . . . . Hear tell Nancy Seitz is in France for the summer, majorin' in French and minorin' in cookin'. All we can say is "move over, Julia Child, and make room for Nancy." . . . . . Arthur London's back from visitin' his parents in Tucson, Ariz. Sendin' greetings to their Kingston friends VIA ART are the Vozkicks — Joe and Kippy. (Oh, that Arthur's a regular Paul Revere.)

Big news! Now it can be told. According to National Chamber of Commerce, May 10th may've been Thursday on the calendar, but it was Thru-sday in the pocketbook. Why? 'Cause as of May 10, the average taxpayer was "thru" workin' to pay his federal, state, local taxes. Heaven be blest. You are now workin' for yourself! . . . . . Speakin' of Big News, you have been to The Beef House recently? Seen the size of the Whiskey Sour — or Martinis and Bacardis, for that matter! They're so BIG, it takes two hands (at least) to manipulate 'em!

Understand Jerry Lane went shoppin' last week for shoes. When he got home, he discovered he had two "rights." Oh, well, things could always be worse. Pity the poor snook walkin' around in the two left ones. Right? . . . . . Spotted an unusual sign near Norwalk, Conn. Would you believe: Antiques: bought-sold-repaired and BUILT. . . . . Believe it!

PAW's Dinner Party To Feature Concert

Performing Arts of Woodstock is celebrating the birth of its new music wing. A dinner party and a concert featuring the Woodstock Ensemble will be given Saturday evening, June 16, at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church in Woodstock. Included in the concert are the premiere performances of three original compositions by area musicians.

The Woodstock Ensemble originated as a choral group and performed a limited number of Christmas Eve concerts locally. Under the direction of Fu Yuan Soong, however, it has grown substantially in size and evolved to include instrumentalists. Its P.A.W. affiliation, which dates from May of this year, will mean not only a richer variety of musical performances in the Woodstock area, but also more live music in combination with other P.A.W. functions, such as theater and dance.

P.A.W.'s June 16 party celebrates the first public performance of the new Woodstock Ensemble. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the church reception hall, where a dinner of international flavor will be served. At 8:30 the center of attention will move into the church proper where the Woodstock Ensemble will present an hour of musical entertainment. The concert includes six 4-part Elizabethan madrigals and three original compositions by local composers: "An Earthly Farewell" by Cyril Castor (written for chorus, violin, flute, and cello), "Prelude, Waltz and Finale" by Terry Champlin (for chorus, violin, cello, and flute), and "Temple Piece" by Dwight Wilson (for chorus, piano, cello and violin). Wine and cheese will be served after the concert, when the audience will have the chance to meet both the performers and composers.

Fu Yuan Soong, Woodstock Ensemble's imaginative, young director, is a native of mainland China. He majored in musical composition at the University of Chicago. Some of his works have been performed by chamber groups of the New York Philharmonic and the Chicago Symphony, and Soong has himself conducted numerous chamber orchestras and choral groups. He enjoys writing poetry in classical Chinese, and is a master in the game of "go," a game popular in the Far East and even more intricate than chess.

The madrigals to be performed include: "O Occhi Manza Mia," "My Heart Doth Beg You'll Not Forget," "Let Go Why Do You Stay Me," "So Ben Me Cha Bon Tempo," "Adieu Sweet Amarillis," and "I Know a Young Maiden Wondrous Fair." They will be sung a capella and should provide balance and cohesiveness to this excitingly original and diverse musical fare.

Tickets for both the dinner and concert can be purchased either by writing Performing Arts of Woodstock, P.O. Box 517, Woodstock, New York 12498, or at the door, for only $5. It is to your advantage to respond promptly, since June 13 is the deadline for reservations, and tickets at the door will be sold on a first come, first serve basis.

Paintings & Graphics For a New Paltz Show Team the Joyces, Newcomer Artists

Paintings and graphics by Robert and Mary Joyce are being shown at the New Paltz office of the Inter-County Savings Bank from now until the end of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Joyce are newcomers to Ulster County, having moved to West Hurley from Nassau County. They have exhibited widely on Long Island and in New York City.

Both are members of the Art League of Nassau County and the Long Beach Art Association. Joyce has recently served a term as president of the latter. By vocation, Bob is a professional musician, and it was while touring the country in the era of the big bands that he met and married Mary, then a professional dancer. Both have always had an eager interest in art and in recent years have been working professionally in this field.

Bob Joyce is largely a self-taught artist, except for short terms of study with Sam Adler, John Rogers and Ray Goldberg. He has been an exhibiting member of the Malverne Artists and the National Art League. His water colors have won numerous prizes, his most recent being the Grumbacher Award at Long Beach.

Mary received her A.A. Degree from Nassau Community College and her BA and MS in Art Education from Queens College. Before moving to Ulster County, she taught art in the Patchogue schools and in Lawrence, Long Island. A winner of numerous awards, she won nine prizes in her first eleven shows, six of which were firsts. She has worked in painting, sculpture, ceramics and graphics, winning awards in each of these fields. More recently she has concentrated on etching, as a member of the Ruth Leaf Studio. Nationally, she has exhibited with the Catherine Lorillard Wolfe Show at the National Academy Galleries in New York City.

Beginning June 30, the Joyces will be operating an art gallery from their home. The Joyce Gallery is located on Route 28A in West Hurley, and will feature the works of other fine artists, as well as their own.

A Poetry Prize

A poem written by James J. Clarke, assistant professor of English at Ulster County Community College, has won first prize in a contest conducted by the Religious Arts Guild in Boston.

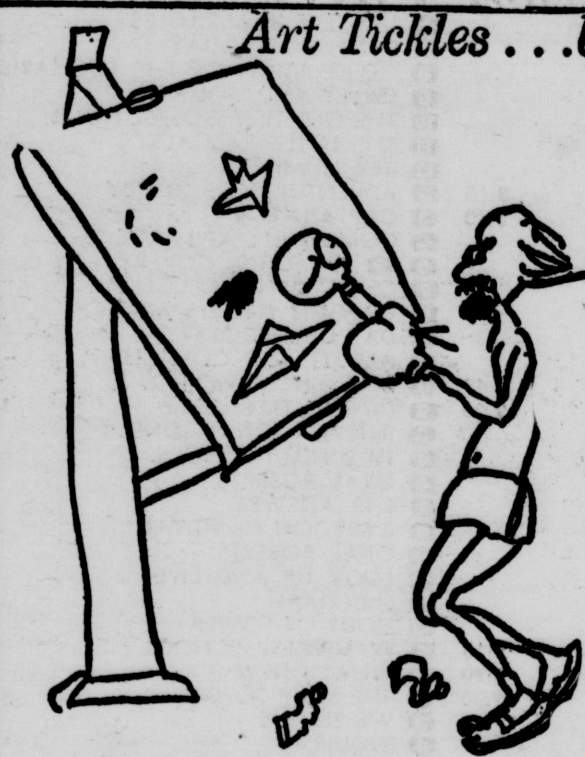

The poem, "xi (for a mongoloid child, dead at age twelve)," was the unanimous choice for the prize in the Dorothy Rosenberg Poetry Contest, and Dolores Riccio, one of the judges, called it "a fine and moving poem." One of Clarke's previous poems won this prize two years ago.

The poem will be published in World magazine in the August issue.

Earlier this spring, three poems written by Professor Clarke won prizes in "The Bag Poetry Annual" conducted by the Bag Press in Stanfordville, N.Y.

He has received numerous prizes for his poems and more than 100 of them have been published, including 19 in anthologies. A West Hurley resident, he earned a B.A. Degree in English from Newark State College and his M.A. Degree in English from Montclair State College.

Give Your Dad a Chess Player for Father's Day

A young chess player challenges her father as her mother watches.

Sunday, June 17, is Father's Day. If you're looking for a gift, you might consider giving Dad a chess player! You! Children all over the country are learning to play and enjoy the game with their dads, their mothers and their friends.

Point of the Game

The point of the game is to trap the other person's king. You do this by moving your chess pieces in such a way that the king cannot escape being taken. This is called "checkmate." Your opponent, of course, is trying to capture your king at the same time, so you must defend your king against his pieces.

Beginning Hints

You should learn the names of the pieces. Each piece moves differently, so you must learn the directions in which they can go. You should also learn a few good opening moves that will help you control the game. As is true in all games, good sportsmanship is important. Dad might be learning, too, so you might want to get a book for beginners or ask someone who really knows chess to teach you. Some schools offer chess lessons, so maybe you can teach dad what you learn.

Why Play?

Chess is a game of skill. Children enjoy it because they like to learn strategy, how to think and concentrate. They find chess fun, exciting and relaxing.

Black Men

- 1 King
- 1 Queen
- 2 Bishops
- 2 Knights
- 2 Rooks

White Men

Each chess set has two armies with 16 pieces each.

Bobby Fischer: World Chess Champion

On September 1, 1972, Bobby Fischer won the world chess championship by defeating the Russian title-holder, Boris Spassky. The match was not only a victory for the 29-year-old Fischer, but also for the game of chess itself. By making so many demands for more money and better playing conditions and causing so much trouble, both Fischer and the game of chess received worldwide news coverage. Chess fever spread throughout the country.

Bobby Fischer was born in Chicago in 1943. He later moved to Brooklyn. His sister bought him his first chess set when he was six years old. He later began to play with the Brooklyn Chess Club. By the age of 12, he was a member of the Manhattan Chess Club. News reporters called him "The Sweatshirt Kid." At the age of 15 he became the youngest grand-master in history.

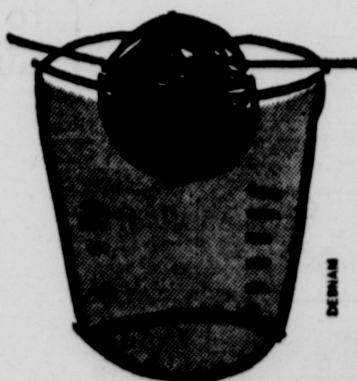

Though he made good grades in school, studying did not interest him and he left high school in his junior year. He is known as a loner and plays chess by himself for hours. He has little personal life, but he does enjoy bowling. Fischer says he would welcome another chance to play Spassky.

A Mini Page "How Do You Do?"

How do you grow an avocado tree in water?

1. Stick about three toothpicks around the smaller end of an avocado seed.

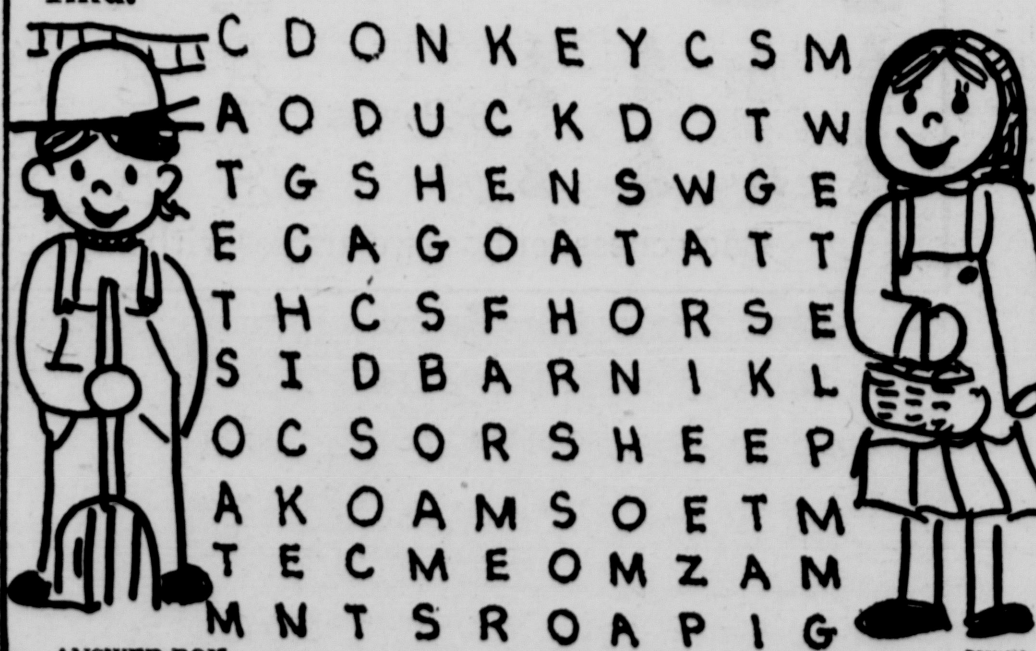

2. Fill a glass with water. Put the seed in the water with the larger end down. The toothpicks will keep it suspended.

3. The seed will later split open. A taproot will shoot down into the water and a plant will grow out of the top. Leaves will appear.

4. Keep your container full of water. Your tree can grow to be over a foot tall.

Famous Paintings

"Saint George and the Dragon," painted in 1504-05 by Raphael, is from the Andrew Mellon Collection at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

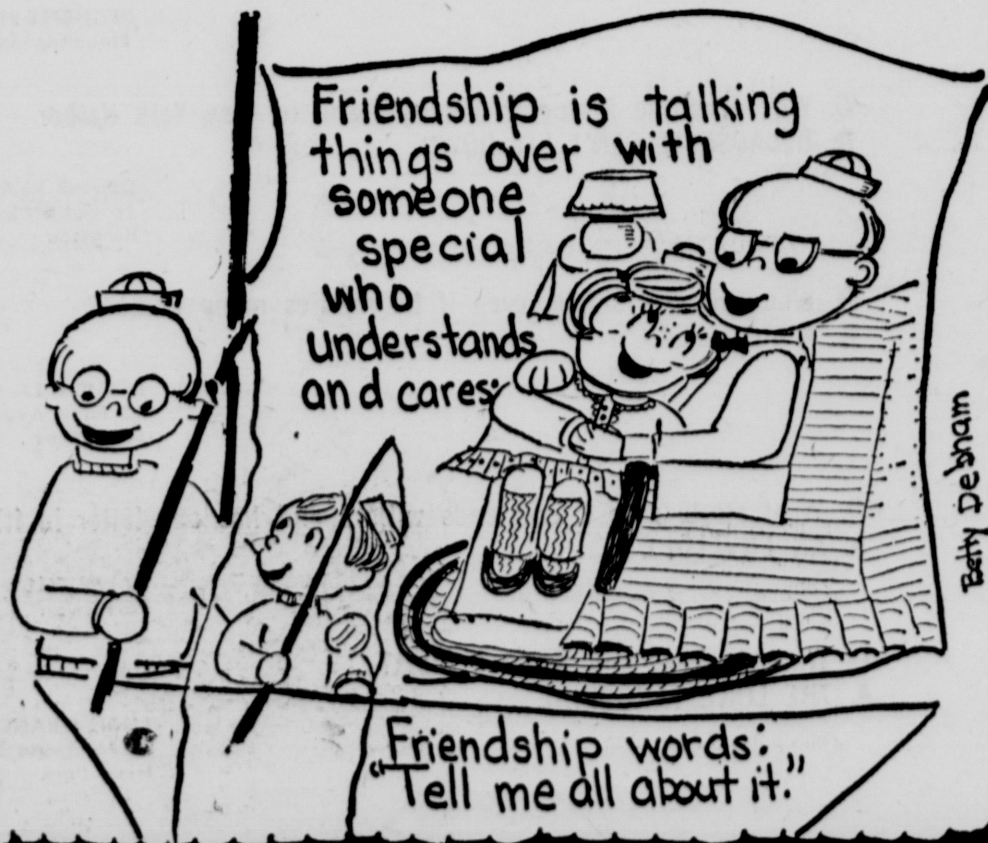

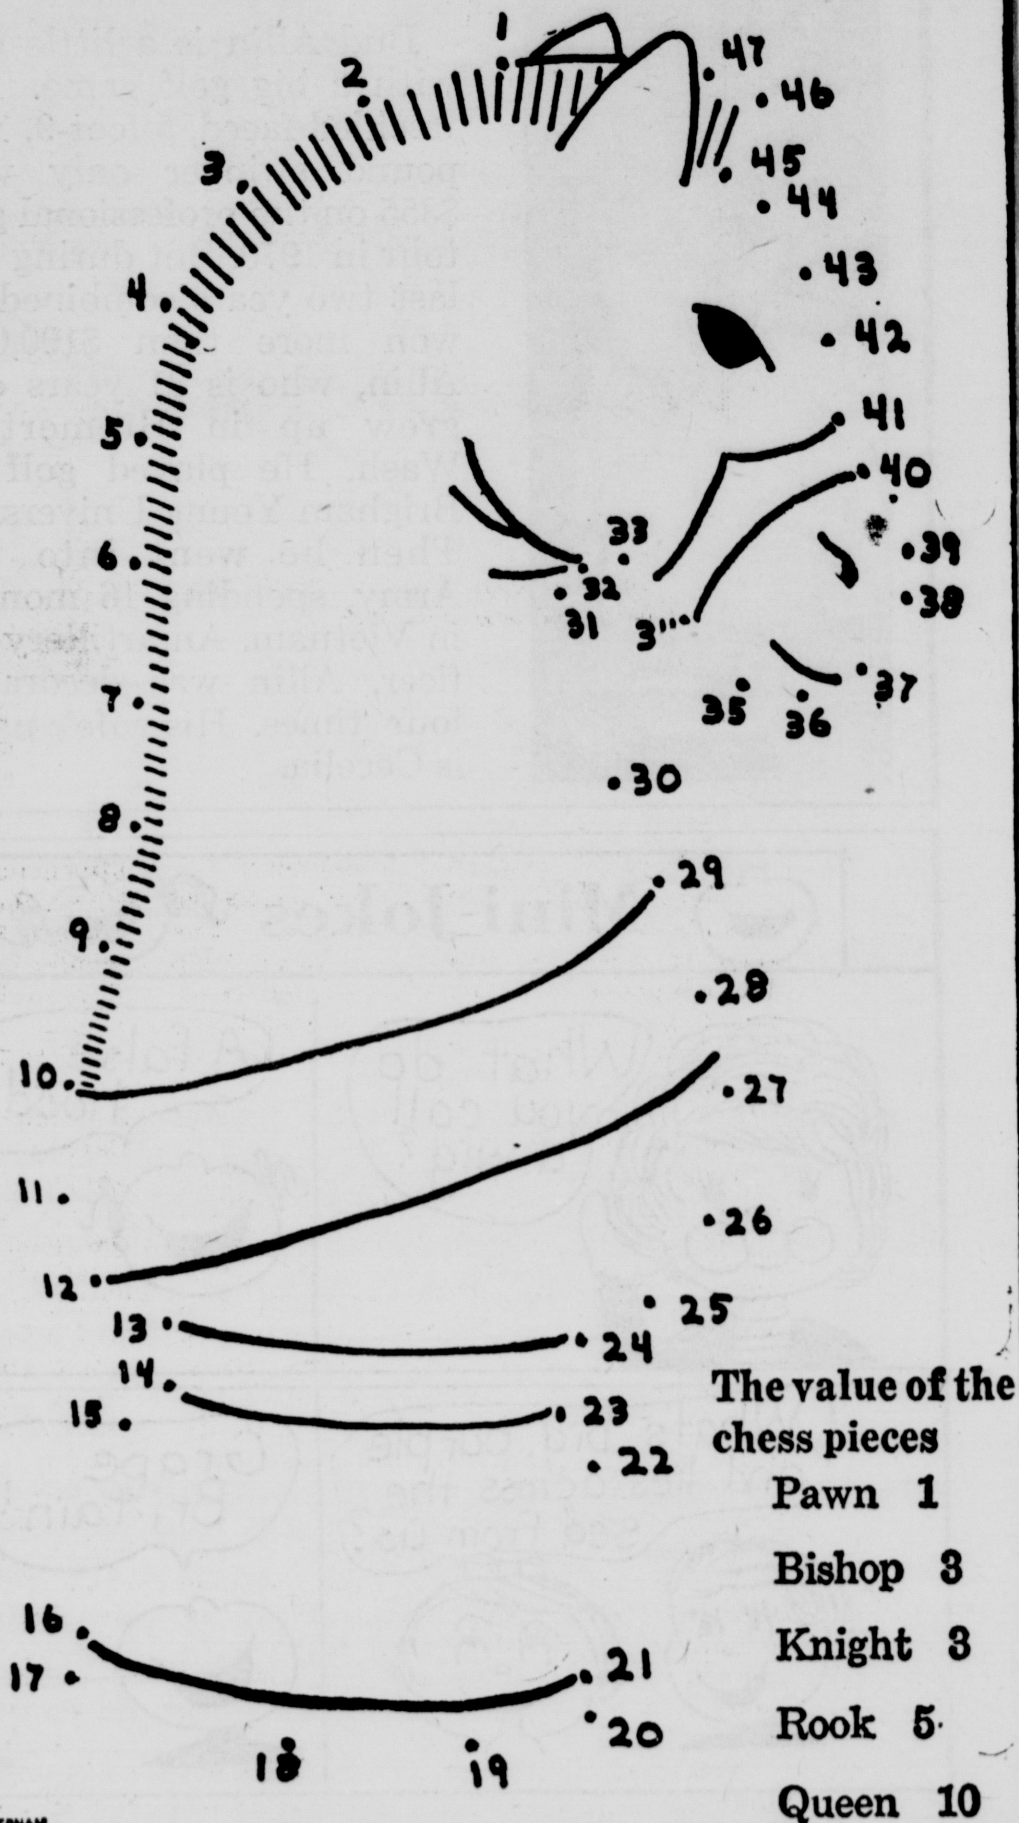

Notice how the artist used curved and slanted lines to create a sense of movement. See the curved lines in the horse's tail and the dragon's neck. See the slanted lines in the lance and in the rearing horse.

The Story of Saint George and the Dragon

According to legend, Saint George was a Roman soldier of the Christian faith who lived at the end of the third century, A.D. Once, while traveling in Africa, George came upon a weeping princess, who was the only daughter of a non-Christian king whose subjects had been frightened by a dragon. To make the creature happy, the people of the kingdom had been giving it two sheep every day. When their flocks were gone, they had to sacrifice their children. Just as the princess was to be sacrificed, George appeared and, calling on Christ to aid him, killed the evil beast.

This painting is by Raphael, one of the greatest painters in 16th century Italy. He lived from 1483 to 1520.

Prince Valiant® IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR by HAL FOSTER

Our Story: PRINCE ARN TAKES LYDIA'S HANDS IN A FIRM GRIP: "NOW, LYDIA," HE DEMANDS, "TELL ME WHY YOU AVOID ME WHEN I HAVE DONE NOTHING TO CAUSE OFFENSE?"

"YOU ARE THE SWEETEST BOY I EVER MET. BUT YOU ARE A PRINCE AND CAN ONLY MARRY ROYALTY, AND I AM ONLY THE DAUGHTER OF A JARL." "I'LL MARRY WHOM I DARE WELL PLEASE!" HE SHOUTS.

GENTLY SHE WITHDRAWS HER HANDS: "NO, YOU WILL MARRY IN THE BEST INTERESTS OF YOUR ROYAL FAMILY AND THE LAND THEY SERVE. SO LEAVE ME NOW WHILE MY LOVE IS JUST A BEAUTIFUL DREAM."

ARN SITS DOWN, SUDDENLY, BEWILDERED. "LOVE! MARRIAGE! TEARS! AND I ONLY DANCED WITH HER ONCE. WHY DID NOT MOTHER TEACH ME MORE ABOUT GIRLS?"

"YET IT WAS I WHO PURSUED HER!" HE LIES BACK ON THE GRASS REMEMBERING THE MIDSUMMER FESTIVAL. HOW CHARMING SHE HAD BEEN WITH HER BRIGHT SMILE AND READY LAUGHTER. HE HAD WISHED THE DAY WOULD NEVER END.

"MAYBE I WILL WANT TO MARRY HER SOME DAY, AND WHEN THAT DAY COMES SHE MUST BE A PRINCESS." WITH THE OVERCONFIDENCE OF YOUTH HE GOES STRAIGHT TO JARL HAAKON: "THE KINGDOM OF HOLVIK LIES ON YOUR BORDER. HAS THERE BEEN ANY CHANGE IN RELATIONS SINCE GRIMMER BECAME KING?"

"YES," GRUMBLES THE JARL, "HE HAS CEASED TO TRADE WITH US AND WE HEAR RUMORS THAT HE WELCOMES THE SAVAGE RAIDERS OF THE INNER LANDS."

"HOLVIK SHOULD HAVE A KING LOYAL TO KING AGUAR," STATES ARN. THEREBY SOWING THE SEED OF AMBITION IN HAAKON'S MIND.
